A Cautious Elephant.
Easy Day, Easy Money.
Cradle Training.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

ROME sends disquieting news concerning the health of Pope Pius. When he recently appeared in public, at a canonization in St. Peter's before 50,000 worshipers, he seemed in excellent health, his voice resounding through the great cathedral.

Hot weather on the day of the ceremony, accentuated by his heavy vestments, is believed to have brought on an internal attack from which he is now suffering.

MILLIONS all over the world hope that the attack may pass speedily and that Pope Pius, now only 73 years old, may live beyond the age of his predecessor, Leo.

He will be remembered as "the Pope of the conciliation" because of the accord brought about between the Vatican and the government of Italy during his reign.

AN ELEPHANT takes a long time making up his mind, especially when crossing a bridge. You may see the biggest, wisest elephant, dragging a British cannon, with one foot on a bridge, waiting before deciding that the bridge will hold. Then he goes over.

But Dwight W. Morrow has shown him that it is possible to gallop over a wet bridge to victory on the other side. And he will force the Republican elephant to come in and be wet also.

THOSE WERE easy days in Wall Street, a few months ago.

One Wall Street broker now in bankruptcy, who flew extra high, while high flying was the rule, really can't remember to whom he gave thousands of dollars worth of jewelry purchased in a few days.

He said it was necessary to live well, at the rate of about $400,000 a year at least, merely as a matter of advertising.

MONEY is cheap in Wall Street, only 2 per cent for the "call money" used for speculation. Yesterday the desire was still to sell, not to buy, although some good stocks, like call money, are very cheap.

Big insurance companies, and other lenders, if they chose, might promote business and building by reducing the present high mortgage rates.

UNCLE SAM feels prosperous. Last Saturday he had a surplus of $223,000,000.

Congress' appropriations and the government effort to corner wheat may easily eat that up. Wheat fell off four cents yesterday. Corners are expensive.

MR. FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT says:

Parents should train children from their babyhood.

An old English horse trainer was asked:

"When should I begin training my colt?"

When told that the colt was 3 weeks old, he said:

"You have lost the three most important weeks."

Children should be trained with kindness and explanation, never with whipping or other brutality, from babyhood.

But don't waste too much time correcting and nagging concerning faults that the child will outgrow with time; and not otherwise.

FOR SEVEN YEARS, Kemal Pasha has been modernizing Angora, new capital of Turkey. Now, in half an hour, a cloudburst washes away nearly all that has been accomplished, roads and sidewalks, model dwellings, children's playgrounds, all gone.

Can you imagine the shaking of ancient Turkish heads, certain that the prophet Mohammed, with the aid of Allah, the only God, came down to start the cloudburst?

Kemal took the veils from women's faces, and the fez from the heads of men, making them wear derby hats. He erected huge statues of himself, although Mohammed said you mustn't. No wonder the cloudburst came.

Those Turks are almost as superstitious as some of us.

Those fliers will be welcome.

H. E. FOLGER, once chairman of the Standard Oil Company of New York, leaves $10,000,000 for a "Folger-Shakespeare memorial." The memorial will have a Shakespearian collection in Washington and accumulate information concerning Shakespeare.

The income from $10,000,000 might have been used better to give a good edition of Shakespeare to every boy and girl graduating from high school, but anything that honors Shakespeare is well done.

Southern Cross Wages Grim Fight as Fuel Fades, Finds Haven in Newfoundland

By E. A. JEFFREY.
International News Service.

ST. JOHNS, Newfoundland, June 25. — Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith and his three companions landed their tri-motored monoplane Southern Cross at Harbor Grace airport today at 6:56 a. m., Pittsburgh time, after a grim fight with impenetrable fog banks on the last part of their nonstop flight across the Atlantic Ocean from Ireland.

They were expected to start early tomorrow for New York, their original goal, where they will receive the homage due heroes.

'RADIO SAVED US'

On landing her Capt. Kingsford-Smith said:

"We had fairly good weather on the flight until we reached Cape Race. We encountered dense fog off Cape Race, and had to circle around until daylight. We then decided to land at Harbor Grace, as our fuel was running short.

"The radio saved our lives. We would have been helpless without that communication, for we had been flying blind several hours after our compass went bad."

VATICAN CITY, June 25.—(AP.)—Reports still persisted today that Pope Pius XI is indisposed, despite denials by authorized officials that he is suffering with a uremic crisis.

It was learned that several Rome doctors had been consulted recently concerning the Pontiff's aggravated bladder trouble and that the possibility of an operation had been discussed.

The semi-official Vatican communique issued daily, was devoted almost entirely today to describing how active and vigorous the Pope has been the last few days. It contains however, no denial he is ill nor any formal admission

2nd Child, Girl, Born To Calles' Daughter

MEXICO CITY, June 25.—(AP.)—A daughter has been born to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Arnold Robinson here. Mrs. Robinson is a daughter of Plutarco Elias Calles, former President of Mexico.

Robinson, a wealthy American importer, and Senorita Ernestina Calles were married in 1927. A son was born to them in 1928.

'Herrick' Hinted Middle Name for Lindy Junior

ENGLEWOOD, N. J., June 25.—Instead of being without a pair of shoes to his name, the three-day-old Lindbergh baby hasn't a name to his four pair of shoes.

Rumors around Englewood had it that after all the guessing, the baby wasn't going to be Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., nor yet, Charles Morrow Lindbergh. No sir, the report had it, as reports will, the young man is to be called Charles Herrick Lindbergh. Today may tell just how close that guess is.

The late Myron T. Herrick, as ambassador to France, was Col. Lindbergh's host after the memorable New York flight, and the colonel always had a deep admiration for the Ohio diplomat.

The four pair of shoes are the gift of a New York shoe manufacturer. One pair is embroidered with gold beads of infinitismal size in a design representing the monoplane in which Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh made their record flight from Glendale, Calif., to New York.

Another pair of pale blue kid has the aviation insignia of a pair of wings. There is a pair of white kid with a fleur-de-lis motif, symbolical of the father's flight to France. The fourth pair is of pale rose kid with tiny green buds worked in beads.

ETNA OPPOSES BLUE LAW

Results of the poll to date in Glassport, Glenfield and Greentree boroughs will be published tomorrow.

Etna is added to the growing list of boroughs opposed to the Pennsylvania Blue Law and in favor of Sunday sports and amusements. A positive verdict is recorded by voters of this Allegheny River borough in the poll of the county by the Sun-Telegraph.

Repeal of the strict Sunday law is demanded by a majority of nearly seven to one in the Etna canvass to date, yielding 269 ballots. This number is about 22 per cent of the total vote cast in Etna at the primary election. The votes are divided:

THOUSANDS MAY LOSE VOTE

Court Rules 'Fixed' Tax Receipts Clear Forgery; May Break Up Practice

Thousands of persons on the voting lists in Allegheny County may be disfranchised as the result of a decision handed down by Judge James H. Gray in a test case in Common Pleas Court today.

On the ground that Israel Rubinowitz, of 812 Fifth avenue, had not paid his taxes himself and had not authorized their payment, Judge Gray declared the tax receipts null and void, and ordered the Board of Registration Commissioners to strike off Rubinowitz's name from the list of qualified voters.

"The tax receipt beyond all doubt was illegally procured and utterly void in his hands. He is not entitled to vote."

Rubinovitz registered in the spring primary this year. His tax receipt was dated August 20, 1929. Lawrence D. Blair, chairman of the committee on elections of the Bar Association of Allegheny County, brought the case before Judge Gray on an appeal from a decision of the registration commissioners.

Judge Gray's decision capped the board of registration commissioners for not striking Rubinovitz's name off the voting list when the matter was first contested. Referring to the tax receipt the opinion said:

"It was established to be a forgery as clearly as it is possible to establish any fact."

Court attaches pointed out the possible far-reaching effects of this decision. They said that it would go far to put an end to the practice, common here before registration days, of thousands of tax receipts being distributed by ward workers to those of "the faithful" who had not paid their taxes.

P. O. SHIFT HERE TEMPORARY

Postmaster George W. Gosser was advised by the Postmaster General's office at Washington today that W. A. Kenyon, a postal inspector from Washington, will take charge of the Pittsburgh office July 1.

He will be acting postmaster until a successor to Mr. Gosser is appointed.

Gosser retires on June 30 under the age limit. He said today that he had no plans for the future.

The appointment of Kenyon created the impression here that Senator David A. Reed does not intend to appoint a successor to Postmaster Gosser in the immediate future and thus avoid an embarrassing situation.

Stocks Again Down, Touch New Lows

NEW YORK, June 25.—(AP.)—Share prices were again driven into new low ground for the year or longer on the New York Stock Exchange today after wide and uncertain fluctuations during the early hours of trading.

The market opened lower, rose substantially, a long list of shares showing gains of $1 to $7 a share, only to succumb to renewed selling during the early afternoon.

Important shares generally declined $1 to $5 or more below yesterday's final levels. U. S. Steel, after selling up more than $2 to $154.62, dropped below $152, recording a new low for 1930. Rails were again the favorite targets of bear selling.

Veterans Bill Is Our Debt of Honor and Should Become Law

ABOARD S. S. OLYMPIC, June 25.

Secretary Mellon declared that increased income taxes will be the penalty imposed upon the people of the United States if the war veterans bill is passed by the Congress and signed by the President.

The war veterans bill should nevertheless be made into law; and the Hearst papers beg respectfully to suggest to Secretary Mellon that there are two legitimate ways to meet the situation without increasing income taxation.

The first way is by restoring the power and opportunity of excise taxation to this country, and by allowing our people to pay to our Government, for purposes of peace and order and law enforcement, the vast amounts of money which they now pay to bootleggers and speakeasies for the promotion of crime and violence and law defiance.

The second way is by extending the payment of the war debt over a longer period of years, and not compelling the present generation to bear the full burden of it.

If we believe that our participation in the European War was necessary and was for the lasting benefit of our country, then it is only fair that future generations, who will reap the benefit equally with ourselves, should pay the cost equally with ourselves.

There is, however, no legitimate way of avoiding the situation by denying due recognition to the brave men who fought the war and whom we promised ever to remember when we sent them to spill their blood on European soil.

Certainly the internationalists who insist upon this country taking part in the conflicts of Europe cannot be mean-spirited enough to refuse every consideration to the heroic sons of the people who have to do the fighting.

Those who wish to dance with warlike European nations cannot object to paying the piper.

Piping for ambitious politicians and international bankers to dance is weary work.

Piping in the rain and mire, piping in dirty dugouts and disease-infected trenches, piping with the shells screamng and the bullets singing, piping in the midst of poison gas and liquid fire: and then afterwards piping with shellshock, and an arm or a leg gone, or with eyesight gone, or with reason gone, is dire and desperate labor.

The scriptures say the laborer is worthy of his hire; and surely the soldier is worthy of remembrance and reward.

The men who went to the war were generous with their youth, with their health and happiness, with their opportunities in life, yes, and with their lives.

We were generous, too, with promises.

We promised to keep their jobs for them, to keep their places in our hearts, to keep them ever in our minds.

Yet, many a brave boy came back to find his job gone, his sweetheart married to another, his chance in life lost, and himself forgotten.

Some came back unable to work; and some came back unable to find work.

Many a great firm has its tablet in bronze or marble telling how many heroes it sent to war; but few have tablets telling how many heroes they gave jobs to when they came back from war.

The dollar-a-year men at Washington got great credit for their big work and little pay, and deserved it too.

But they sacrificed nothing. They retained their personal incomes. They retained their personal fortunes. They retained their comforts and conveniences.

They retained their opportunities to make money then and thereafter.

How about the dollar-a-day men at the front? They sacrificed everything. They went through hell, and they won the war.

Let us not deny them some small part of what

COMPROMISE DUE IN CASE OF VETO

House, Sending Measure to President, Makes Ready For Substitute Passage

WASHINGTON, June 25. — (AP.) — The road was cleared today for President Hoover's second stinging veto of a veterans' relief bill, by House acceptance of Senate amendments to its measure for assistance to World War soldiers.

Branded as "bad legislation" by the President, it will go to him at once. He is expected to repeat his objections in a decisive veto message, after which the House will be called upon to sustain or override him.

A two-thirds vote is necessary to override a veto and, with the Republican leadership behind Mr. Hoover, proponents of the bill expect defeat. The Senate would not then be called upon to act on the veto. The House afterward will begin formulation of another veterans' bill drafted to overcome administration protests.

EARLIER BILL VETOED

The first such bill vetoed was for relief of Spanish-American veterans. Senate and House overrode Mr. Hoover's wishes, but he repeated his objections to that legislation after it had been enacted into law.

In a caucus of 154 Republicans, it was agreed to support any veto of the bill.

Immediately after the House convened, Speaker Longworth recognized Chairman Royal C. Johnson, of the Veterans' Committee, who requested that the House unanimously concur in the Senate amendments. He explained that he did not believe it would do any good to send the measure to conference.

RANKIN THEN YIELDS

Representative Rankin, ranking minority member of the veterans committee, sought to have the House consider the Senate

ARRESTS BARE GODFREY PLOT

PHILADELPHIA, June 25.—(INS.)—On information from New York police, four alleged gunmen of that city were arrested here today after a chase on Broad street, the city's main thoroughfare, and a display of pistols.

According to police, they were "big shots" in Frankie Yale's gang. Yale was slain more than a year ago.

Mixed up in the arrests is the tangled tale of alleged efforts to intimidate George Godfrey, Negro fighter who lost his bout here Monday night with Primo Carnera on a deliberate foul, according o the referee, and who was suspended and fined yesterday.

From New York simultaneously came a story that Godfrey was visited on the eve of the fight and threatened with "death and destruction" if he did not "lie down" and let Carnera win.

Hoover Considers Tour of Mexico

WASHINGTON, June 25.—(INS.)—The possibility that President Hoover may visit Mexico before autumn was projected here today after he had had a conference with Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, who is returning to Mexico City the last of this week to wind up his affairs.

Morrow strongly urged Hoover to pay his long-promised visit to Mexico before he (Morrow) retires, which is expected to be in September.

AGENT DREW BLACKJACK, 2 ASSERT

'Had to Drink on the Job,' Detectives Say Snoper Declared; 2 Women Hurt

A federal prohibition agent, who admitted, according to county detectives, that he had been drinking in pursuance of his duties, was being held today, charged with responsibility for an automobile crash in the Verona road, Penn Township, in which four persons were injured.

An automobile driven by the agent, who gave his name as Albert E. Flack, of 430 School street, Verona, zig-zagged across the road, near the William Penn School, and collided with a car being driven in the opposite direction by Arthur J. Storm, 424 Second street, Oakmont, early today, according to Storm's story to the detectives.

TREATED BY PHYSICIANS

Flack's wife, and Mrs. Mary Grouse, her daughter, Ora Grouse, of Harmarville, and an unidentified man were thrown to the road, all suffering severe lacerations and bruises. They were treated by Verona physicians and later taken home, according to information obtained by the detectives.

After the accident, Storm informed the detectives, Flack apparently became enraged, drew a blackjack from his pocket and lunged at Storm, but he eluded the agent.

CORROBORATES STORY

Flack, Storm and George R. Watts, of 100 Sherman street, Mt. Oliver, who was following Storm in his car, were taken to the county detectives headquarters, the latter two as witnesses. Watts corroborated Storm's story of the attempted attack.

Flack was charged with aggravated assault and battery in an information filed by Chief of County Detectives George W. Murren before Alderman George J. Anderson. He was released under $1,000 bail for a hearing next Wednesday.

"Flack told me he was a prohibition agent and showed me his credentials. He said he had been drinking and that he was required to drink in order to obtain evidence. He said he and t' persons with him had been obtaining evidence. I have notified the prohibition enforcement authorities that Flack is being held."

SEES CAR ZIGZAG

Storm said:

"I was driving toward the city about 7:30 a. m. today when I saw a car approaching in zigzag fashion. As it neared us it swerved across the road and smashed into my car."

Flack's car was virtually demolished. Storm's car was not badly damaged.

AIRPORT BURNS AT CHICAGO

CHICAGO, June 25.—(AP.)—Two hangars and 27 airplanes, 12 of them tri-motor passenger planes, were destroyed by fire at the Municipal Airport early today. The loss was estimated at more than $2,000,000.

Official announcement was made at the offices of the Universal Airlines, that all schedules, both passenger and mail planes, would be flown without interruption.

An elaborate machine shop and much equipment were destroyed.

MAYOR LEAVES ON VACATION

One of the last official acts of Mayor Charles H. Kline, before he left for seven weeks' tour of Spain, France and Italy, was to issue a proclamation making the period from June 29 to July 5 "Patriotic Week."

The Mayor, happy as a schoolboy before summer vacation, spent most of yesterday bidding goodbye to city employes and friends.

He referred to the ward chairmen and job hunters who have packed his office since word of his leaving was published. There are reports he is planning to slip to his summer home on Lake Erie and thence by the New York Central to the pier.

He will sail on the Conte Grande for Gibraltar. By a coincidence Prof. W. H. McMahon, now a Pittsburgh printer, who sailed with Kline on the latter's first European trip, plans to sail Thursday night at the same hour for England. Neither knew the other was going until yesterday.

His "Patriotic Week" proclamation was suggested by Vice President Curtis. The Mayor urged the display of the American flag during the entire week.

Arrested Cabbie Uses Capone's Name—In Vain

CHICAGO, June 25.—(AP.)—The name "Capone" has lost its terror for the cops.

Joseph Cavielli, a cab driver, thought he could frighten the policeman, who upbraided him yesterday for a traffic violation.

"I am Tony Capone," said the cabby, giving the officer the well known gangster glint. "Get away before something sad happens to you."

"So your name's Capone," said the officer. "Ain't that nice? I think you're wanted for something. Anyway, the name sounds familiar."

Judge Padded told Sig. Cavielli to pay a fine of $25.

that Rome doctors were consulted and an operation envisaged.

It mentions the various ceremonies which the Pope has attended, and the speeches he has made, as proof of his unimpaired vigor.

Among those inclined to take the Vatican denial as diplomatic, and destined to quell apprehensions, it was stated that yesterday's audiences had ended suddenly at 6 p. m., an unusually early hour, and that no explanations were given. Normally, the Pope receives right up to 9 p. m., when he dines.

Every good Catholic will pray for the speedy recovery of Pope Pius XI, but no special services are contemplated now, according to the Rev. W. J. McMullen, of St. Paul's Cathedral.

P. R. R. Seeks Part Of Sharpsville Line

HARRISBURG, June 25.—(AP.)—The Erie and Pittsburgh Railroad Company, the Western New York and Pennsylvania Railway Company and the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, lessee of the other two companies' lines, asked the Public Service Commission today for permission to extend their routes and service in Western Pennsylvania through purchase of two portions of the Sharpsville Railroad Company.

The Sharpsville already has an application before the commission for permission to abandon and discontinue its lines.

Byrd Leaves Albany With State's Medal

ALBANY, N. Y., June 25.—(AP.)—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd left Albany today for New York, wearing the state's distinguished service medal conferred upon him by Gov. Roosevelt.

Informed that Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith had landed at Harbor Grace in his east to west crossing of the Atlantic, the admiral, who has on his own record a trans-Atlantic crossing by air, expressed pleasure over the safety of the crew on the Southern Cross.

MANIAC WARNS 3 BY PHONE

NEW YORK, June 25.—(INS.)—"You are next—3 X."

This message to three different persons, telephoned from as many pay stations to a telegraph office in Jamaica, today was the latest clue being followed by police in their desperate attempt to run down the maniac killer in Queens.

As soon as these calls were reported detectives rushed to the pay stations, but the caller had fled.

This latest phase of the mystery in the slaying of two men in automobiles, parked on lonely roads, came after release of a suspect questioned yesterday. Witnesses were positive he was not the slayer.

Meanwhile the fine-combing of Manhattan and Queens continued in an effort to capture the desperate criminal who had murdered two men and attempted to attack their girl companions.

SPROUL ADVISED TO BRING BACK ALTAR RUG

Glory Barn Evangelist Given Until Noon to Return It, Else Face Formal Charges

Charges of taking without permission the pulpit and altar rug in his Glory Barn face John W. Sproul, evangelist and healer, today.

Announcement that the evangelist has until noon to return the articles, now said to be decorating his Homestead Glory Barn, was the most important development of the meeting in the former Glory Barn, at Shetland and Lincoln avenues, last night.

This was held by followers of the evangelist, who was convicted of passing "rubber checks," for the purpose of organizing the church into a permanent glory barn.

The meeting started smoothly enough, the scant audience of 25 listening so intently to Charles G. Mayer's potential plans for reorganization that the chances seemed slim that the meeting would duplicate the disorder which had prevailed in the church the night before.

ASKS ABOUT RUG

When Mayer, acting as chairman of a committee to reorganize the church, congratulated his handful of listeners upon the orderly meeting they had made possible, M. B. Fulton arose from the very last seat in the very last row and boomed in a voice so loud even the mice in the belfry heard him: "Where is the rug I purchased for the altar?"

After first explaining he had promised himself he wouldn't discuss anything that would make the meeting savor of the previous meeting, Mayer replied:

"Well, to be frank with you, the last time I saw the rug it was in Brother John's Homestead Glory Barn, but I have been told by A. C. Mercers, renting agent for the owners of the building, that unless Brother John returns it by noon tomorrow he will take action to get it."

Others, encouraged by Fulton's outburst, joined in the open discussion so fervently that Mayer announced he would have to toss in the sponge.

ANOTHER BOMBSHELL

Cecil R. Thomas, former manager for Sproul, and Mayer's choice for associate pastor of the proposed new church, although absent from the meeting, took his share of the mudslinging when another outraged middle-aged man in the audience exclaimed to Mayer:

"If Brother Tom was as near to God as you say he is, I wouldn't be out my $150, and if Sproul only gave him $20 a week salary, as you say he did, where did he get the $100 a month to pay on his new automobile?"

Following that bombshell Mayer did toss up the sponge, but just before saying the benediction he announced that of approximately 25 pledge cards passed through the audience only one had been returned with the pledge of a donation. He did not name the amount.

HOOVER REBUFF GIVEN SENATE REBELS

Executive Spurns Plan to Defer Treaty Action Until Fall; Hopes for Victory

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Almost a third of the Senate was in rebellion today against President Hoover's demand that members stay on the job in torrid Washington until the London naval treaty is ratified.

A round-robin containing 23 signatures and urging the President to allow the treaty to go over until after the November elections was communicated to the White House today, but met with rebuff.

The President, it was stated at the White House this morning, has "thoroughly canvassed" the situation and is convinced that a majority of the senators will support his immediate ratification plan.

Ambassador Dawes and Ambassador Morrow, both members of the American delegation at London, were among those consulted by the President during the day. Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, whose lukewarmness concerning the treaty has been a source of some embarrassment to the White House, also was consulted.

It was apparent, though, that the White House program is in a precarious state at best. It requires only a third of the Senate, 33 members if all are present and voting, to defeat ratification, or to defeat cloture if that is attempted.

$45,000,000 Naval Program for Britain

LONDON, June 25.—(INS.)—The British naval building program for 1930 was announced by First Lord of the Admiralty A. V. Alexander in the House of Commons today.

The program embraces three six-inch gun cruisers, one destroyer leader, eight destroyers, three submarines, four sloops, one mine net layer and one target towing vessel.

Total cost of the program, to be spread over a period of three years, was estimated at 9,000,000 pounds (about $45,000,000).

1 DEAD, 3 HURT STORM'S TOLL

One person was killed, three were injured and property damage amounting to thousands of dollars resulted from a terrific wind and electrical storm which swept over Western Pennsylvania yesterday.

The damage was particularly heavy in Washington, Westmoreland, Fayette and Lawrence counties.

Struck by lightning while descending a ladder to escape the storm, Curtis R. Tool, 40, was killed at Greensburg. Tool was picking cherries.

Lightning damaged the front porch of the home of Police Operator George Vogel, 2809 Pioneer avenue, last night.

Uniontown, Frances Hague, 13, was dazed as lightning struck her home.

One person was injured and two residences damaged as a severe electrical and rain storm struck

John A. Newton, 36, of Overbrook, sustained injuries when his automobile left the Roscoe road and crashed into an embankment. John Lefevre, 41, Fallowfield Township farmer, was hurt when a barn roof was blown off.

Testimony that her husband had sent kisses by telephone to a woman employed in a down town candy shop was given by Mrs. Jennie L. Lemmer, of 3336 Universal street, Sheraden, in a divorce action before Judge George V. Moore in Common Pleas Court today.

Mrs. Lemmer said that her husband, Charles F. Lemmer, beat her when he realized that she had overheard this osculatory conversation. Decision in the case will be rendered later.

amendments but Speaker Longworth upheld Johnson. Then Rankin said:

"Let 'er go."

That was done.

Mr. Hoover today conferred wih five Republican Congressmen on the legislation—Hoch, of Kansas; Cole, of Iowa; Reed, of New York; Strong, of Kansas and Fish, of New York.

State's Delegation May Hold Bill's Fate

WASHINGTON, June 25.—(AP.)—The Pennsylvania congressional delegation continued today to hold the down-stage position in the World War veterans' compensation or pension legislation drama.

Outstanding developments were:

A division on support of the veto President Hoover is expected to place on the bill.

Increased activity on the part of Secretary Mellon, who is contacting Pennsylvanians in the hope they will vote to sustain the veto. In this, he has the co-operation of Senator David A. Reed.

Indorsement of the so-called Swick substitute for the pending measure, which the Senate passed Monday.

An informal poll of the delegation disclosed that six members had indicated they would vote to sustain a veto, 10 had signified their intention of voting to override it, seven are in doubt and 12 absent.

Pinola, in a telephone conversation with Representative Chase, of Clearfield, past commander of the Pennsylvania Legion, said his organization would stand by its resolution at the last annual convention, in which the Rankin bill was indorsed. Representatives who have indicated they will vote to override a veto take the position they cannot break faith with the Legion.

ELOPERS DENY 'ROMANCE'

NEW YORK, June 25.—The knell of romantic love was officially sounded today by two young elopers at the St. Regis Hotel. They ran away from Pittsburgh to Butler, Pa., Monday, the bride taking only the clothes she wore and no hat. They came to New York yesterday with the same scanty wardrobe, and then the bride started to buy some clothes.

But it was nothing romantic at all, insisted Mrs. Ruth Einstein Half and Ioan Half, young Pittsburgh merchant, her new husband. They said:

"We just wanted to get married. What of it."

"Do you recommend elopement?"

"Oh, yes, exclaimed the bride. It's wonderful."

Shopping was the chief concern of both the bride and groom today. Mrs. Half explained:

"I ran away on one dress and no hat. I need clothes, you see."

The bride was a student of library work in Carnegie Institute of Technology, in Pittsburgh, when she decided to end it all and get married. Her home is in Kittanning, Pa.

The groom is in business in Pittsburgh where his parents, said to be wealthy, reside.

Ruth Einstein is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Einstein, of Kittanning, and Half is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph S. Half, of 5537 Darlington road.

White House Inventories Historic Wine Glasses

WASHINGTON, June 25.—(AP.)—Glasses that toasted off toasts to presidents long past went into storage this week.

Commercial packers counted the White House wine glasses—1,800—padded them carefully, placed them in barrels, nailed down the lids.

The reason—to make possible a count of the wine glasses by lots, instead of individually, in the annual June inventory of White House property.

Every article, however large, however small, in the White House has to be enumerated each year. Not even a broken dish can be disposed of or destroyed except under supervision of Col. Ulysses S. Grant, III, director of public buildings.

Thus it was that 10 years after prohibition found the historic wine glasses still occupying White House shelves, and having to be counted, goblet by goblet each June.

Then some one decided these brittle hang-overs of by-gone hospitalities could be counted barrel by barrel.

CHARGE PLOT IN STEEL MERGER

Eaton Group Alleges Fraud At Youngstown Hearing; Statement Takes All Day

YOUNGSTOWN, O., June 25.—(AP.)—A gigantic plot on the part of Bethlehem Steel Corporation and the officers of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company to consume the latter on unfair terms was charged today in the opening of a suit for permanent injunction to prevent merger of the concerns.

Attorney Luther S. Day, of Cleveland, legal general for a group of Youngstown stockholders opposed to the billion dollar merger, further charged the management of the Youngstown company with breach of duty, dereliction of duty, fraud, intentional fraud, concealment, and intentional breach of duty.

SAYS MERGER VOID

In an opening statement outlining the contention the Youngstown stockholders' meeting April 8, 1930, at which the merger was formally approved by more than two-thirds majority, was null and void, Attorney Day charged that part of important information withheld from the stockholders was the alleged fact that President Eugene Grace and other officers of Bethlehem Steel Corporation have been receiving from that corporation unjustified and unwarranted bonuses.

He charged that in the case of Grace the bonus reached the amount of $1,000,000 to $1,500,000 annually.

Day's statement was expected to consume all of today's four-hour session, and Newton D. Baker, of Cleveland, former Secretary of War in the Wilson administration, was expected to begin the answer of the defense tomorrow.

The Mahoning County Common Pleas Court, presided over by Judge David G. Jenkins, was filled to capacity.

TWO SUITS FILED

The trial involves two suits brought by Myron C. Wick, a large shareholder and the International Share Corporation, now merged into the Continental Shares Corporation with the Eaton-Otis group. The first suit is directed against the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company and the Bethlehem Corporation. The second is a suit brought by the same stockholders, but on behalf of all the shareholders and is directed against the two corporations and the directors of the Youngstown company. The second case is termed a derivate.

The pro-merger group has asserted that consolidation will be of mutual benefit because of the divergent products of the two companies and denied that the means of arranging the consolidation were questionable.

The merger was approved by Sheet and Tube stockholders April 8 by 58,000 more than the necessary two-thirds majority of the approximately 1,200,000 shares of common stock. The terms called for an exchange of one and one-third shares of Bethlehem common for one of Sheet and Tube. Since then a multitude of court actions have been filed and dissenting stockholders have announced they will demand cash for their holdings.

pating in the county poll to date reaches 52,409 with the latest tabulation, which continues the ratio of five votes for repeal for each vote for enforcement. The proportions of the total, which have remained unchanged for some time, are 77 per cent for repeal, 15 per cent for enforcement and 8 per cent for modification. The divisions are:

| | Men. | Women. | Total. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Enforcement | 4,529 | 3,641 | 8,170 |
| Modification | 2,566 | 1,473 | 4,039 |
| Repeal | 28,413 | 12,787 | 41,200 |

These figures show the strong participation by women in the poll. Their number constitutes slightly more than one-half of the total of men voters. Women voters favor repeal by a ratio of 3.5 to 1 over enforcement, and men voters favor repeal by a ratio of 6 to 1.

Veterans Bill Is Our Debt of Honor and Should Become Law

we promised them. Let us not begrudge them some small part of the indemnity that without them we would now be paying to Germany.

Gratitude is a lively sense of favors to come. It has little to do with favors that are past.

But there will be more wars if our internationalists have their way. There will be more calls to arms. There will be more promises.

So let us not default utterly on the promises we made before.

Let us pay the debt of honor, fulfill our sacred pledges, and pass the veterans bill.

We might as well realize that the ambition to run the affairs of the world, the ambition to control the finances of the world, the ambition to be president of the world, cost money, and lives too.

We cannot honorably evade obligations incurred and pledges made.

But if we want to be economical for the future, we can save a lot of money and a lot of lives and a lot of taxes and a lot of worries by following the injunctions of George Washington and keeping free from foreign entanglements.

PROTEST ARISES OVER DELAY ON RAIL-RIVER TERMINALS

COUNCIL PLAN SCORED AS MISTAKE

Rae Points Out Unwisdom Of Waiting Until Autumn For Bond Issue Sanction

Discovery was made today that a plan is afoot in Council to postpone action on the rail-river terminals until autumn, and to ask the people then to authorize a bond issue not only to pay for the terminals, but also to improve water facilities in Squirrel Hill and the East End. Councilman Robert Garland said he had been told such a proposal would be made at the Council meeting Friday.

The plan, 'nsofar as it involves postponement of action on the river terminals, brought an earnest protest from James Rae, president of the Chamber of Commerce. He said:

"It seems to me a mistake would be made if the city neglected to seize the opportunity immediately to acquire the Hays site for a terminal on the Monongahela River. For years we have been working for a nine-foot stage to Cairo and planning to develop facilities that would enable us to take full advantage of river transportation. The way to start is to start. We ought to do it, not next week, but now.

URGES ACTION

"The Hays site is a piece of property that can be prepared for use in a short time and at little expense. Let us secure this lease. Let us take, without further delay, this first step to prove that Pittsburgh is really interested in the development of navigation in the rivers as a means of providing the public an inexpensive means of transportation.

"Our railroad friends are very much interested in bringing about better development of facilities for interchange of freight between the rivers and the railroads. The time is ripe for going ahead with our program, and I feel that I speak for business men generally in opposing further postponement."

OPPOSES DELAY

Councilman Garland said he did not favor delay in the acquisition of the Hays site, and pointed out that $250,000 is already available for the river terminals, that amount having been "earmarked" in the finance committee as to be set aside for the purpose from councilmanic bond issue proceeds.

The Hays terminal, Garland said, can be developed with the money now available, provided it is leased and not bought outright. A rental of $32,500 a year is asked, while the cost, if the land is purchased, will be $650,000. At the Hays terminal it is proposed to handle bulky materials which do not require warehouses.

The other proposed terminal is on the Ohio River near the Manchester bridge.

Execution of Woman Delayed by Appeal

TRENTON, N. J., June 25.—(INS.)—Application for a writ of error on behalf of Mrs. Hattie Evans, recently convicted of the murder of her husband, Robert, in Lakehurst, was denied today in Chancery Court. This acts as a stay of execution until the Court of Appeals acts.

Mrs. Evans was convicted with Private Lester Underdown. No application has been made for Underdown. Both were sentenced to the electric chair.

Eckener Sees Little Value in Plane's Hop

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, June 25.—(INS.)—The flight of the Southern Cross, while a marvelous achievement, was little more than a stunt, in the opinion of Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the German dirigible Graf Zeppelin. He said:

"In the present stage of aircraft development, the dirigible remains the logical means of transportation for long distances."

Italy and France Patching Up Quarrel

PARIS, June 25.—(AP.)—Political circles here today attached great importance to indications that Italy and France are getting together again after months of obscurity and apprehensions over their mutual relations.

The necessity for Europe to avoid quarrelsome political discussions and to unite in finding a settlement of pressing economic problems is felt here to have influenced the situation.

Fuel Low, Ocean Fliers Conquer Fog, Land At Newfoundland

ings and congratulations of officials of the town, and making arrangements for supplies of fuel and oil, the fliers repaired to a hotel for their first real meal since leaving Ireland.

They looked tired, but otherwise in the best of health.

All were deafened from the 31 hours' steady roar of their three heavy motors. Questions to them had either to be written or shouted at the top of the questioner's lungs.

CREW HAPPY

It was the first successful East-to-West crossing of the Atlantic Ocean to Newfoundland, although the flight was the second westward crossing of the North Atlantic, the German fliers, Capt. Herman Koehl and Baron von Huenefeld, accompanied by Col. James Fitzmaurice, having completed the first in the Bremen in the spring of 1928, landing off the Labrador coast.

The Southern Cross' fuel supply became dangerously low as she battled severe head winds and wandered off her course in the dense fog.

The plane covered the 2,300 miles across the Atlantic Ocean in 31 hours 28 minutes. Capt. Kingsford-Smith had hoped his fuel supply would carry him all the way to New York in 34 hours.

The tired crew of the plane, disappointed though they were over their failure to make a nonstop flight through to New York, were happy in their achievement.

CALL FOR AID

John W. Stannage, radio operator of the Southern Cross, had been at the key constantly giving the world a running account of the flight.

While the Southern Cross was flying aimlessly in the fog Stannage tapped out a plea for aid:

"Anyone! Anyone! Send a machine above the fog to refuel us or direct us to the airfield at Harbor Grace.

"To the land station: Are we south, southwest or north or east of the field?

"Send machine above the clouds to us."

Just previous to this the Southern Cross told of a "very bad fog all night" and "trouble with the compass."

A radiogram from St. Johns, New Brunswick, at 2:15 a. m., told of the Southern Cross passing Cape Race. An hour prior to the receipt of that message the Southern Cross had been making frantic efforts to get in touch with the radio station on the cape in an effort to get her compass bearings.

RADIO FADES

Just after 2:15 o'clock all radio stations in Newfoundland and along the New England coast, which previously had been in communication with the plane, reported they were unable to hear the fliers' radio.

From 2:15 on up to 4:20 o'clock this morning no direct report had been received from the Southern Cross. Previous communications with the plane indicated her radio was weakening.

After passing over Newfoundland, the Australian commander of the flight, saw that his fuel was low.

TURN BACK TO LAND

Reluctantly, though they were dead tired, the crew agreed it would be best to turn back, and the big plane, which has conquered air trails of the Pacific and North Atlantic oceans, was headed for Harbor Grace.

Capt. Kingsford-Smith radioed a message ahead. The signals were becoming fainter as the batteries grew weak.

He asked that 500 gallons of gas and oil be ready for him at Harbor Grace airport.

Arriving over Harbor Grace, the Southern Cross circled at reduced speed, waiting for ground mists to clear so that the airport would be visible for a landing.

Kingsford-Smith and Stannage were accompanied on the flight by Evert Van Dyke, pilot, and Capt. J. Patrick Saul, navigator.

NEW YORK AWAITS FLIERS

NEW YORK, June 25.—(INS.)—Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith, daring Australian aviator, who today completed a successful east-to-west crossing of the Atlantic Ocean with three companions in the monoplane Southern Cross, is expected here tomorrow.

Full preparations have been made at both Roosevelt and Curtiss Fields on Long Island to receive the four gallant airmen at the conclusion of their interrupted flight from Port Marnock, Ireland, to New York.

"WELL DONE"

Dr. James E. Kimball, meteorological expert of the United States weather bureau here, who was most pessimistic over the outcome of the flight because of poor weather conditions, was eloquent in his praise of Kingsford-Smith's achievement.

"The flight was well prepared and beautifully executed," Kimball said. "The trip showed the obstacles that still lie in the way of trans-Atlantic airplane service, particularly in the matter of headwinds and blinding fog, but because of these handicaps the flight was all the more a tremendous achievement."

FLIER'S FIANCEE VERY HAPPY

LONDON, June 25.—(INS.)—Miss Mary Powell, fiancee of Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith, was unutterably happy today when she received word that her famous flier had safely spanned the Atlantic Ocean and landed the Southern Cross at Harbor Grace, N. F., according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Melbourne, Australia.

"I played bridge last night to prevent worrying," she said, "But, oh!—what terrible things I did!"

"I couldn't refuse to let him make the attempt. It was the only big thing left for him to do.

"He promised me that once the Atlantic flight was done, he wouldn't undertake any more big flights."

Builder of Plane Sends Greetings

NEW YORK, June 24.—(AP.)—Anthony H. G. Fokker, who designed and built the Southern Cross at Hasbrouck Heights, N. J., five years ago, today sent this message to Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith at Harbor Grace, N. F.:

"Your wise command of the sturdy old ship has resulted in the first westward crossing of the Atlantic to an American airport."

LOST PLANE OF GRAHAM FOUND

Flier Sought for Months Believed to Have Died In Mountain Storm

LOS ANGELES, June 25.—(AP.)—Discovery of a wrecked airplane last night in the mountain wilds of Western Utah was expected today by Western Air Express officials to clear away the mystery surrounding the disappearance, January 10 of Maurice Graham, air mail pilot.

Officials of the company said they were certain the wrecked plane was the one in which Graham started on his last trip with mail from Los Angeles to Salt Lake City.

When the plane was discovered near Cedar City, Utah, by two youthful shepherds, Ward Nortensen and Elburn Orton, James Carson, Graham's flying buddy, rushed to the scene from Ely, Nev. He later reported to Western Air officials that an unopened parachute stenciled "Maurice Graham" had been found beside the plane. Carson said he found in the cockpit a jacket worn by Graham on his last flight.

PLANE NOT DAMAGED

Both Carson and the shepherds discovering the plane reported that it was not badly damaged. The mail compartment, they said, was unbroken and locked. The wings and one wheel had been broken, the pilot reported, apparently when the plane nosed into a soft snowdrift on the mountainside.

Carson expressed belief that Graham was uninjured in the crash.

Officials at Cedar City immediately established a guard over the plane and residents of the region organized a search for traces of Graham, who, they believe, must have perished in the storm which raged at the time of his disappearance.

Graham had taken off the Las Vegas, Nev., field about 10 p. m. the night of January 10. A plane, thought to have been his, later was heard over St. George, Utah, and Leeds, traveling in the direction of Cedar City in the face of a howling blizzard.

The storm, increasing in intensity throughout the night, was the worst which has visited Utah in years.

Since Graham disappeared the entire region has been searched by railroad companies, commercial and Army pilots as well as hundreds of residents of the region.

William Tate, Western Air official, arranged to fly to the place where the plane was found from Los Angeles today.

REWARD WITHDRAWN

Shortly after the disappearance of Graham rumors were circulated that his plane had carried registered mail valued at nearly a quarter of a million dollars, but these reports were denied by postal authorities who said the cargo was worth about $2,000.

A reward of $5,000 was posted by the Western Air Express, but this was withdrawn after 60 days. Hundreds joined in the hunt for the flier.

Strikers Blamed In Home Bombing

PITTSTON, Pa., June 25.—(INS.)—The home of Charles Girattino, a miner, was dynamited here today, apparently as a warning to him and his son who had reported to work after the strike of Pittston Coal Company employes was ordered by the general grievance committee.

The dynamiting is the first in the strike, which started Saturday after the general grievance committee decided the company, employing 15,000 miners, was not equalizing the work at its various collieries.

3 Hurt in Explosion Of Bootleg Alcohol

PHILADELPHIA, June 25.—(AP.)—Alcohol stored in what police called a temporary warehouse for bootleggers exploded here today, blowing off the roof. Three firemen were injured.

Passersby saw smoke issuing from the building and turned in an alarm. Soon after firemen entered the building with hose, the blast occurred. Three lesser explosions followed.

Man Held as Three Charge Labor Fraud

Muriel Zimmerman, 34, of 314 Princeton place, was held for further investigation by Magistrate Charles Pappale in East End Court today, after three men testified that they had given him $17, a suit of clothes and a watch in exchange for employment. When the jobs did not develop the men complained to police.

MILK PLEDGED NEEDY FAMILY

The five young children of Mr. and Mrs. Antonio Panzini, of 54 Marion street, if an investigation shows need, will be supplied with milk through the Welfare Fund, the agents of the fund announced today; even if the family had used irregular tactics to obtain free milk from two different organizations. The statement said:

"The children who need this milk should not be allowed to suffer."

The Panzini children range in age from eight months to eight years.

Their supply has been canceled by the Pittsburgh Milk and Ice Association and by the Soho Milk Station, municipal dispensary, because the Panzini family had accepted free milk from both organizations without the officials knowing about it.

When these officers did discover the fact, they shut off the milk that the Panzini children had awaited every day as virtually their only nourishment.

Panzini can't keep the family in food. He is a laborer and for months has worked only one or two days a week—this week not a day.

Southern Cross Spanned Sea In 31½ Hours

NEW YORK, June 25.—(INS.)—Here are the statistics of Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith's successful east-to-west crossing of the Atlantic Ocean from Port Marnock, Ireland, to Harbor Grace, Newfoundland:

Distance—Approximately 2,300 miles.

Time of take-off—11:25 p. m. Pittsburgh time Monday.

Time of arrival—6:53 a. m. Pittsburgh time Wednesday.

Elapsed time—31 hours 28 minutes.

Average speed—Approximately 73 miles an hour.

Four Nations Represented In Ocean Plane's Crew

NEW YORK, June 25.—(INS.)—Four nations were represented in the successful trans-Atlantic flight of the monoplane Southern Cross.

Maj. Charles Kingsford-Smith, veteran of many long distance flights including a trans-Pacific hop from California to Australia, is regarded as Australia's premier airman.

Everet Van Dyk, Kingsford-Smith's chief pilot, is Dutch. He is a regular airman of the Royal Dutch Air Line, with 560,000 miles of flying behind him.

Capt. John P. Saul, navigator, is an Irishman, a native of Dublin, chosen by Capt. Kingsford-Smith as a gesture to Ireland.

J. W. Stannage, 25, wireless operator, is the youngest of the crew. He is an Englishman, radio operator aboard ship for five years.

PETRONI WAITS FIREWORKS

Morrey Petroni, Federal street merchant, with his permit on display, is awaiting a shipment of fireworks today.

The fight Petroni waged against the Bureau of Building Inspection to secure his permit without being recommended by his ward chairman, John O'Donnell, ended yesterday when Director of Public Safety James M. Clark unconditionally granted the permit.

Notwithstanding the fact that the Mayor summed up Petroni's charges, of ward boss control of permits as "silly," councilmanic inquiry into the case is a possibility.

George Kambach, chairman of the public safety committee, said that he would inquire into it.

Southern Cross Navigator's Father Dying

DUBLIN, June 25.—(INS.)—A touch of pathos mingled today with the great joy felt over the arrival of the monoplane Southern Cross at Harbor Grace, Newfoundland.

News of the safe arrival was conveyed to the father of Capt. John P. Saul, navigator of the trans-ocean plane, who is seriously ill at his home here.

The elder Saul is not expected to live throughout the day. He received with great satisfaction the news of his son's achievement.

FLIERS CHECK 'BLIND' PLANE

DAYTON, O., June 25.—(AP.)—Capt. William C. Ocker and Lieut. C. J. Crane, of Duncan and Brooks Field, Texas, respectively, making a "blind flight" from San Tntonio to Washington, expect to leave Wright Field tomorrow for the national capital. They arrived from Scott Field, Illinois, last night and spent today checking over their instruments.

Capt. Ocker, who termed the trip an unofficial test, said he had experienced no great difficulty, but strayed a few times from his course and had to be righted by Crane. Ocker and Crane said they believe the device for "blind flying" will prove a success.

It is a flight integrator, a model airplane mounted on the instrument board. It combines the functions of a bank indicator, inclinometer and turn indicator.

Pluto, New Planet, Held 'Kidnaped Baby World'

PASADENA, Cal., June 25.—(INS.)—Pluto, the new planet, is a kidnaped baby world. Old Sol and his sons, Neptune and Uranus, did the job.

Such was the scientific conviction of astronomers here today—a romantic sequel to discovery of the planet X by Dr. V. M. Slipher and his staff at the Lowell Observatory, Flagstaff, Ariz., last winter.

Pluto apparently wandered through space, a cast-off, cold world belonging to some other universe until, during an unknown era, the sun, Neptune and Uranus reached out with their immense gravitational arms and captured it.

The exertion from that celestial crime still is visible in the peculiar motions of Neptune and Uranus.

Other astonishing facts have just come to light about Pluto. It has the only path which cuts inside that of another planet. Its orbit is tipped 17 degrees from the usual plane. On January 5, 1980, Pluto will cut inside the path of Neptune and be closer to the Earth than Neptune can ever come.

UPHOLD CIVIL RIGHTS, STATE BAR TOLD

President Urges Lawyers In Convention to Guard Fellow Citizens' Liberty

BEDFORD SPRINGS, Pa., June 25.—(AP)—Lawyers, as individual members of the legal profession, owe it to their fellow citizens to see that they secure the blessings of civil and political liberty, Bernard J. Meyers, Lancaster, president of the Pennsylvania Bar Association, told the organization's thirty-sixth anual convention here today.

The convention, which will continue until Friday noon, opened with attorneys and judges from nearly every county in the commonwealth present.

After reviewing the accomplishments of the association in its 35 years of existence, Myers discussed the type of men who are lawyers of Pennsylvania saying:

"The requirements for admission to the bar in this state, are generally conceded to be the highest and best of all the states."

CITES CIVIL FREEDOM

Referring to his statement that it is the duty of attorneys to uphold civil and political liberty, Meyers said:

"It is not sufficient that we strive to advance the science of jurisprudence; promote administration of justice; secure proper legislation; uphold the honor and dignity of the bar and perpetuate the history of the profession."

"Social and economic and industrial development of our nation is entirely due to the fact that civil and political liberty has been developed to higher degree here than anywhere on the face of the globe."

Certain "absolute" rights "are inherent and inalienable," the speaker said, listing them as personal security, personal liberty and private property. He said it was the lawyers' duty to see that they are preserved inviolate for all the people.

POINTS TO INFLUENCE

Meyers quoted the report of special committee on special legal ethics as follows:

1—The lawyer as a citizen by virtue of his education, his connection with the courts of law, etc., is to a large extent distinguished from other men, being looked up to as an example, and his influence for good will be in proportion to the uprightness of his life.

ATTITUDE TO JUDGES

3—He should oppose nomination, election or appointment of those unfit for judicial offices and strive for retention in office of competent and satisfactory judges irrespective of political affiliations.

4—In exercise of functions of citizenship, the lawyer should always be careful to act, and to encourage others to act, in strict conformity to law and high morality.

5—He should avoid even appearance of acting contrary to law or good morals.

6—He should not in the temple of justice declaim panegyrics upon the law and its majesty, and elsewhere act, or appear to act, in defiance to or disregard of its mandates.

Following the president's address, the meeting listened to committee reports.

The so-called "domination" of political organizations in the appointment and election of judges likely will be one of the major topics of discussion at the convention.

Some association members are understood to be ready to press resolutions proposing referenda of the State Bar Association for vacancies upon the Supreme and Superior courts and possibly to hold such elections in partisan primaries and general elections.

Negro Hit by Train, Goes to Hospital

John Green, Negro, of 544 Hogans street, Turtle Creek, was struck by a Pennsylvania Railroad passenger train at the Brinton crossing, East Pittsburgh, late yesterday. He was taken to the Braddock General Hospital.

NAME HOSPITAL DIRECTORS

Six directors of the West Penn Hospital were re-elected for three-year terms at the annual meeting of life and contributing members of the hospital in the Commonwealth Trust Company board room yesterday. Those re-elected are Michael L. Benedum, Arthur E. Braun, Howard Heinz, James H. Lockhart, Mrs. W. H. Normecutt and Mrs. John Woodwell.

Mrs. J. Garfield Houston and James C. Rea were elected to fill vacancies on the board, bringing the membership up to its full quota of 21. The reports of the treasurer and the secretary were received.

Man's Purse Taken On Crosstown Car

E. C. Gerwig, who has offices in the Commonwealth Building, reported to city detectives last midnight that his wallet containing $10 had been stolen from him while he was riding a Crosstown-Bedford street car last night. The wallet also contained his automobile driver's license, he told police.

George Hoasick, a salesman, residing at the Seventh Avenue Hotel, complained to police that his sample case containing woolen samples had been stolen from his automobile while it was parked at Diamond street and Cherry way.

Heat-Deranged Man Wears Only Shoes

PHILADELPHIA, June 25.—(INS.)—A man who identified himself as Daniel Sheehan, 30, of Boston, today was in the Philadelphia General Hospital for observation following his arrest in the early morning hours while strolling in a dazed condition clad only in a pair of shoes. Police found his clothes on a dump near where he was taken into custody. They believe the excessive heat temporarily deranged the man.

Saw-Tailed Hosts Of Caterpillars Ravage Land

TONOPAH, Nev., June 25.—(AP)—Destroying vegetation as they go, green-bodied caterpillars with a saw-like tail today were advancing like an army between Luning and Mina, Nev. The tail cuts twigs of greasewood and sagebrush and locomotion is provided by 15 legs on each side.

Farm experts say they never heard of such a visitor before. One motorist who drove through the "army" asserted it stretched 75 miles and was advancing with incredible speed. Where the pest originated is a mystery.

MOTHER'S RIVAL SHOT; HUNT BOY

PHILADELPHIA, June 25.—Police today were searching for Jacob Lerman, 17, charged with shooting and seriously wounding Mrs. Sadie Greenburg, 45-year-old widow, at her home, allegedly because he thought the woman and his own mother might be sharing his father's attentions. The father, Harry Lerman, 46, who, it is charged, was in the Greenburg home at the time, was arrested and is being held as a material witness.

Mrs. Greenburg was taken to a hospital, where it was reported she probably would recover from a bullet wound in the head. She refused to identify young Lerman as her assailant when questioned.

Urges Germans Cut Production of Hogs

BERLIN, June 25.—(AP)—Because young Germans are keen for sports and pay attention to their waistlines, East Prussian farmers have been advised by Deputy Carl Breybe to cut down the number of hogs raised for market and to raise them for meat, not fat.

TAKEN FOR RIDE BUT UNHARMED

WASHINGTON, June 25.—(INS.)—Shanghaied by three men in a large automobile Monday near his home in Chester, Pa., John M. Thomas, 20, was sent home today none the worse for his experience.

According to the story he told police, his captors stopped their car near his home at 2300 Upland street and invited him for a ride. He was pounced upon immediately and told he was going to be taken for a "ride."

His captors traveled about 50 miles, then stopped for the night at a farmhouse. In the morning, the journey was continued. When the machine reached here last night, the men dumped their prisoner unceremoniously into the street and told him to "beat it."

Thomas declares one of his captors was a man he had sent to prison two years ago.

3 HURT AS BUS HITS AUTOS

Crashing against a pole at Tokio street and Frankstown avenue, a Wilkinsburg bus last night veered and damaged two automobiles, injuring two passengers on the bus and a motorist in one of the automobiles. The injured are Miss Anna Haines, 35, of 7710 Tioga street, and William R. Thompson, 77, of 7696 Susquehanna street, passengers in the bus, and John Lefkowitz, 42, of 8312 Frankstown avenue.

The bus, Wilkinsburg bound, was driven by James S. Clark, of R. D. 1, Wilkinsburg. After striking the pole, the bus hit a car owned by Lefkowitz, which in turn was shoved against the machine of William Stewart, 8130 Frankstown avenue.

Lefkowitz suffered a fractured rib and severe body bruises. The others were but slightly injured. All were treated at the Pittsburgh Hospital. Clark was arrested.

Golden Sec Pale Dry

Three Famous Clicquot Ginger Ales

Make the flavor test described below

TODAY, in America, there are three distinct types of ginger ale flavor, and Clicquot Club makes all three. There is Golden, widely acclaimed for its energy-building qualities; Pale Dry, known to millions for its fine mellow flavor; and Sec, the dry ginger ale of "vintage" excellence.

Many people have never known more than one ginger ale flavor. Perhaps there is one of these flavors that you have not tried. A flavor that will delight you more than any you have ever known before.

Make the taste test

Because so many people do not know these three distinctive flavors, we have urged them to make the simple taste test described below.

Just go to your dealer and get a bottle of Clicquot Club Pale Dry, a bottle of Clicquot Golden, and a bottle of Sec. Take them home with you and chill them. Pour out a glassful of each and taste them carefully one by one. Let your taste decide which flavor you like best.

One of these ginger ales will surely appeal to you more than the other two. Perhaps it will be one that you have never tried before. But, whatever the result, you will be sure to discover in one of these three a flavor that will completely delight you.

Pour out one glassful each of Clicquot Golden, Clicquot Sec, and Clicquot Pale Dry. Taste them one by one and let your taste decide which of these famous ginger ales suits you best.

These three ginger ales are blended to three different formulas, and the secret of these formulas is known only to Clicquot Club. And as an additional aid to finer flavor, all three ginger ales are aged six months in the making. This process, too, is Clicquot's secret.

Purity guaranteed

In making Clicquot Club ginger ales, only the finest ingredients are used. Pure table sugar, fine Jamaica ginger root, syrups of real fruit flavors and water from deep rock springs. Clicquot gives you purity and goodness that are unequalled. And these ginger ales all come to you only in clean new bottles—bottles never used before.

At your dealer's

Clicquot Club Ginger Ales are on sale at your dealer's today. Buy a bottle of all three and make the test we have described. Your taste will tell you that no finer ginger ales were ever made.

ROWAND DINNER GIFTS PRIZED

Wit and humor veneered the darts which sped home at the gridiron luncheon of court house attaches and members of the bar yesterday in William Penn Hotel. It was a dinner to Judge H. H. Rowand, with District Attorney Andrew T. Park presiding.

More than 50 presents were distributed and each was accompanied by a jibe at some recent occurrence. Judge Rowand, known for his heavy sentences, received an hour-glass from "contented prisoners." The bar association presented him with an eight-day clock.

Judge Frank P. Patterson, before whom Al Forney was tried on a slot machine charge and acquitted, was presented with a slot machine without the inner workings. Judge James H. Gray, who discharged the jury in the Barkowski murder trial, was the recipient of a huge firecracker from the jury with the hope that it would elevate him from the bench. "Philip Fazio," Clairton beer runner, acquitted of the barrel murder, sent Assistant District Attorney Earl R. Jackson a barrel and requested him to jump into it. State Senator James J. Coyne got a bazzoo and City Treasurer Roy D. School a tin horn from Mayor Charles H. Kline.

Hindenburg Sends Lutherans Regrets

AUGSBERG, Germany, June 25.—(AP.)—President Von Hindenburg telegraphed his regrets to the Lutheran Church authorities saying he would be unable to attend the closing celebration today of the quadri-centennial celebration of the Augsberg confession.

BODY OF NURSE FOUND IN LAKE

CHICAGO, June 25.—(INS.)—The body of a murdered woman her mouth strapped with adhesive tape and her head tightly wrapped with cheese cloth, was taken from Lake Michigan today.

The woman's purse, which had been strapped to her with the same kind of tape which fastened her mouth, yielded papers which identified her as Mrs. Ida May Galbraith, 65, a practical nurse.

An investigation showed that there was no water in the lungs, indicating that drowning was not the cause of death. An abrasion over the right eye, apparently caused by a blow, led police to conclude that the woman was slain, perhaps by some demented person.

Mrs. Galbraith, it was learned, had gone to a motion picture theater last night.

SOCIAL SERVICE STUDY TO OPEN

More than 100 Pittsburgh school teachers are expected to enroll this week for the fifth social service summer course which opens Monday at the Pennsylvania College for Women, sponsored by the college and the Henry C. Frick Educational Commission.

The teachers will be guests of the commission at the college. The course will last three weeks with Miss Martha C. Hoyt, corresponding secretary of the commission, as inspirational leader and Miss Cora Helen Coolidge, president of the college, hostess.

FLEES HOSPITAL IN SCANT GARB

Clad only in trousers and shoes, said to have been smuggled in by a woman, Robert Kunkle, 22, wanted as a witness by county detectives, walked out of the Suburban General Hospital early today, Bellevue police reported.

He had been shot May 29 in a quarrel at the boarding house of Mrs. Mary Mills, of 246 Grant avenue, Bellevue. According to Chief Daniel Rosemeier, of the Bellevue police, he was to appear today as a witness against Ray Fosher, 28, who has been in jail charged with the shooting.

County detectives at once began a hunt for Kunkle. Bellevue police have his clothes, taken from him when he was committed to the hospital.

GIVEN MEDAL IN LIFE SAVING

DUBOIS, Pa., June 25.—Floyd K. Steiner, an installer and repairman here for the Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania, has been presented with the Theodore N. Vail medal in recognition of his initiative and proficiency in the application of first aid methods, which resulted in saving the life of a man overcome by smoke during a fire last September 3.

F. K. Steiner

The presentation was made during a luncheon at Moore Farm, near here, in the presence of Mayor J. B. Pollum, prominent citizens of Dubois, and a group of telephone officials.

The medal was presented by F. J. Chesterman, vice president of the Bell company, who, in a brief address, commended Steiner for his public service. Mayor Pollum also congratulated him.

Several months ago Steiner received the President's medal of the National Safety Council for the same act, which today was further rewarded by presentation of the Vail medal.

WILL AID BOYS IN COURT

To work with wayward boys brought into Morals Court, the Y. M. C. A. has secured the services of Louis Kolakoski, University of Pittsburgh sociology instructor, for the summer months.

Louis Kolakoski

Kolakoski has done considerable social work with the Kingsley House and has done special research work in psychiatry.

For years a "Y" worker has been attending Morals Court daily to guard the interests of minor boys. Often the lads are paroled to them.

The MOVIETEST is a delightful and fascinating game that every member of the family will enjoy. It has nothing to do with getting into the movies, or having pictures made of yourself, or anything like that. As a matter of fact, you need never have seen a movie in your life.

The MOVIETEST is purely a matter of mental ability. There are thirty clever cartoons representing the TITLES of thirty motion pictures. Your job is to name the movie title suggested by each of the thirty cartoons. Everybody has an equal chance—the school boy as well as the college professor. No tricks. No catches. Just a little personal effort on your part.

The Sun-Telegraph offers $5,000 in CASH PRIZES — fifty prizes in all. YOU CAN WIN TWO OF THEM or a total of $1,500—and it won't take an hour's time. Just a slight personal effort on your part.

Here's the Idea of This New Contest

Notice the cartoon printed above. It represents, or in some way suggests, the title of a familiar motion picture. The correct title is included in the list of titles printed under the cartoon. Can you tell what the correct title is?

The Sun-Telegraph's great $5,000 CASH PRIZE MOVIETEST consists of 30 cartoons similar to this one. With each one there is a similar list of titles that includes the correct title for that particular cartoon. Remember, THERE IS ONLY ONE CORRECT TITLE FOR EACH CARTOON.

The Sun-Telegraph will award $5,000 in cash to contestants submitting correct or nearest correct lists of 30 titles for the cartoons.

The cartoon you see above is just a sample cartoon. The Movietest consists of 30 similar cartoons. YOU NEED NOT WAIT FOR ALL 30 CARTOONS TO APPEAR IN THE PAPER. You can get the complete set of 30 cartoons immediately simply by mailing the coupon on the right.

You compete against no one for subscriptions. Neatness doesn't count. No letters to write. No need to color or decorate the cartoons or send in fancy packages.

"KONJOLA BEST MEDICINE I EVER TOOK," SAYS MAN

Is Enthusiastic Over Results Obtained Through New and Different Medicine.

"There is the medicine I should have had in the first place." Times without number this statement has appeared in the written or verbal endorsements of Konjola from men and women who have found their first and only relief through its use.

MR. CLARENCE M. SMITH

"Why is it that Konjola succeeds when all else tried has failed?" This, and many other questions are answered daily by the Konjola Man, who is at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh. Call upon him there. Ask questions. Delve into the record of Konjola—find out what it has done, is doing, and will do. Then decide to put Konjola to the test.

Konjola works quickly, yet thoroughly, just as it did in the case of Mr. Clarence Smith, 805 Broad Street, Washington, near Pittsburgh, who found relief in this great medicine. Mr. Smith said:

"I suffered for a long time with pains across my back. Stomach pains were often so severe that it felt as though knives were being driven into my body. I was badly constipated, and bloated terribly after meals. My whole system in general was rundown, and I was badly worried.

"A ten-day treatment of Konjola gave me wonderful results. The gas no longer accumulates after meals and I am no longer subject to bloating spells. Back pains are things of the past, and I am free from constipation. I never find laxatives necessary. I am stronger and feel better in every way than I have for a long time. I think Konjola is the best medicine I have ever taken."

It is such records as that given by Mr. Smith that have made Konjola the most widely discussed medicine in America today.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, where he is meeting the public daily, explaining the merits of this new and different medicine. FREE SAMPLES GIVEN by the Konjola Man. Konjola is sold in all Dow Drug Stores in Pittsburgh and vicinity.

CRIME AUTHORS GIVE READERS FAIR PLAY

Cheap Tricks Abandoned, Says Author of Mystery Tale in Sun-Telegraph

The bigger the thrill and the colder the chill, the more honorable is the author of your detective stories.

For if you would believe Arthur Hoerl, famous criminologist and author of the "Master Mysteries" which will appear in the Sun-Telegraph beginning next Monday, a new code of ethics has sprung up among mystery writers wherein they endeavor to give the public all the breaks. He explains:

"All real success in writing thrill stories comes from not cheating the reader of the excitement he's looking for.

"There ought to be just as much system to this business of writing as in the butter and egg industry, and authors are coming more and more to recognize that there are definite requirements and set rules to give the public what they want.

RULES FOR WRITERS

"Cross-word puzzles offer keen competition to the mystery story, and movies have done their share in making the average reader wise to the old tricks. Unless writers obey set rules for giving the reader the most for his money, the bottom is bound to drop out of the detective story market."

The 10 rules Mr. Hoerl observes in his writing are:

1. Nearly always there must be a murder. No other crime is important enough.

2. If there is a murder there must, of course, be a murderer.

3. The murderer must be rational. Having a crazy murderer is cheating.

4. The reader must have an equal opportunity with the detective to solve the mystery.

5. All clues must be plainly stated and described somewhere in the story. The detective must not have tips and information which he keeps to himself.

6. The murder must be solved by logical deduction. An accident or a last minute confession are taking advantage of the breathless reader. They leave him feeling baffled and with the knowledge he's had a raw deal.

7. The detective must never turn out to be the murderer himself.

8. The murderer must never be revealed as a professional killer, a hired gunman or a thug. It's too simple, evidently, nowadays according to stories from Chicago, to hire such a villain for a little money and the reader has a right to expect something much more complicated for his time and perhaps his money.

9. The murder must not on the last couple of pages turn out to be a suicide or an accident. That is the worst bilk of all for the hard working reader.

10. And finally, the murderer must be someone who has played a prominent part in the story from the beginning. It's not right to drag in at the last minute somebody who just passed the scene of the crime in the second or third chapter and remained in darkness until spotlighted in the closing scene by the master mind.

2 DEAD, 2 HURT IN AIR CRASHES

WICHITA, Kas., June 25.—(AP)—Leopold C. Schumacher of Palo Alto, Cal., was killed and W. S. Edwards, Brooklyn, N. Y., was injured critically last night when their biplane crashed near here.

Papers in their pockets revealed they were recently students at Leland Stanford and had graduated from a Palo Alto flying school.

PRINCETON, N. J., June 25.—(AP)—William Corless, 22-year-old bank clerk, was killed and Walter Reidner, 22, of Kingston, was injured in the crash of their airplane near Kingston.

Hawaii Suffrage Bill Goes to Hoover

WASHINGTON, June 25.—(INS)—Women's suffrage would be authorized in the territory of Hawaii under a House resolution passed by the Senate.

Another House resolution passed by the Senate would authorize payment of salaries at the rate of $1,000 a session for representatives in the Hawaiian legislature. Both measures now go to President Hoover for signature.

MELLON BACKS GERMAN BONDS

WASHINGTON, June 25.—(INS)—Secretary of the Treasury Mellon today denied that the sale of German reparations bonds in the United States results in an intermingling of reparations with war debts, through which allied nations could seek cancellation of their obligations to this country.

He made his statement to the House Banking Committee while testifying on the resolution of Representative McFadden (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, the committee's chairman prohibiting national and state Federal Reserve member banks from buying the bonds.

McFadden has charged that the $300,000,000 reparation bonds authorized, the world bank and the Young plan all were contrived to draw the United States into the League of Nations and to pave the way for cancellation of allied war debts.

Admits He Killed Neighbor Over Board in Yard

ALTOONA, Pa., June 25.—(AP)—The throwing of a board from one yard to another precipitated an argument that resulted in the death of Frank M. Gates, 74, and the subsequent holding of Harry Lingenfelter, 49, on a charge of murder.

Police said Lingenfelter told them he had accused Gates of throwing the board into his yard, and when Gates denied it, Lingenfelter shot him. He then reloaded his revolver and emptied it into Gates' body again, he said.

JAPANESE PLAN AIR LINE TO U. S.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 25.—(AP)—Tuyoji Keneko, acting consul-general, announced here today that a $15,000,000 Japanese company, already financed, probably would be operating a 68-hour San Francisco-Tokio dirigible service before the autumn of 1931.

Keneko said the company already had begun negotiations for purchase of three Zeppelins, costing $1,500,000 each. Acquisition of a large tract near Tokio recently was authorized.

Plans call for carrying mail, 40 passengers, baggage and crew on each dirigible.

NEW RUM ROW OFF CAPE MAY

PHILADELPHIA, June 25.—(INS)—Hijackers who demolished the rum yacht Daisy T. after sacking her of choice liquors valued at $500,000 were henchmen of a million-dollar rum-smuggling syndicate with headquarters in this city.

This was the theory of federal investigators, who returned from Delaware Bay with the further intelligence that a new rum row has been established 75 miles off Cape May.

Eighteen ships are anchored at that point, and it is to this fleet that the ill fated yacht made her maiden trip less than a week after she had been commissioned at Brooklyn, N. Y.

Several suspects are under surveillance in connection with the pirating, for authorities have been unable to find a trace of her crew. It is believed that six men were murdered by the boarding party and their weighted bodies thrown into the bay.

Hay Wagon Upsets, Kills Farm Worker

HARRISBURG, June 25.—(AP)—Elias Stahr, 66, employed on a farm near Clear Springs, York County, was crushed to death beneath a hay wagon as it overturned. The wagon, loaded with several tons of hay, upset when a wheel struck a rut in the field.

How One Woman Lost 20 Pounds of Fat

Lost Her Double Chin
Lost Her Prominent Hips
Lost Her Sluggishness
Gained Physical Vigor
Gained in Vivaciousness
Gained a Shapely Figure

If you're fat—remove the cause! KRUSCHEN SALTS contain the 6 mineral salts your body organs, glands and nerves must have to function properly.

When your vital organs fail to perform their work correctly—your bowels and kidneys can't throw off that waste material—before you realize it—you're growing hideously fat!

Then add a teaspoonful of KRUSCHEN SALTS in a glass of hot water every morning. Caution: Naturally, do not overeat and in 3 weeks get on the scales and note how many pounds of fat have vanished.

Notice also that you have gained in energy—your skin is clearer—your eyes sparkle with glorious health, you feel invigorated in body, keener in mind. KRUSCHEN SALTS will give any fat person a joyous surprise.

LITTLE STORIES OF FAST SUCCESSES

DOROTHY MACKAILL

Newsstand girl in Hull, England, "glorified-girl" in Ziegfeld's Follies, now the idol of screen-struck fans. All in the space of four brief years.

A fast shot of the quick success of Dorothy Mackaill. Success . . . because she gave a new thrill. Quick, because of nature-born charm.

That goes, too, for another young star, OLD GOLD. Three years ago, unknown. Today, America's fastest growing cigarette.

OLD GOLD gave a new taste-thrill to jaded palates . . . and a new comfort to sensitive throats through tobaccos that nature had made smoother, mellower, free from all irritants. When a girl, or a cigarette . . . is blessed by nature, a new star rises . . . and fast.

IN 1926, THE ONLY 'EXTRAS' DOROTHY MACKAILL KNEW... HAD BIG BLACK HEADLINES AND SOLD FOR A PENNY. TODAY THE ONLY 'EXTRAS' THAT KNOW DOROTHY ARE THE ONES THAT WORK FOR HER IN 'FIRST NATIONAL' PICTURES.

Dolly Accuses Kathleen of Stealing Boy Friend

CHAPTER XVIII.

Shortly afterward, one night very late, the telephone in Anne's home shrilled alarmingly. Murdock answered. It was for Anne and he called her.

Mrs. Murdock, coming to her door, demanded anxiously: "What's wrong? Is it Kathleen? Or Jim? Is it one of the babies?"

Anne slipped into a kimono and went downstairs to the instrument.

"It's Dolly," a husky voice reached her.

"What is it?"

"I must see you at once."

Anne said patiently: "It's very late. Is anything the matter?"

"If you care anything about that kid sister of yours," Dolly told her, "you'd better step on the gas."

"I'll come," said Anne, and hung up the receiver. She was trembling and she twisted one hand tightly within the other, trying to regain her composure.

Mrs. Murdock was asking, in despair: "Will she not answer me, my own daughter? What is the matter, Anne?"

"It's all right," Anne told her. She thought frantically, then lied easily, "It's Betty Howard. She's been taken ill and is alone—so I'm going to town at once. I'll stay the rest of the night with her."

"Poor child," Mrs. Murdock commiserated, all sympathy and relief. She liked Betty—but, thank heavens, one of her own was not threatened!

Anne dressed and Mrs. Murdock, fluttering about, nearly drove her mad.

"Here are your shoes. Aren't you going to brush your hair? I've chicken broth in the icebox. Take a jar. Tell the girl I'll come and look after her tomorrow in case she has no one."

Dolly's Story

Anne refused the broth and evaded all her mother's questions. Shortly afterward she stepped out into the eerie night and shivered at the first touch of a chilly wind.

It was after 1 o'clock when she knocked at Dolly Davis' door, and Dolly, fully dressed, opened it. Dolly was haggard, but her eyes were overbright.

"So you're here," she said, with some hostility. "You've had time to go to St. Louis and back."

"I came immediately," Anne said. "What has happened?"

"Nothing yet. Only your precious Kathleen is planning to run away with Georgie—that's all. I found a note from her in some clothes I was sending to the cleaner's." Dolly said bitterly. Then she laughed as she saw Anne's expression. "Don't look so upset. He lives here most of the time."

Anne sat down. She rarely smoked, but now if ever she needed something to steady her nerves. She reached out for a cigarette and lighted it, her fingers shaking.

Dolly flung herself into a deep chair and began to talk incoherently.

"After all I've done for him, the little rat!" she said, and proceeded for three minutes to inform Anne what she thought of Georgie.

Despises Georgie

Anne listened, fascinated. Dolly's mouth was painted in likeness of a curved red bow, and from that bow the black curses, poison-tipped, were released like little arrows.

When that was over, Dolly said sullenly: "I love him. I've fed and clothed him, and I despise him—and I love him so much that I'd kill myself for him tomorrow. I will kill myself—I'll haunt him all the days of his worthless life!"

She began to cry, making no effort to stem the tears and the hoarse sobs.

Anne rose and passed through the untidy living room into the bedroom and bathroom. She hunted in the medicine closet, stained and dusty, and found a bottle containing spirits of ammonia. She measured a dose and returned to Dolly, who was still crying.

"Drink this!" Anne ordered quietly.

How to find Kathleen? How to stop her? How to make this pitiful, hysterical woman talk sense?

Dolly pushed the glass aside. "Take that stuff away! Get me a drink—out of the cellaret!"

Anne removed the medicine and poured a straight dose of whisky. Dolly drank it, wiping her mouth with the back of her hand. The rouge came away in a long crimson streak. She stared at it as if it were blood.

Anne said, still with forced repression: "Let's talk quietly. When are they going? Where? Tell me everything you've found out at once!"

Dolly Threatening

"I don't know," Dolly said sullenly. She jumped to her feet, rummaged in a desk drawer and returned with a three-cornered note which she flung onto Anne's lap. "Read that!"

Anne read, eagerly yet reluctantly.

Darling (Kathleen had written), I know you love me. We'll go away and be happy somewhere together, and that woman will never bother you again.

Anne read no more. She dropped the note and commented: "But she mentions no definite plan here."

"What of it? I havent seen him all day; and he didn't come this evening. I was to meet him for dinner. I waited in front of Ching Lee's for an hour, then I had to go to the theater. I phoned you as soon as I got home." Suddenly she leaned forward, her eyes and lips hard. "You'd better take care of your sister," she warned. "Take care!"

Anne was conscious of sickness—a sickness of fear. She remembered certain sordid headlines in the tabloids. But anger took her—anger that anyone as beloved and basically sound and sweet as Kathleen should be threatened by people like Dolly, like Georgie.

"I'll take care of her, all right!" she told the older woman. "Do you think for one moment I'll let her have anything to do with that slimy beast if I can help it?"

Blame Kathleen

"Keep your tongue off him!" Dolly warned her. "I'm the only one that can run him down. He never raised his hand to her. She chased him—silly little fool—making eyes and cooing and pitying him on my account. What's she got that I haven't? Youth, perhaps, and better looks," Dolly answered her own question grudgingly. "Well, if I ever get my hands on her she won't look so pretty, and she'll feel a darned sight older!"

"Don't be an idiot," Anne ordered sharply. "Look here, have you anything to prove your—your relationship?"

"Relationship?" Dolly stared, and then with one of her sudden changes of mood laughed heartily. "Proof? He's got a latchkey, if that's proof. And here"—she rolled up her sleeve and exhibited a bruise—"here is a fingerprint!"

"I can't take those of Kathleen," Anne told her, disgusted.

Dolly's eyes were enormous. "Do you mean to tell me that she needs—proof? She must be more of a fool than I thought. Why doesn't she bring her rattle to rehearsals?" Dolly commented.

"I know Kathleen," said Anne. "She's young and gullible. I don't know what your precious Georgie has told her, but whatever it was it wasn't the truth. When she knows that she'll have no more to do with him."

Pleads for Help

"Look here," Dolly interrupted with ominous calm, "are you trying to tell me that Georgie isn't good enough for your sister?"

"Well, is he?"

"He's a darn sight too good for her!" Dolly exclaimed passionately.

She stopped and looked at Anne. Anne was leaning back in her chair. Her face was white and her eyes, no longer disgusted or angry, were darkly pitying.

Dolly got out of her chair like an old woman. She came over to Anne and knelt down beside her, her arms flung across her lap.

"Help me to get him back again," she whimpered. "He's all I've got in the world—and I'm getting old."

Her ruddled face worked nervously. Anne touched her hair and hated herself for the physical repulsion which accompanied the gesture. In this moment of victory over the hostility and rancor she had encountered on her entrance she felt no triumph, only a dull relief.

"You don't know what it is to lose something you care for," Dolly murmured; "or that it is to be jealous. Sometimes I think I'm half crazy! He's no good, Anne, but he's mine. I'm not much good either, but I want him back. He'll forget her; he's been like this before, though never as bad."

Anne Thinks of Eaton

"Get up, Dolly," Anne told her. "I'm going to see Kathleen now. It's after 2, but that doesn't matter. I'll straighten things out."

Dolly got to her feet, swaying on her ridiculous heels.

"I'll do anything," she promised. "I'll go away. I've a chance to get work in Chicago if I care for it; we're closing here. He'll go, too." Dolly's face hardened. "He'll have to go."

Anne put on her things and started wearily for the door.

"You're a good kid," Dolly told her, following her. She stood close to the girl in the narrow hallway and Anne was enveloped in a scent of black orchid, stale cigaret smoke, cosmetics and liquor. "A good kid. I'm sorry I cut up rough." She held out her soft, hot hand. "Good-by," she said.

Anne held the hand a moment. "Good-by and good luck," she told the older woman.

Dolly answered, gripping the firm, slender fingers: "Say, isn't life comic? Listen, did I ever tell you I was married once? Yeah—to a trick bicycle rider. He's dead now—and dying was the only decent thing he ever did in his life. But he useter say, 'Kid,' he useter say to me, 'you take a lot funner falls in life than you do on the boards.' And he was right."

The door closed behind Anne. She leaned against it a moment, sick with fatigue, and from the apartment she had left she heard the shrill sound of Dolly's ironic laughter.

On her way to Kathleen's she thought of the other woman. It was impossible to condemn her, that tawdry, generous, passionate creature, Anne thought. "If things had worked out as I once planned!"

She shuddered back from the mental pictures, but forced herself to follow them to their conclusion. If she had not really fallen in love with Lawrence Eaton; if she had kept her head clear and her heart free; if she had encouraged that one dangerous kiss to lead to other embraces; if she had surrendered herself for a little fleeting security, for a little easy satisfaction; if he tired; if—if—if she had become, eventually, one of the regiment of women in which Dolly marched. . . .

She cried out and quickened her steps. She must forget Eaton; she must forget everything now but Kathleen and her immediate need. If she could tell Kathleen that she, too, knew, that she had been tempted! And she faced the realization that in loving Eaton she was no less tempted than when she had fancied she did not deeply care for him.

AVALON POOL WORK RUSHED

Work is being rushed on the new Avalon borough swimming pool in an effort to complete it by July 4, when dedication ceremonies and formal opening are scheduled.

Final plans for the celebration were made at a meeting in the borough hall this week. A committee of the Avalon Woman's Club, consisting of Mrs. R. F. McCullough, Mrs. W. B. Park and Mrs. R. H. Schaffer has been named to represent that organization in plans for participation.

SPINE INJURED, $50,000 ASKED

Irene O'Brien, 2295 Murray avenue, whose spine was injured February 17, 1929, when the car in which she was riding collided with one of the Jarecki Manufacturing Company, has sued the latter for $50,000 damages.

The accident happened in the Boulevard of the Allies, in the vicinity of the 2400 block, and was caused, she claims through her counsel, H. Fred Mercer, by the negligence of the defendant. The woman was rendered unconscious. She also claims $1,250 additional for the value of her car.

OUTLINE TERMS FOR DAM SITES

CHARLESTON, W. Va., June 25.—(AP.)—A formal order authorizing the West Virginia Power and Transmission Company to develop hydro-electric power on the Cheat and Blackwater rivers is ready to be entered by the commission today.

As finally adopted, the order conforms strictly to the conditions laid down a week ago by the commission in a report which approved the company's application for eight projects on the main stream of the Cheat and Blackwater rivers, but withheld approval of five additional proposed developments for Big Sandy Creek, Glady Fork, Shavers Fork and Dry Fork.

Construction work on the initial projects, the Blackwater storage dam and the Blackwater power development No. 1, both in Tucker County, was directed by the commission's report to be started within one year after granting of the license and completed during the succeeding three years. The remaining projects, Blackwater power development No. 2, Tucker County; Beaver Hole power development, Monongalia and Preston Counties; Middle Cheat development No. 1, Preston County; Middle Cheat development No. 2, Preston County; Albright development, Preston County, and Erwin development, Preston and Tucker Counties, the commission said, shall be started and constructed at its order.

MONARCH CLUBS RENAME CHIEF

Homewood-Brushton Hold Annual Picnic

One of the summer's biggest outings was scheduled for Kennywood Park today, that of the Homewood-Brushton school and community picnic, under the auspices of the Board of Trade. The committee, which has arranged an elaborate program, is headed by Dick Briney, T. E. Shaughnessy and P. H. Jacobs, and there will be races, games, sports, amusements, swimming and dancing. Free transportation has been arranged.

SCOUT MISSING DAYS SAVED

RIVERSIDE, Cal., June 25.—(AP.)—Harold Johnson, 12, lost on Mount San Jacinto, remembered his Boy Scout training, and yesterday while 150 searchers vainly combed the district, trudged into Snow Creek fish hatchery at the foot of the mountain.

The boy had not eaten since last Friday when he became lost from a party of Scouts hiking up the mountain. Word of his reappearance was relayed by telephone to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Johnson, waiting at a nearby resort. Harold said:

"I just went to look at something and when I tried to go back I got lost."

He used his Scout training and started picking his way down the deep and treacherous ravines. At night he slept under sheltering rocks.

Three Waynesburg Institutions Aided

WAYNESBURG, Pa., March 25.—Bequests of $5,000 each are made to the Waynesburg Presbyterian Church, Waynesburg College and the Greene County Memorial Hospital in the will of Mrs. Mary B. Ingbram, widow of Judge James Ingbram. The will, which disposes of an estate valued at $90,000, was probated here.

Milk Man Killed By Fall at Door

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., June 25.—Daniel C. Taylor, 56, West Brownsville, a milk dealer here for many years, was killed when he fell against a doorsill at his home, his neck was broken.

Physicians entertain little recovery for his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Taylor, who has been confined to the hospital here for the last 16 weeks.

Here's Speedy Relief for Tender, Aching, Swollen Feet

Moone's Emerald Oil Must Give Complete Satisfaction
Or Money Cheerfully Refunded.

Your feet may be so swollen and inflamed that you think you can't go another step. Your shoes may feel as if they are cutting right into the flesh. You feel sick all over with the pain and torture and pray for quick relief. What's to be done?

Two or three applications of Moone's Emerald Oil and in fifteen minutes the pain and soreness disappears. A few more applications at regular intervals and the swelling reduces.

And as for Soft Corns and Callouses, a few applications each night at bedtime and they just seem to shrivel right up and scale off.

No matter how discouraged you have been with powders, foot baths or other applications, if you have not tried Emerald Oil then you have something to learn.

It's a wonderful formula—this combination of essential oils with camphor and other antiseptics so marvelous that thousands of bottles are sold annually for reducing varicose or swollen veins.

Every good druggist guarantees the very first bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil to end your foot troubles or money back.

After the First Twenty-five Thousand Miles

THE VALUE of sound design, good materials and careful craftsmanship is especially apparent in the new Ford after the first twenty-five thousand miles. Long, continuous service emphasizes its mechanical reliability and economy of operation and up-keep.

As you drive the Ford through many months and years you will develop an increasing pride in its appearance and a growing respect for the substantial worth that has been built into it. From every standpoint—in everything that goes to make a good automobile—you will know that you have made a far-seeing, satisfactory purchase.

Wherever you go, you hear enthusiastic praise of the car and this significant, oft-repeated phrase—"I'm glad I bought a Ford."

A FORD owner in New York tells of a 13,000-mile trip across the United States and back in sixty days and says "the car was extremely economical to operate, comfortable and speedy." A grateful father tells how the Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield saved his wife and children from serious injury in an automobile collision.

To test tires, a large company drove a new Ford day and night, for an average of 500 miles every twenty-four hours. It was still giving satisfactory service after 105,000 miles.

A Ford car that had fallen into Fernan Lake was submerged for twelve days before being raised. After a new battery and carburetor bowl were installed, it was driven back to Spokane under its own power.

Many police departments have written of the special advantages of the Ford in crowded traffic because of its alert speed, acceleration and ease of control. An increasing number of fleet owners are also purchasing the Ford because their cost figures have given conclusive proof of its economy of operation and up-keep.

In addition to important triumphs in Germany, France and Italy, the Ford won six out of seven leading places in a contest in Finland, first and second in the Rafaela races in Argentina, first and second in the run from Copenhagen-to-Paris-to-Copenhagen, three gold medals in England, first ranking in the durability test over the tortuous Amancaes road in Peru, and first place in the 1930 reliability run conducted by the Royal Automobile Club of Sweden.

This contest was an exceptionally severe test of endurance and sturdy construction because it was held in the dead of winter and covered 600 miles of steady running over snow-covered country roads and mountainous hills.

The Human Interest Side of Wills—Trust Companies As Guardians of Estates and Minors

The Trust Departments and Officers of the following banks have made possible this Educational Campaign

The Colonial Trust Company

Commonwealth Trust Co., of Pittsburgh

Dollar Savings & Trust Company, North Side

Fidelity Trust Company

Peoples-Pittsburgh Trust Company

Potter Title & Trust Company

Pennsylvania Trust Company of Pittsburgh

The Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh

One case, which comes to my mind, illustrates most forcibly how even the most loyal and well-intentioned friend may cause the entire loss of an estate.

In this particular instance the widow, now well past middle age, is working hard at something with which she is not familiar in an effort to support herself and growing daughter.

Had a Trust Company been the executor in this case, things would have been vastly different. The widow could be spending her days in pleasant surroundings, free from worry, while the daughter could be enjoying the advantages her father had intended for her.

After the death of the husband, it was found that the estate was worth $60,000 after all debts and expenses were paid. The widow was the sole executrix and beneficiary.

She consulted with friends and thought the matter out herself to the conclusion that a mortgage investment, minus taxes and expenses, would give her around $3,400 a year, which, with proper economy, in view of her previous state of affluence, would maintain herself and daughter quite comfortably.

Her husband had had a good friend in his lifetime, who really was responsible for the money the husband had made. This friend had been of invaluable service in many ways, and it was only natural that the widow should feel the utmost confidence in his judgment.

At about the time the widow was going to invest in the mortgage, the friend called and said he had a 12 per cent investment which would return her $7,200 a year, or more than twice what the mortgage would yield. The widow invested her $60,000 in the 12 per cent proposition, and within a short time everything was lost and she was looking for employment.

It is only fair to state that the friend acted in all good faith, and that he lost all his money also.

The point to be stressed here is that if a Trust Company had been the executor of the will, or even sharing that capacity with the widow, the weakness of this unwise investment would have been made known to her, and the widow would still have her $60,000 principal earning her a reasonable interest. Trust Companies, with their vast resources of financial information, have nothing to do with "wild cat" schemes, and our records show that they have never lost a dollar of the estates entrusted to their care.

The concluding part of this short series deals with minors and the safeguarding of their estates. The intention is not to strike a pessimistic note, but rather to sound a warning call so that children may receive the maximum of protection.

It is always advisable to have a Trust Company act as guardian for the estate rather than an individual for several reasons.

A Trust Company has greater opportunities for investment of money than any individual.

When the income from investments amounts to $100, a trust company is enabled to place this sum in a mortgage fund, while an individual would be obliged to wait until he had $2000 before he could place it in a mortgage.

There have been many cases in my experience as Register of Wills where a relative was appointed guardian of the estate of a minor. At the time the ward became of age, the guardian was unable to make payment to his ward because the funds of the estate had been invested unwisely or else the guardian had used the money for his own benefit. Where this has occurred, the ward in almost every instance has failed, for family reasons, to proceed against his guardian and thereby has lost what his parents had given him to enjoy when he became of age. A similar condition could never have happened had the funds been placed with a Trust Company.

All of the foregoing statements, either in this or the two previous stories, are of extreme importance and worthy of much consideration. Think them over and discuss them with your lawyer.

I hope through these articles I have been of some service to those who have the welfare and comfort of their loved ones at heart.

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN,
Radio Editor.

"MICKEY" COCHRANE, star catcher of the Macks, is about to break his silence after five years in the big time.

One of the greatest baseball stars of diamond history will analyze the current baseball season and tell what he thinks of the various teams' chances to win the championship when Grantland Rice interviews him over WCAE tonight at 10:30.

Frank Mulloy, publicity director of WCAE, a former Philadelphia newspaperman, tells us Philadelphia paid plenty less than $50,000 for Cochrane when he was an ordinary catcher with the Portland, Ore. club. Maybe Cochrane will tell us the real story.

Gladys Rice with Mobiloil, WCAE at 8:30, will sing "I'll See You Again" from "Bitter Sweet." M. Cochrane

Lloyd's looking fine . . . cheerful as ever . . . even though he has lost seven teeth as a result of his gridiron career.

Yoder is doing a bang-up job in radio out West. He started his career as an announcer for WCAE.

Jo Tyler will resume the baton for Penco tonight after returning from Indianapolis, where he directed a 200-piece band.

* * *

President Hoover's talk at the unveiling of a statue of James Buchanan will be broadcast by KDKA, WCAE tomorrow at 3:30.

George Cohan's Daughter Cast With Rogers In "Lightnin'"

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, June 25.

THE TALKIES may have lost George M. Cohan, but they are to get his 17 year-old daughter, Helen. Fox has just signed this young actress to play Will Rogers' daughter in "Lightnin'." By the way, that ought to be a picture. Can't you hear Will Rogers telling the story about the bees, and conducting the cross-examination in the courtroom?

Henry King, who's to direct "Lightnin'," is enthusiastic over Helen Cohan. She's a red-head, and is said to photograph mighty pretty.

Will Rogers

There's some confusion as to whether A Connecticut Yankee at King Arthur's Court" or Light Court of "Lightnin'" is to be Rogers' next talkie. At this writing, however, the balance swings towards the latter.

In the meantime, the gum-chewing star is appearing in the Publix theaters in Boston for the modest stipend of $7,500 a week. This isn't his record, either; he was paid $15,000 for 15 minutes over the radio. Flabbergasting, isn't it?

SITUATION DESPERATE

Did you hear the story about the producer who met an actor friend on the boulevard?

"S-s-say," stuttered the actor, "C-c-can you l-l-lend me f-f-ten bucks until this t-t-talkie craze blows over?"

REVERSING IT

Some of the stars have established a custom of giving presents to the crew that has worked with them on a picture.

WIFE WORKS TOO

Acting in the Chevalier family isn't to be limited to the popular Maurice. Paramount has asked Mme. Chevalier, Yvonne Valee, to play opposite her husband in the French version of "The Little Cafe." She's a well known performer in France, but this is her first work in the American talkies. Incidentally, Chevalier says that "The Little Cafe" is the first real story he's had since coming over here. After the picture is finished he and Mme. Chevalier will take a three months' vacation in Europe. When they return, the French star is to make only two pictures a year. He will devote six months to his movie activities and six months to stage appearances. Plans are being made for him to visit all the large cities in the country. Chevalier on the stage has a buoyant, volatile charm that the talkies do not quite capture. He has done sell-out business in New York and Los Angeles as a one-man revue.

Chevalier

DIRECTS BY RADIO

Modern inventions practicable for movie use are promptly drafted by alert technical departments. For instance, Edwin Carewe is using the radio telephone to direct ships off-shore in "The Spoilers." The equipment for the occasion was furnished by the United States Government. By the way, the talkie version of "The Spoilers" will have a fight scene that tops the one in the silent version that set a standard for movie battles. In the old version the fight was staged in an office. In the talkie it not only goes on in the office, but is carried down a flight of stairs into the street.

CUSTOM ESTABLISHED

Much has been made of the fact that Raymond Griffith volunteered to act without salary in "All Quiet on the Western Front." He and Lewis Milestone, the director, are such great friends that when Universal was unable to meet Griffith's price he acted the dying French poilu without pay.

UNVEIL TABLET TO GEN. MEADE

FREDERICK, Md., June 25—(AP)—Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley and Gov. John S. Fisher are scheduled to speak here Saturday when a tablet will be unveiled in commemoration of the assumption of command of the Union armies by Gen. George Gordon Meade.

Gen. Meade was commander of the forces which at Gettysburg turned back the Southern invasion of Pennsylvania in 1863.

A granite block from a point near Devil's Den on the Gettysburg battlefield has been erected along the highway, and a tablet is to be imbedded in the boulder.

A guest of honor is to be George G. Meade, grandson of the Union leader. Acceptance of the tablet on behalf of Maryland and Pennsylvania is to be made by Emory L. Coblentz, of Frederick and Middletown. William H. Stevenson, of Pittsburgh, chairman of the Pennsylvania Historical Commission, donor of the tablet, is to preside.

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

Remnants

Slowly your ardor cooled. Oh, I could see
The symptoms that you tried so hard to hide;
The stifled yawn, the deepening lethargy
When I was ever constant at your side;
The clock that once sped magic hours away,
Now dragged accusing hands across its face.
The romance that we dearly loved to play,
Turned farce with every casual embrace.

So it is done—small use to place the blame.
I only know that we are strangely through;
It is no task to quench a sickly flame,
Yet as my thoughts drift back—this much is true:

That for a while the fire leaped heaven-high,
—The "Torch" Singer.

Things That Knock Me Cold

According to the N. Y. World's story about "Santa Claus" Ryder . . . he himself would not talk to reporters, and a friend explained that this was because of his resentment of stories, particularly in the tabloids, that he was a celebrated night club spendthrift and liberal with his hospitality to Broadway beauties. The only night club he had been in this Winter, said the friend, was the Central Park Casino.

It must have been two other fellows.

Merciless Truth

Russell Ryder, Broadway's Doughboy, apparently has discovered that Night Club is another way of spelling Trouble. An unconfirmed rumor, however, has it that Jean Ackerman, Ziegfeld girl, is writing a tune to be titled, "Ryder Wrong, I Love You."

Imagine

Among other things most of us overlooked for publication during the Sharkey-Schmeling fight was that when Sharkey entered the ring draped in an American flag, for which he was booed, the seconds removed the flag, rolled it up and tossed it in a corner on the ground.

A little fellow seated at the ringside leaped out of his pew and shouted:

"Pick that up, do you hear?"

It was picked up.

A Form of Criticism

An unpopular movie actor suddenly disappeared from his home and has never been seen since. A group of Hollywoodmen were discussing it.

"What do you suspect," sarcastically asked Keene Thompson, "fair play?"

Thanques for the Ad

Mr. H. I. Phillips, of the N. Y. Sun, and one of the better newspaper comedians, mimics our "Things I Never Knew Till Now" bureau in this manner: That barbed wire is no good for pajamas strings . . . That no matter how much you stir alphabet soup you can't spell "idiosyncrasies" . . . That a good way to break an engagement is to send the girl paper flowers, and that running up an escalator is a sure sign of insanity!

H. M. G.!

A veteran reports that Albert Lingle, the Chicago reporter, who was assassinated, had a namesake in Indiana, who 50 years ago was a terror to all evildoers, the same being Wm. S. Lingle, of the Lafayette, Ind., Courier.

He was a terror with his pen and once denounced a lady prohibitionist and suffragist named Helen M. Gougher. The opposition paper defended her and attacked Lingle, arguing that Lingle had "desecrated holy womanhood."

With one shot Lingle smashed Helen M. Gougher's champion, and this was the shot: "When a farmer sees a snake approaching the child of a neighbor, does he stop to ascertain its sex? No! He kills it as best he can, then puts in in a bottle of alcohol and labels it H. M. G.—helpless, fangless and disgusting."

But He wants More!

Among other prize possessions of Robert Benchley, the critic, is a rare Ernest Hemingway classic, one of his earliest tomes. During Hemingway's visit here last week Benchley urged him to come to his shack. Once in the place Benchley displayed the book and said: "This would bring me at least $300 if I wanted to sell it. Why not autograph it for me."

Hemingway jotted down an amusing but unprintable flippancy. "Now, there!" said the distinguished writer, "I've spoiled your sale and I did it just so you would always keep it."

The next day when a wealthy society woman had heard of the "foul inscription" she offered Benchley $2,000 for the book!

Heheheh

Benny Holzman reports that he overheard it in one of the "Flying High" undressing rooms:

1st Chorine: "Did you read my honey's story in the Saturday Evening Post?"

2d Ditto: "I never read the Saturday Evening Post, dearie. I'm always afraid that just as I'm going to sleep it will fall on my face and kill me."

George White was selecting girls for his chorus earlier this season and counseled one of his prettiest charmers on how to behave herself.

"Whatever you do," said George, "keep away from press agents; they'll promise you everything and give you little in return."

"Please don't worry," cooed the gal, "I can't bear press agents. I inherited a great dislike for them. You see, my father was a dramatic editor!"

By Way of Report

Judge Jr.'s, overgrant book (in miniature) entitled "Noble Experiments," will be released on July 10 and no home will be complete without one. It contains 63 pages of recipes, many of them suggested by intelligentlemen and others. George Jean Nathan, Heywood Broun, Ralph Barton, Bruce Bairnsfather, H. L. Mencken, Milt Gross, et al are represented, but the Retlaw Chinwell recipe probably will be tasteless because of a typographical error. So this is directed to Jack Shuttleworth, of Judge, who prepared the tome. "The Pink Lady" recipe is recorded in this manner: "Half pint orange juice, ditto cream, ditto grenadine and ditto gin." It should be a pint of gin! Then shake well till frosted, drink three of them and then say "Truly Rural."

If it comes out "Trooey Root," you're drunkee!

COURT UPHOLDS OHIO GAS TAX

COLUMBUS, O., June 25—(AP)—Natural gas interests of Ohio, West Virginia and Pennsylvania have studied the precedent-setting decision of a special United States district court that the East Ohio Gas Company must pay Ohio $959,000 in excise taxes on gas produced in West Virginia and Pennsylvania and consumed in Ohio.

The ruling, made here yesterday, makes other utilities, in the opinion of Attorney General Bettman, liable to taxes of nearly $1,000,000 under similar circumstances.

The East Ohio officials had claimed that piping fuel from West Virginia and Pennsylvania into the state constituted interstate commerce and that the state had no authority to levy the tax.

Chicken Dinner to Supplant Picnic

In lieu of the basket picnic which the Sodality of the Sacred Heart Church, Alder street, has held for the past several years, a chicken and waffle dinner and dance will be given July 10 at Urling's Restaurant, West View. Miss Gertrude, M. Novak, prefect of the sodality, is in charge of arrangements.

BORIS MAY SEEK WIFE IN NORTH

COPENHAGEN, June 25.—Rumors that the bachelor King Boris, of Bulgaria, is to pay a visit soon to the Scandinavian capitals in search of a royal bride have caused considerable speculation in the northern capitals.

At present there is a dearth of marriageable Scandinavian princesses. King Christian, of Denmark, has no daughters, while his sister, Thyra, is an avowed spinster. His brother, Prince Harold, however, has two daughters, Caroline Mathilde and Feodora, both in their 'teens.

Crown Prince Adolph's daughter, the beautiful blonde Ingrid, is the only Swedish princess available, but it is considered unlikely she would accept Boris' suit if it were tendered. Rumor has it she has already refused her hand to the Prince of Wales and the crown prince of Denmark.

STATE EXTENDS FIREWORKS BAN

HARRISBURG, June 25.—(AP)—A 60-day extension for compliance with the new fireworks safety code of the Department of Labor and Industry was granted by the State Industrial Board on several conditions, including an absolute ban on manufacture of aerial bombs.

The department was appealed to by a majority of the 16 plants making pyrotechnics in the state, which asked leniency on the grounds that they would be financially and otherwise handicapped by the enforcement of the code. They claimed such action would cause delay in filling orders for Independence Day.

Originally intended to become effective June 14, the code was drafted as an aftermath of the explosion at a Devon, Pa., plant, which resulted in 10 deaths. It set up regulations concerning the maximum amount of powder to be stored and the separation of buildings.

The protesting manufacturers agreed to the order forbidding the making of the bombs, which caused the great amount of damage in the Devon blast. They also promised to refuse orders for fireworks in addition to those on hand, relinquish the right to employ women and to ship products as fast as made.

PRISON WITH NO CELLS URGED

BALTIMORE, June 25.—(AP.)—A prison without stone barriers separating its inmates from the world at large, and rooms in place of cells will be recommended by Dr. Walter N. Thayer, Jr., for Maryland's new penal institution to be constructed in Washington County.

Plans for the prison will be left by Dr. Thayer, state superintendent of prisons, when he leaves July 15 to take over his duties as commissioner of correction of New York state. He has been in prison work in that state many years, his service here having been only temporary.

The new penal institution in Maryland is to be for first offenders and other criminals whom officials believe can be reformed. Outlining his proposals, Dr. Thayer said:

"The most important factor in reforming the criminal is the restoration of his self respect. For that reason it seems advisable to house him in as natural an environment as is practicable."

SLAYER STARTS HUNGER STRIKE

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., June 25.—(AP.)—It was revealed that Frank Tawza, convicted slayer of a Luzerne policeman, is on a hunger strike. Tawza, who is to be executed at Rockview prison on Monday, June 30, has refused to eat or drink for the past nine days, hoping thereby to cheat the law.

Tawza was examined by the jail physician, who found him in good physical condition. The physician told Tawza he had started his starvation plan 30 days too late, and that in his opinion Tawza could last 21 days yet, if the chair did not intervene.

Tawza, a burglar and former comrade of Gerald Chapman, came here from Connecticut in 1929. In September last he fled when caught entering a house at Luzerne and in a running gun duel with Assistant Chief Thomas Kroskey, the latter was killed.

Beneficiary Wins Contest Over Will

NEW CASTLE, Pa., June 25.—The State Supreme Court upheld Miss Jane Ligo, principal beneficiary under the will of the late Nellie M. Dean, in her contest to have the will probated.

Ida Dodson and others opposed the will and won in the first trial in the Lawrence County courts. Miss Ligo was granted a new trial, which she won, and Ida Dodson and others appealed. Under the will, Miss Ligo received all personal property, including diamonds, furs, automobile and a monthly allowance of $300 for three years.

Filtration Plant Contract Given

GREENSBURG, Pa., June 25.—Westmoreland Water Company has awarded contract for construction of a new filtration plant near South Greensburg. Water from Indian Creek will be filtered. The plant will cost $70,000.

Patrolman Hits 80 Miles in Auto Chase

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., June 25.—Charles L. Wood, of Pittsburgh, and Frank Trafecanta, of Connellsville, were arrested by state highway patrolmen following a chase of six miles. Both paid $25 fine on reckless driving charges.

COKE TONNAGE GAINS HERE

WASHINGTON, June 25.—(AP.)—Although the Bureau of Mines found production of by-product and beehive coke on the decline during May improvement was noted in the Pittsburgh district, where the report said:

"The Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation increased its battery of ovens at Aliquippa by the addition of 81 Koppers-Becker ovens."

This firm, it added, had 88 plants in active operation, producing about 84 per cent of their capacity.

The total production of by-product coke for May amounted to 4,265,528 tons, or 137,598 tons a day, as compared with 141,548 tons in April.

Beehive coke production for the same month was estimated at 241,100 tons. The total output of all coke was 4,506,628 tons, and, compared with May, 1929, represented a decrease of 14 per cent.

FIRE INSURANCE MEN MEET

MEADVILLE, Pa., June 25.—(AP.)—Addressed by Matthew H. Taggart, state insurance commissioner, 150 delegates from throughout the state last night opened the twenty-fourth annual convention of the Pennsylvania State Association of Fire Insurance Companies at Conneaut Lake Park. The convention will end tomorrow night.

Other speakers included D. W. Dambly, Skippack, Pa., O. G. Crawford, Erie, and Henry H. James, Doylestown, are to address the convention today. Wilmer Crow, Harrisburg, is president of the association.

Voss Electric Clothes Washer

Regularly 89.50 $58 Just 168 Machines

With the Anniversary almost over, we were scarcely in the market for such a purchase at this time — but when the makers offered us this tremendous price-concession, we couldn't resist—nor will you! This—one of the latest Voss models—has NEVER sold in Pittsburgh for less than 89.50. At $58 it is a "gift." This model has the cast-aluminum top, with all gears enclosed—no mechanism outside. Read:

How the "Floto-Plane" Washes the Clothes Whiter and Quicker

The Voss Floto Plane rests gently on top of the floating clothes, midst hot cleansing suds. It is here near the surface that clothes are swished through the suds by the Floto Plane Agitator. This action forces the water through the clothes and the dirt out. The dirt once removed, naturally, sinks to the bottom, away from floating clothes. It is the "Voss Floto Plane" (protected by United States basic patents) that makes the Voss different . . a machine that cleans clothes faster, whiter and with less wear.

"The first year after I got married I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because I was so weak that the minute I would start to do something I would feel badly. It did me a lot of good. Since then I have taken the Vegetable Compound off and on whenever I needed it. I am now the mother of eight children and I still recommend this medicine for it makes me feel younger and stronger."—Mrs. Oreance Godfrey, 103 Cumberland Street, Woonsocket, Rhode Island.

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM PFARR

One of this department's best theorists has advanced the explanation that William Billinger, well-known county official, is more or less responsible for the marriage, at 63, of your old friend, Joe Armstrong.

It seems that Mr. Armstrong had been contemplating his second matrimonial trip for some time, but hesitated on his final decision because, although active, he was no longer a young man.

A few weeks before what proved to be the Armstrong wedding date his old friend, Mr. Billinger, dropped in and asked Joe to be the best man.

Best man for what? Well, Mr. Billinger had decided to marry again.

Mr. Billinger, who is of the same generation as Mr. Armstrong, was married, and Joe was the best man.

A week later Joe was on his own honeymoon.

E. N. Osborne, young Ingram salesman, strolled around to the borough doings in Ingram a few nights ago and soon found himself the winner of a quart of automobile oil.

Mr. Osborne felt rather conspicuous toting a can of oil about, and he was doubtless re-

Well, Mr. Osborne received the auto, too.

Morgan Takes Desperate Chance to Escape

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Dean Ward Kent, a successful young college graduate, gets drunk while celebrating on New Year's Eve. His automobile, going at top speed, crashed into another machine and two persons are fatally injured. Kent is charged with manslaughter and sentenced to serve seven years in the penitentiary. Duncan Morgan, a handsome chap who had been a bank clerk, is sentenced to the penitentiary for robbery. He has been in prison before and does not fear the new sentence. Kent is assigned to share a cell with Morgan and "Machine Gun Butch" Schmidt. Schmidt, a hardened criminal, is now serving life for murder. Schmidt steals a locket containing a picture of Anne Marlow from Kent's pocket. Kent is in love with Anne. Morgan gets the picture from Schmidt and is attracted to the girl. He learns her name from Kent. Morgan's attorney visits the penitentiary to tell him that he will be free on a parole in a short time. Morgan sees Anne, who is visiting Kent, and is struck by her beauty. Kent "plants" a knife in Morgan's pocket. The guards find it, and as a result Morgan loses the expected pardon and is put in solitary confinement for 30 days. He plans revenge.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER IX.

So the grumbling guards carried Duncan Morgan from his cell in the dungeon where he had spent 30 days and 30 nights. His face was green, his four weeks' growth of beard had become matted with dirt. His eyes were closed and there seemed to be little life left in his emaciated body.

They took him to the prison hospital and the doctor and a convict interne went over him. The interne who had been a practitioner outside the prison, stood dreamily by, thinking of the day when he would again be free, and the doctor listlessly thrust a thermometer between Morgan's half-closed salmon-colored lips.

"Respiration twenty-eight."

"Yes sir."

The doctor shook his thermometer violently and then thrust it into its case. He was about to leave the room when he glanced at a screen which had been placed before a bed. He hesitated. The interne touched him on the arm.

"Pardon, sir," he said, "I forgot to tell you that Carter died this afternoon."

"Oh, all right—I didn't think he'd live. Have the body shifted to the morgue pronto and buried tonight."

Familiar
Morgan Knows Hospital Surroundings

He left the room. The interne walked over to the screen and peered behind it as though to assure himself, and then left also. Morgan opened his eyes slightly, and without moving his head looked up at the ceiling for a while. Then he began to survey the little room, in which the shadows of twilight already had begun to play.

In a few minutes two men came in and, without glancing at Morgan, walked over to the bed behind the screen. They pushed the screen aside and, with one at the head and another at the feet, they carried out what was left of the convict Carter, bed sheets and all.

Morgan smiled grimly. For a time he lay very quiet on the bed, listening intently. Then he reopened his eyes. He was familiar with the room. He had been detailed there one month to keep it clean. He also knew that the morgue was just through the door to the left in the corridor. And next to that was the death chair—the "hot squat," the state's final courtesy to its worst law-breakers.

The morgue had another door, too, and this Morgan knew. This door led into a courtyard and after an execution or after a patient had died in the hospital, the black, funereal wagon of the prison backed up to the door and the shrouded body was dumped into it to be taken to the prison cemetery, off over the hills or to the depot, to be shipped to relatives.

Strengthened
Thought of Freedom Puts New Life in Him

Morgan knew, too, that this wagon generally drew up just after taps, when the body was to be taken to the cemetery. Already a yawning grave would be waiting for the body, and an hour or so later the prison "dead bus" would rumble back through the gates.

Morgan worked over in his mind a desperate scheme. He wondered if he were too weak to attempt it, but the thought of freedom sent new life blazing through his racked body. He felt better, too, when they brought him some clear, hot broth and poured several spoonfuls down his parched throat.

The doctor made his final visit, felt Morgan's pulse and muttered:

"He'll be all right tomorrow. May as well let the poor devil stay here tonight—after what he's been through. He will probably get a good sleep."

Morgan was soon left alone in the room, which contained but one other bed—the one lately occupied by the unfortunate—or fortunate Carter. His clothes they had taken away and he had on but a sack-like gown of a heavy white material.

Only the small night light at the entrance to the room was left burning. Morgan knew that in a short time taps would blow. He began a tentative stretching of his muscles to test his condition. He was weak, but his resolution and constitution gave him strength. He slipped from the bed and his bare feet were on the floor. Just to sit up caused him painful effort, and he began to breathe hard. The room jazzed about him.

Desperate Chance
Takes Place of Corpse In Sack

He sat for a time on the edge of the bed and then got on his feet again. He reeled, and before he knew it he was sprawled on the bed again. He remained there for a short time and tried again. This attempt took him to the door. He leaned against the wall for a few minutes and laboriously made his way down the corridor to the morgue door. His knees wobbled, but he gritted his teeth. He must carry through. He groped for the handle to the door, and it yielded to his efforts. He went into the room and softly closed the door behind him. It was so dark that for a moment he could see nothing. Then, gradually he began to distinguish objects. Through the narrow, barred window came the faint glow of the moonlight from without. In one corner, near the outer door, he saw a covered figure on the mortuary slab.

Morgan hesitated. If he failed in this attempt he would be thrown again into the dungeon, and this time, he felt, he would

SPORTS GALORE FOR PICNIC OF VETERANS

Service Units Arranging To Co-operate in Outing Sponsored by Sun-Tele

Service organizations of Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and West Virginia are said to be considering ways and means of co-operating with the Sun-Telegraph in arrangements for its annual Service Men's and Women's Picnic at Kennywood Park, July 5.

Athletic contests are high on the list of prospective amusements for ex-soldiers and members of service units, according to advices in Pittsburgh.

C. G. Lane, Jr.

The affair is to be open to any person who has served in the active auxiliary military forces of the United States at any time. Free rides on park amusements are to be furnished everyone attending the gathering, with special passes likewise furnished for their companions of the opposite sex.

Informal reunions of several outfits are said to be planned for July 5. The picnic date was set because the day following the Fourth of July has been declared a holiday by many business firms in this district.

BINGHAM CHAIRMAN

Jack L. Bingham has been chosen as general chairman of the annual picnic, with Harry S. Hall assisting him.

Charles G. Lane, Jr., chairman of the general celebrations committee of the American Legion in this district, is co-operating with Bingham and Hall in planning the event.

MOVE TO AID CANDIDATES IN CITY

McGovern Acts to Pre-Empt Independent Title for Both State and Local Race

Petitions pre-empting the name "Independent Party" to carry Gifford Pinchot and his running mates on ballots at the November election were to be filed today with the prothonotary of Dauphin County.

The papers were in the hands of Attorney James A. Fox, chairman of the legislative committee of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen on behalf of County Commissioner C. C. McGovern, of Allegheny County.

Pinchot will be the candidate for governor and provision has been made for candidates for United States senator, lieutenant governor, secretary of internal affairs, justice of the Supreme Court and two judges of the Superior Court.

PRE-EMPT TITLE HERE

Coincident with the action in Dauphin County, Attorney Ralph Frank, representing Commissioner McGovern, today petitioned John Vogt, prothonotary of Allegheny County to pre-empt the name of "Independent Party" for local use in the 1931 election.

Candidates will be placed on next year's ballots under the "Independent" banner for members of City Council and city controller and these county offices: County commissioners, district attorney, prothonotary, recorder of deeds, controller, treasurer, register of wills, judges of Common Pleas Court, judges of County Court and directors of the poor.

FORECASTS STRUGGLE

Patenting the name of "Independent Party" for use in Allegheny County forecasts a bitter struggle for city and county offices next year that may place control of the Republican organization in new hands.

Three county commissioners are to be elected; two from the majority party and one from the minority party. The Republican, as the majority party, seems assured of retaining two commissioners and rumors indicate there will be numerous candidates for those offices. Incumbents are Joseph G. Armstrong and Edward V. Babcock.

With an "Independent Party" column on the ballot in 1931, the door will be open for a Republican, defeated at the primary, to run again in November, provided he has the sympathy of McGovern, who is responsible fer the new party.

WON'T CARRY CERTAINTY

For years the minority county commissioner had been a Democrat until McGovern was elected as an "Independent" in 1927 after losing the Republican nomination for county controller. He defeated former County Commissioner James Houlahen, running for a third term.

The same contingency prevails concerning all other city and county officers enumerated in the "Independent Party" column so that a Republican nomination next year will not carry the guarantee of election in November in the same degree it has in past years.

Reports from Philadelphia yesterday indicated that McGovern's move will harmonize with those of Pinchot's friends in the other counties of the state who are determined to insure the voters an opportunity to cast ballots for Pinchot at the general election.

Pinchot won the Republican nomination for governor at the May primary, but his nearest opponent, Francis Shunk Brown, has been granted a hearing before the State Supreme Court September 29 in Pittsburgh on petition to throw out the vote of Luzerne County on the allegation that ballots were mutilated by being perforated to prevent fraud.

In the event the Supreme Court throws out the Luzerne County vote, Pinchot would lose the Republican nomination to Brown and could not appear as an independent candidate on the ballot in November unless provision is made before September 5, the last day on which nominating petitions can be filed by a candidate not selected at the primary.

CLOSING HOURS AT STORES

The department stores today announced their business hours for the summer.

Beginning Monday, July 7, the stores will close at 5 o'clock. On September 2 they will resume the 5:30 p. m. closing.

From July 5 to August 23, inclusive, McCreery's will close at 1 o'clock on Saturdays.

From July 12 to August 23, Horne's, Kaufmann's, Meyer Jonasson and Boggs & Buhl will close at 1 o'clock on Saturdays.

Fifteen congregations from 12 towns of the Beaver Valley will be represented at the gathering which is being held in commemoration of the four-hundredth anniversary of the Augsburg Concession.

BLAME DRIVERS FOR MISHAPS

More than half of all traffic fatalities in Pittsburgh during the past seven years have been caused by carelessness on the part of motorists, according to a report being compiled by Traffic Engineer Lewis W. McIntyre.

The report, being prepared for the accident prevention section of the Better Traffic Committee by the bureau of traffic planning, shows that 1,152 persons were killed by motor vehicles during that period.

Of this number, 377 were occupants of autos; 281 were pedestrians who had the right-of-way and 494 were pedestrians who were jay-walking.

Splinter in Foot Causes Child's Death

The measure now goes to the White House. It would authorize $1,500,000 for the purchase.

Pittsburghers Supreme As Candy Eaters

Pittsburghers, on the average, eat almost twice as much candy as persons in other cities, C. S. Clark, director of educational work of the National Confectioners' Association, told members of the Pittsburgh Advertising Club at their luncheon. Clark said every person in Pittsburgh eats approximately 13 pounds of candy each year.

The retail value of candy eaten each year in Pittsburgh and vicinity is approximately $3,704,000, the cost of the 8,260,000 pounds consumed here annually. Pennsylvania stands second in consumption of candy, more than 147,238,474 pounds having been consumed here last year.

AWAIT COMMISSIONS TO SWEAR IN TWO NEW JUDGES

FULL BENCH TO SIT AT OATH TAKING

Appointment of Stadtfeld, Snee by Governor Fisher Fills Vacancies Here

Pittsburgh's two new judges of Common Pleas Court will be sworn in before the full bench as soon as their commissions arrive from Harrisburg. The two new judges, Judge Sylvester J. Snee, of the County Court, and Joseph Stadtfeld, former president of the Allegheny County Bar Association, were appointed yesterday by Gov. John S. Fisher to fill the vacancies caused by the death of Judge Josiah Cohen and the retirement of Judge John A. Evans, presiding judge.

The only other existing vacancy in the Pennsylvania judiciary was filled by Gov. Fisher by the appointment of John G. Whitmore, of Ridgway, to the Superior Court, to sit until he is succeeded next January by one of the two candidates nominated by the Republican and Democratic parties in the May primaries. The two nominees are Judge James B. Drew (Rep.), of Pittsburgh, and Judge Henry C. Niles (Dem.).

Selection of Whitmore was a surprise inasmuch as Judge Drew was expected to get the post in view of his victory in the primary for the position made vacant by the resignation of Judge J. Frank Graff, of Kittanning. It was said at the executive offices in Harrisburg that the interim appointment was offered to Judge Drew, but that no response was forthcoming from him.

ANDREINI HELD IN SHOOTING

Harry Andreini, facing charges in connection with the holdup of John B. Stauff, South Hills Trust Company messenger, was held today for further investigation after hearing in Central Police Court before Magistrate Leo Rothenberg, for the felonious shooting of Detective Florence Brunner, October 18, 1929.

Brunner testified he wanted Andreini in connection with a robbery and that he saw him in Tustin street. A gun battle followed in which Brunner said he was shot in the leg and Andreini in the arm. Brunner said:

"When Andreini got somewhere in the neighborhood of John Schneider's house, he disappeared."

Andreini growled:

"Why bring Schneider into the case?"

Schneider, who is a constable in the First Ward, is facing charges of being an accessory to robbery and to Andreini's escape. He is also confronting impeachment proceedings instituted by District Attorney Andrew T. Park.

Tag Sale Will Aid Jewish Babies' Home

Seven hundred Jewish women tomorrow will solicit donations for the Jewish Home for Babies in the annual tag day. The home has a capacity of 85 children and babies. Tags will be on sale in office buildings, hotel lobbies and on street corners.

VOTING RIGHTS OF 8 UPHELD

Eight of the 44 residents of the First District of the Sixth Ward whose right to vote was questioned appeared before the Registration Commissioners at a hearing last night. All eight were approved after producing evidence that they were qualified residents of the ward and citizens.

The registration board of the district was severely reprimanded by Attorney Thomas Kilgallen, counsel for the commission, for the condition of the registration books. Attorney B. L. Steinberg represented the eight voters.

Alderman Luke Sullivan, chairman of the district, was informed by the commission that he must bring in the other 36 whose right to vote has been questioned, or their names would be stricken from the books.

DELAY HEARING OF POLICEMEN

Police trial board hearings of Motorcycle Patrolman Fred Smith and Patrolman Herman Shaul, scheduled for today, were postponed until next Wednesday.

Smith's case was held over because he had not been given five days' notice. He is under suspension as a result of statements by Harry Andreini, held in the South Hills Trust Company messenger robbery, that Smith had permitted him to escape last fall at the request of Constable Jack Schneider, following his arrest.

Shaul's wife was reported seriously ill. He was named by a gang of South Side boys as having received part of the loot of slot machine robberies, according to police records. He was discharged at a hearing in South Side station.

SHOWBOAT SALE PERMIT GIVEN

An injunction was granted against the Showboat, restaurant and cabaret, moored in the Allegheny River near Sixth street, Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker issued the writ under the common nuisanse clause of the national prohibition act because, according to testimony, liquor was sold on the craft.

Earlier in the day the court refused to grant a "padlock" injunction against the Plaza Restaurant, 535 Fifth avenue, because the government failed to prove that liquor was kept on the premises and the establishment was a common nuisance, as defined by the statute. The day before, Judge Schoonmaker dismissed a bill of complaint against the Nixon Cafe for the same reason.

Under the court decree the John F. Eichleay Jr. Company, owners of the Showboat, was given permission to sell the carft. The purchaser would be allowed to operate it only after posting a $1,000 bond against further violation of the dry law on the premises.

PITTSBURGHERS GO TO ICELAND

NEW YORK, June 25.—Mr. and Mrs. George L. Craig, Miss Henrietta S. Craig and Dr. Kenneth M. Day, of Pittsburgh, sailed on the S. S. Carintha to pass four weeks in northern climes with some 400 fellow passengers.

The Pittsburgh voyagers will rest at North Cape from July 4 to 7, during which period there will be no sunset and the midnight sun will be visible every night. They will visit Iceland, Norway, Sweden, France, England, Denmark and Russia.

They will return home about August 12, having covered about ten thousand miles on land and sea.

WORKERS HURT FLEEING FIRE

Two employes of the Atlantic Refining Company plant at Fifty-sixth street and Allegheny river were injured today when fire broke out in the plant. They were Vincent Bell, 30, of Milgate street, and Charles McKinney, 20, of Gibsonia place, who received lacerations when they fell in escaping the flames.

The fire itself was short-lived, although for a brief minute flames shot high in the air. The fire was caused when oil leaked from a pipe onto a hot box in a condenser still. The flames were extinguished when the flow of oil was stopped.

Girl Employe Held In Check Forging

Miss Mary Lananna, 16, of 477 Flowers avenue, was held for court today by Magistrate Thomas D. Jones in Morals Court on a charge of forgery. She was arrested on complaint of Mrs. Betty Eich, of 837 North St. Clair street, who testified that while the girl was employed by her she had forged her name to seven checks for a total of $26.

Identifies Man in Gas Station Holdup

Police are holding Martin for further investigation. Bigrer has been in Allegheny General Hospital until yesterday.

Couldn't Count Times Wife Left Him; Sues

His wife left him so many times he could not count them, Howard C. Gibson testified before Judge Samuel H. Gardner, in giving reasons why he wants a divorce from Gladys Gibson.

The couple, who lived in Camden, Mifflin Township, went to Wellsburg in 1927 and were married and separated last year, Gibson testified his wife stayed out all night and told him it was none of his business when he asked her where she had been.

The couple have one child, in possession of the father.

FUMES FATAL TO MAN IN CAR

Samuel K. Schultz, 41, real estate dealer, of 323 Chartiers avenue, McKees Rocks, was found dead early today in his automobile which had been parked in the Windgap road near the Windgap school. The car windows were tightly closed and the machine was filled with carbon monoxide fumes, police said. At the morgue it was said death was due to carbon monoxide poisoning.

Lieut. Harry Hatters and Patrolman Earl Johnson were riding in Windgap road when they discovered the parked automobile. Investigating they found Schultz slumped in the back seat. The motor of the machine was not running but was hot, police said. The body was taken to the morgue.

Mrs. Helen Schultz told morgue attaches today that her husband had left home yesterday morning for Pittsburgh. She said he had conducted the Pennsylvania Real Estate Company in McKees Rocks for several years. He was a World War Veteran and had been gassed while overseas she said.

North Side Girl Hit, Driver Held

Anna May Swenk, 14, of 3523 East street, was cut and bruised when hit by an automobile at East and Venture streets, North Side last night. James Seidel, 32, of 910 Suismon street, driver of the machine, was arrested on a reckless driving charge. The girl was treated at the Allegheny General Hospital.

Camera Question Box

Today's question: Col. Nelson Morris, wealthy Chicagoan, says a woman cannot successfully combine marriage and a career. What is your opinion?

Miss Janscar

MISS ANNA JANSCAR, clerk, Knoxville—A woman cannot successfuly combine marriage and a career. She can keep up a house, a place to eat and sleep, but it isn't a home, and a home is what one wants with marriage.

Charles White

CHARLES WHITE, barber, Sewickley—I agree with Col. Morris. A marriage can hardly be successful when the woman insists on concentrating her interests on what she calls a career.

Miss Schultz

MISS MARIE SCHULTZ, clerk, Homestead—I think that when a woman is married she should devote all her time to her home and should leave thoughts of a career out of the question.

MRS. ALICE DONAHOE, housewife, Overbrook—Yes a woman can marry and carry on a business career quite successfully. If she has had business experience she can add to the income of the family and can afford to have a housekeeper. Or, if it is not too much of a physical strain she can even do the housework herself.

Mrs. Donahoe

JESS THOMAS, store manager, North Side—There isn't anything to stop a woman from marrying and carrying on a career at the same time these days. Her rights are now equal with man's rights and many women today are doing just that.

Jess Thomas

LOU GOLDBERG, store manager, Squirrel Hill—Lindy's marriage has certainly been a success and his wife has gone with him on all his trips and has even taken up flying in a serious way. Isn't that a good example of a career and marriage working together happily?

FIVE ARRESTED IN RAIDS FINED

Arrested in raids following complaints to District Attorney Andrew T. Park and Supt. of Police Peter P. Walsh, six persons were arraigned in Morals Court today.

They were charged with keeping disorderly houses or visiting disorderly houses.

Miss Elizabeth Rodgers, 30, of 1328 Colwell street, one of the six arrested, was fined $50 on a charge of keeping a disorderly house.

Raiders also arrested Mrs. Hattie Burris, 33, Negro, of 1318 Colwell street, a Chinese and another Negro woman. Mrs. Burris was discharged, but the Chinese was fined $2 and the other woman $10.

Mrs. Vera Magusa, 50, of 1015 Webster avenue, was fined $25 on a charge of keeping a disorderly house. A man seized in the raid was fined $2 and a woman, also arrested, $10.

ENJOIN HOTELS IN RUM ACTIONS

Temporary injunctions were granted by Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker against the Central Hotel, West Main street, Carnegie, and the St. Clair Hotel, 1922 West Liberty avenue, on bills of complaint charging violations of the prohibition law.

James L. Orris was designated as proprietor of the Central Hotel and William Zehfuss as proprietor of the St. Clair Hotel. Pending final hearings on September 9, the alleged proprietors and owners of the properties are restrained from permitting violations of the dry law on the premises.

STATE GUARDS PREPARE FOR CAMP

Schedule for Two Weeks Training Is Announced; 3,200 Men Called Out

More than 3,200 Pennsylvania National Guardsmen of the Central region are making preparation for their annual two weeks' camp training at Fort Meade, Tobyhanna, Mount Gretna, and Carlisle.

Detachments from Coraopolis, Grove City and Pittsburgh will leave July 5 for Fort Meade, the first camp to be occupied this summer. The Pittsburgh detachment will be composed of the Twenty-eighth Signal Company and units of the One Hundred and Seventh and One Hundred and Seventy-sixth Field Artillery. The Grove City and Pittsburgh men will entrain at Union Station.

BATTERY GOES JULY 17

The service battery of the One Hundred Seventy-sixth Field Artillery, composed of 75 men, will leave Shadyside station July 16 for Tobyhanna, arriving there July 17. The remaining 546 men of the One Hundred Seventy-sixth will leave East Liberty station July 18 and arrive at Tobyhanna July 19.

The entire One Hundred and Twelfth Infantry will receive their training at Mt. Gretna. The infantry is made up of men from Oil City, Franklin, Ford City, Grove City, Butler, Erie, Corry, Ridgeway, Meadville, Warren, Kane and Bradford. The entire unit will be quartered at Mt. Gretna July 19. Four sleepers from Oil City will accommodate units from Franklin and Ford City, scheduled to leave July 18.

Three hundred and seven men of Battery B, E, F and the service battery of the One Hundred Seventh Field Artillery will board trains August 1 at East Liberty for Tobyhanna, arriving there August 2. An advance detail of 36 men, also of the One Hundred Seventh Field Artillery, are scheduled to leave the Union station July 30 and arrive at Tobyhanna July 31.

110TH ENTRAINS AUGUST 2

The One Hundred and Tenth Infantry, comprising units from Scottdale, Connellsville, Mt. Pleasant, Greensburg, Latrobe, Indiana, Blairsville, Somerset, New Brighton, Waynesburg, Washington, Monessen and Monongahela, will be established at Mt. Gretna August 2.

Eight cars will carry members of the One Hundred and Third Medical Regiment to their quarters at Carlisle, where they will arrive August 15. This regiment is composed of Coraopolis, Canonsburg and Ligonier men.

TWO DIRECTORS ELECTED TO VACANCIES

Departmental Head Named To Co-operate With New Group to Aid Citizenship

The recommendations of Supt. William M. Davidson of Public Schools, that two assistant directors be appointed to fill vacancies in the curriculum study and research department, were adopted by the Board of Education at its meeting yesterday. The positions pay $4,500 a year each. N. R. Criss, vice president of the board, opposed the appointments.

Dr. Frank Gatto, principal of the Duquesne and Schiller schools, and Charles E. Manwiller, of the Indiana State Teachers' College, were named to fill the positions. The board also authorized Dr. Davidson to assign R. O. Hughes in the department of curriculum study to the special field of social sciences.

Mr. Hughes will act as liaison officer between the schools and the newly formed citizenship committee. The committee, composed of prominent citizens, wishes to promote better citizenship through wider knowledge of political and other public affairs.

James D. Hailman, former member of the school board, was honored. Resolutions paying respect to his memory were adopted. The resolutions had been prepared by Dr. George W. Gerwig, N. R. Criss, Taylor Allderdice, Dr. A. L. Lewin and Robert Voegtly.

TRUCK CONTEST AIDS SAFETY

More than 4,300 drivers of the 76 truck fleets are taking part in the second inter-fleet truck safety contest sponsored by the Better Traffic Committee and the Western Pennsylvania Safety Council, George E. Clarkson, director, said today.

That the inter-fleet contest is resulting in a reduction in traffic accidents was the conclusion of the report. It showed accidents have been reduced in the participating fleets from an average of 75 per cent per thousand operating hours to 46 per cent.

The contest is to close October 31. Plaques will be awarded the winners of the various sections, representing different fleet sizes. No-accident drivers will be awarded certificates.

$60,000 ASKED IN DRUG ERROR

Having suffered internal injuries due to an alleged mistake in the filling of a prescription containing strychnine, James G. Hill, Jr., on behalf of his wife, Rose M. Hill, has brought suit against E. J. Kretz, Jr., for $60,000 damages.

It is averred that at the time the prescription was filled in the Kretz pharmacy at 798 Hazelwood avenue, that Mrs. Hill, of 529 Hazelwood avenue, was being attended by Dr. F. C. Blessing. It is alleged that among other ingredients a one-eightieth grain of strychnine was prescribed for each capsule. Instead, it is claimed, that the capsules contained one-fifth of a grain each. As a result of the taking of the medicine, Mrs. Hill suffered convulsions. James G. Hill, Sr., joined in the action in the case on account of young Hill being only 20. The plaintiffs are represented by Louis and George Little.

ASK $4,000,000 IN 96 SUITS

Ninety-six suits, asking for damages totaling approximately $4,000,000, were filed late yesterday against the Clairton By-Products Coke Company in the prothonotary's office, Common Pleas Court.

The suits are filed in the name of residents of Peter's Creek who claim that the company's 100-acre plant there has been injurious to their health.

In the papers filed today it is claimed that the plant was erected in an unskillful manner and that as a result quantities of unhealthful gas are liberated. The plant is said to burn 40,000 tons of coal daily.

Among the injuries specified by the plaintiffs are injuries to eyes and to respiratory, digestive and nervous systems; they claim they have been subjected to severe coughs, bronchitis, pneumonia, tuberculosis and loss of weight, appetite and muscular control.

LOVELORN BOY SHOOTS SELF

CHICAGO, June 25.—(INS.)—Eugene Taubitz, 18-year-old high school student, lay near death today with a self-inflicted bullet wound above his heart. Disappointment over a love affair caused him to attempt suicide, it was explained.

First the youth wrote a farewell letter to his sweetheart, then he shot himself above the heart and staggered to a corner mail box and posted the letter.

His condition was reported to be critical.

U. S. Commissions Cruiser Chester

URGES MARKET QUIZ BY HOUSE

WASHINGTON, June 25.—(Universal.)—Sweeping investigation into the current stock market depression as well as the recession of last October and November will be called for in a resolution Representative L. J. Dickinson (Rep.), of Iowa, is expected to introduce in the House today. Dickinson, senatorial nominee from Iowa, will issue a broadside against "bear" operations in the New York stock market.

Support of House Republican leaders is understood to have been given the Dickinson resolution.

A select committee of the House will be called for in the Dickinson resolution. This would make it unnecessary for the Senate to pass upon it.

This move follows charges by Representative Will Wood (Rep.), of Indiana, that a deliberate drive to depress securities prices has been under way, designed to discredit the Hawley-Smoot tariff act and engineered by interests unfriendly to the Republican administration.

A visit to the new Clifford B. Connelley Trade School and round-table discussions were on the program today of the ninth annual conference on printing education, being held at Carnegie Institute of Technology. The sessions today were to close the conference, which opened Monday morning.

The delegates yesterday visited the Miller Printing Machinery Company and attended a luncheon with company employes. In the afternoon there were discussions on the art of printing and printing education. The conference is being sponsored by Carnegie Institute of Technology and the United Typothetae of America.

BOATS CAPSIZE, 2 MEN DROWN

CLEVELAND, June 25.—(AP.)—Two men drowned in Lake Erie when two rowboats carrying six men capsized. Police said the men were drinking and that one stood up, overturning the boat.

Efforts of those in the other boat to rescue the men in the water caused the second boat to capsize. Four of the men were pulled from the water by coast guardsmen.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Today another young daughter of one of Pittsburgh's most prominent families is making her debut at the family's Sewickley Heights place, "Franklin Farms."

And the debutante, as you've guessed, is Madelaine Alexander, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Maitland Alexander, of Ridge avenue, North Side, and Sewickley Heights.

The bud, who is receiving with her mother and her grandmother, Mrs. Alexander Laughlin, Jr., is wearing delphinium blue chiffon and lace, and is carrying yellow roses and delphinium. Her mother is gowned in rose and white chiffon and her grandmother in gray lace. Both have corsages of orchids.

Edith Davis of Hartford, Conn., and Ruth Quackenbush of New York, house guests at "Franklin Farms," are among the aides. Edith is wearing canary yellow chiffon and Ruth turquoise blue chiffon. Another out-of-town guest at the debut is Mrs. Elizabeth M. Horne of New York, formerly of Pittsburgh.

Many Aides

Madelaine has also asked to be her aides Ruth Willock, Hester Browne, Elizabeth McKay, Elizabeth Childs, Barbara Irwin, Sylvia Robertson, Laura Collord, her cousin, Mary Robinson, Peggy Milligan, Anne Stewart, Virginia Wright, Emily Frew, Rosamond Fitch, Anne and Margaret Rose, Mary Elizabeth Floyd, Dorothy Jarvis, Caroline Crittenden, Katherine Collin, Lydia Irish and Rebecca Doyle.

Laura Collard is wearing a flowered chiffon gown, and Ruth Willock has chosen a frock of turquoise blue crepe de chine.

Very smart is the dark and light blue flowered chiffon dress being worn by Elizabeth Childs. The frock has a jacket of the chiffon with attractive short sleeves. Flowered chiffon forms Anne Stewart's dress, and this popular summer material also is the choice of the Rose girls, Margaret and Anne.

Some Pittsburgh folks are going to be in Hyannisport, Mass., tomorrow to attend the wedding of a charming bud of the past winter, Ruth Drake, daughter of the J. Frank Drakes, and Chester Harding Lasell, son of the Josiah Manning Lasells, of Whitinsville, Mass., which will take place, as I've said before, in St. Andrew-by-the-Sea, Hyannisport, at 5 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Drake Wedding

The Howard J. Heinzes, the Leslie M. Johnsons, the William B. Trainers, the William S. Moorheads, the George S. Olivers, the Franklin C. Irishes, Howard J. Heinz, Jr., John H. Hillman III, James McKay and Douglas Hannah will be guests.

And Pittsburgh members of the Hyannisport and Wianno colonies who'll attend include the Walter C. Carrolls, the Howard S. Evanses, the J. Judson Brookses and Mrs. Ralph S. Richards, of Sewickley.

Last night there was another wedding added to the many notable marriages of June, Ruth Martin, daughter of Mrs. James Stephen Martin, of Walnut street, became the bride of Richard Khuen, III, of Sewickley, last evening at 8 o'clock in the Martin home, Walnut street, with the Rev. Dr. Edwin J. Van Etten, rector of Calvary Protestant Episcopal Church, as officiant.

Martin Wedding

Before an embankment of white peonies and ferns Lieut. Commander Carl K. Martin gave his sister in marriage. She wore a deep ivory satin gown with a court train of satin and a veil of tulle with a cap of rose point lace arranged with sprays of orange blossoms. She carried lavender orchids and lilies of the valley.

Her sister, Mrs. R. G. Rhoton, of Norfolk, Va., as matron of honor, appeared in pansy crepe and carried pink roses. The bridesmaids, Mrs. J. Scott Thornton, of Sewickley, Mrs. John Vance Booth, Mrs. William Charles Albertson and Mrs. Bernard K. Shaner, of Pittsburgh; Mrs. Wiley M. Caldwell, of Beverly Hills, Cal., and Mrs. Dudley W. Rice, of Cleveland, wore gowns of crepe, with two appearing in rose, two in orchid and two in green. And they carried arm bouquets of peonies.

Pastel Gowns

Richard Khuen, Jr., was his son's best man, and Douglas D. Loree and Charles E. Irvin, of Ann Arbor, Mich., J. Scott Thornton, of Sewickley, and John W. Logan, of Philadelphia, were ushers.

The mother of the bride wore black and white chiffon and received with her son-in-law and daughter after the ceremony.

Attending from out of town were the Spencer K. Mulfords, of Wyncote, Pa.; Mrs. Samuel Haynes, of Columbus, O.; Ellsworth Haynes, of Columbus, O.; Edwin Jeness, of Cleveland; the W. Rices, of Meddlefield, O., and Miss Beulah Kennard, of Glenside, Pa.

After a northern wedding trip, the Khuens will be at home in Sewickley.

Chiffons, printed crepes and lace are to be popular materials for gowns to be worn at weddings this season. Yesterday at the wedding of Clarissa Howe Reed, daughter of the Samuel Clarke Reeds, of Murray Hill avenue, and Paul Robbins Haviland, son of the Walter W. Havilands, of Landsdowne, Pa., which I told you about yesterday afternoon, I saw many simple frocks of crepes and of lace and chiffon combined.

Smart Frocks

Mrs. William Thaw, Jr., chose an attractive gown of orchid flowered chiffon with which she wore an orchid horsehair hat, trimmed with orchid velvet ribbon.

Pittsburgh Club Women On Tour Will Visit Pope, Mussolini

Audiences with the Pope and with Mussolini have already been arranged for Mrs. John S. Sloan and Mrs. Walter R. Fleming, prominent clubwomen, who are sailing July 3 for a three-month European tour. They will leave Pittsburgh Sunday morning, motoring to East Orange to be guests of Mrs. Charles E. Stephens and her mother, Mrs. Thomas K. Lysinger, niece and sister of Mrs. Sloan.

They will sail on the Saturnia, which will make short stops at Algiers and Tunis, landing at Naples. After touring Italy, the travelers will go to Switzerland, to Germany for the Passion Play and a Rhine trip and will later spend a month in England with Tourquay as headquarters.

Mrs. Sloan is president of the Sarah Sloan Scholarship Club and a past president of the Congress of Clubs and Mrs. Fleming is president of the Chartiers Women's Clubs Association and a former president of the Brookline Women's Civic Club. The annual president's day reception of the Chartiers women will be held October 9 at Mrs. Fleming's home in Pioneer avenue, Dormont.

Mrs. John S. Sloan, life president of the Sarah Sloan Scholarship Club, has appointed her 1930-31 chairmen as follows: Mrs. M. R. Moxley, social committee; Mrs. H. C. Breidert, hospitality; Mrs. Frank D. Johnston, activities; Mrs. J. C. Bradley, publicity; Mrs. W. C. McClure, program.

Thursday, November 27, is the tentative date for the president's reception of the Twentieth Century Club and it is expected that the clubhouse alterations will be completed by that time and that the reception will serve also as a housewarming.

Date Is Set

GIRL TO PLAY QUEEN VICTORIA

LONDON, June 25.—(AP.)—Lady Mary Cambridge, 6, is to impersonate Queen Victoria. She will wear a gown of satin and lace made on the lines of those worn by the Queen 90 years ago. Juveniles of the peerage are to give a pageant Thursday depicting one of Queen Victoria's courts.

SUBTLE DIFFERENCES WILL DISTINGUISH AUTUMN COATS

—Sketched in Paris—

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, JUNE 25.—A little Russian dressing will be added to the sartorial menu this Autumn judging by the Cossack tunics and coats we have already glimpsed. Whether this be due to the popularity of astrakan or whether the Russian influence has launched the vogue for astrakan we are not prepared to testify. Anyway both items are pleasing and becoming, and so we need not go below the surface. We think that when the woodland tints of Autumn add their rich beauty to the scene, you will be prepared to enjoy the very pleasing fur-trimmed cloth coats that will continue to more than hold their own. Many of these coats will be available in warm shades of yellow and brown lavishly befurred with astrakan and other flat furs. We know this sounds rather like last season's bulletin, but a cursory glance at the sketch shown with this cable will show you some obvious as well as subtle differences, all of them very desirable ones.

BLACK WITH BRIGHTLY colored accessories for evening seems to quite fill the bill here at present, and when cleverly and not too obviously or deliberately used a tremendous amount of chic may be obtained and a simple frock that has seen wear during the season can be made quite of the mode. For a plan of this kind it would be as well to choose a frock of semi-sheer material such as marocain or georgette, simply but smartly cut and free from trimming or superfluous detail.

HEREWITH IS A DESCRIPTION of the coat mentioned earlier in this message. It is from the new Vionnet collection and is of buff broadcloth richly trimmed with brown astrakan, with the Cossack influence quite apparent. The wide, wrap-over front is pulled in beneath a narrow string belt fastening at the side and the flaring sleeves top about four inches above the wrist. The raglan shoulder is typical of Vionnet's coats as well as many of her dresses.

* * *

THE MAGGY ROUFF evening gown of black marocain is extremely simple in line and detail, but when worn with vivid green accessories takes on much importance and a vast amount of arresting chic. In this case the accessories include long suede gloves and a large chiffon handkerchief. As to the frock, diagonal piecings lend interest to the bodice and skirt and the flaring flounce is draped in such a way as to space the folds at regular intervals giving a graceful and somewhat symmetrical effect.

WHAT IS THIS THING CALLED "TANG"?

It's the difference between taste and flavor. And when all memory of flavor is gone, the taste of PEBECO Tooth Paste—and its soothing, refreshing, comforting mouth effect—still lingers on. It is this cooling tang that makes Pebeco so different from the insipid, soapy type of tooth paste. It gives the Pebeco user the cleanest, whitest teeth, firm gums, and the refreshing thrill of an invigorated mouth. If you want this extra virtue in a tooth paste, try Pebeco.

HOTEL ESCAPES PADLOCKING

NEW YORK, June 25.—(AP.)—The government's first attempt here to close an entire hotel failed today when Federal Judge Knox refused a petition to padlock the Cornish Arms Hotel for violation of the prohibition law. Judge Knox issued an injunction against the sale of alcoholic beverages by the hotel corporation for one year.

The hotel was raided February 11 last after an investigation which began with a beefsteak dinner. The government contended the hotel served liquor to guests at the dinner and that waiters and bellboys sold it to guests at other times.

Judge Knox said in view of the evidence and the fact that the hotel is in receivership he would not order it padlocked.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

What Can Be Done About High Cost of Living?

This column has gone finance.

First it's Adele, wanting to know if a sensible, economical girl is really appreciated—or if gentlemen prefer gold diggers because that flatters their vanity.

And today it's Albert complaining about the high cost of living and suggesting that the girl friend who has a job should share the bills.

Now don't get Albert wrong. He isn't a tightwad. He's just an earnest young chap who doesn't want to end up in the poor house and who wants to provide the right kind of a future for Missis Al and Junior when and if he ever accumulates them.

Al gives her plenty of reason why.

"Dear Sally Martin:

"I've read your articles ever since they began appearing but this is the first time I've got up courage to write and tell you any of my ideas.

"The reason I'm writing now is your article about Harriet, who wanted to know why an office girl can't afford her man. I think I know why many girls like Harriet lead lonely lives and I'm sure if the condition I speak of could be remedied it would be a big help to both the Harriets and the Tommys of this twentieth century.

QUESTIONS ON ECONOMY

"You admit yourself that the Harriets often make more than the Tommys. Now how in the world are any of us Tommys going to live decently and save money for the future if we spend only $2.50 a week even, and sometimes a lot more, to entertain girls? How can we ever go on any fishing trips or do anything we want to do on say $100 or even $200 a month? How can we ever be 'somebody' or be able to save money for our age or to buy a home or take the right kind of care of a wife and children if we do marry, when entertaining comes so high?

"It's all right if a fellow meets his 'right girl' to take her out. But before he does meet her . . . and if he ever is to meet her . . . a lot of contacts must be made in order to find the right one. And if you're going to spend so much to make these contacts, how are you ever going to 'get by?' Will you tell me that?

SUGGESTS DUTCH TREAT

"Now here's what I think would help. When a girl makes just as much . . . or maybe more . . . than a fellow . . . why shouldn't she help foot the bills for shows and dinners? Why couldn't they go Dutch treat? Then they would both be going out in company and finding a lot of companionship and fun and getting really acquainted. Why must the Tommys foot all the bills and the Harriets save all the money? If they didn't have to, the Harriets could be in jolly company a whole lot more often.

"After all, in those porch-and-hammock days girls did a lot of the entertaining. Only they did it in their own homes, and yet now they think it's all up to the boys.

"I make enough to entertain myself and save a little, but I'm dog-goned if I'm not almost as lonesome as Harriet is, because I just simply haven't got the dough to go out and buy a lot of expensive luxuries for myself or anyone else. Not unless I'm willing to end up in the 'poorhouse' or something. And I don't think it's fair for a girl to take so much off a fellow who isn't making any more than she is.

"I just wish some of the self-sufficient well-paid lonesome Harriets could read what goes on sometimes in my grey matter.

"What do you say, Sally?

"ALBERT HEATH."

SOUNDS SENSIBLE

Well there he is girls. What's your verdict? I'll admit that some of his remarks make sense.

Why shouldn't a girl with a job pay for her share of the fun?

"But we do pay for giving him the pleasure of taking us out!" snort about 67,249 indignant young ladies.

And he gives you the pleasure of taking him out. He isn't a bit more keen on taking you than you are on being taken, so why pretend? As far as enjoyment goes, it's a fifty-fifty split. So why shouldn't you shoulder your half of the damages?

We wanted our rights, and we got them. Sister Sue and Brother Bill are both on the payroll now. Ladies are no longer clinging vines. Then why should they expect to be treated as such? And isn't it really as shameful for a mature young woman to have her way paid through life as for a mature young man? Aren't women people? And, if so, why shouldn't they exhibit cash proof?

Yes, I know, there's plenty of argument on both sides. Then let's have it. Tell us why, and see yourself in print.

"AFTER THE BALL"

Drawn by NELL BRINKLEY

"The thoughts of youth are long, long thoughts!"

The thoughts of youth are delicate, yet strong. Youth, in thoughts, in secret thoughts, a busy shadow you cannot see, lays the foundation of its life, thought upon thought, dream upon dream. It builds with frail thoughts, rosy colored, daring thoughts, pure of worldly delusion, unsuspicious thoughts, full of might and beauty. Hand youth more beautiful thoughts to help him build, and that is enough good deed for you.

The thoughts of youth are often of love. Very young love-thoughts are without materialism. Even the word "marriage" sometimes is not even a rumor in the dreams that haunt youth's bed after the ball. Nor the word "future." Nor the word "wisdom." Just to think of a face beloved, to remember the words the face spoke, the smile upon the face, the look in the eyes of the face. To remember is enough, and to hope to see it again. A rose to remember by; stars that are looking upon that face, too, to shine their magic down, a vision of Eros, not laughing, only faintly smiling, and the silence of the night. To remember and to think is enough for youth, for the very young.

Never lay a soiled finger upon the lovely thoughts of youth. Never give youth a bitter thought, old with experience, to weaken his own untarnished thoughts by contract, like a brown spoiled apple against a sound red one. Youth contemplates that stained thought and puzzles and suffers over it.

"Love" is a beautiful image to the very young. Never blur his shape for them with your older cynical finger.

How to Keep Well

By DR. COPELAND

Food Poisoning—A Hot Weather Menace

DR COPELAND

For the most part, the foods we eat are wholesome and free from any contaminating influences. We need not worry about them. Government regulations and careful inspection of all foodstuffs are so strictly carried out in the United States today that most foods come to us in splendid condition.

But because some foods contain deadly bacteria, or ptomaines, it is incumbent upon us to buy only of reliable dealers. We must learn what are the earmarks of good meats, as well as other foods. We should know their origin, as well as the signs of their freshness and fitness for consumption.

The trouble is that in some instances there is nothing about the food we buy, either before or after it is cooked, to indicate that it is unsafe to eat. Usually we know either by its taste or smell whether the meat or other food is good to eat. Sometimes these bacterial poisons are so resistant to heat that neither roasting nor boiling can destroy them.

Ptomaine poisoning may come from canned meats, or other canned goods. This rarely occurs now, since government inspection is rigidly enforced.

There is probably no animal tissue that decomposes and forms ptomaines as quickly as fish. When taken from its natural element, the water, fish die and decompose very rapidly. Bacteria of a deadly nature form very rapidly in the tissues. Such poisons form much more quickly in the heat than in the cold. Therefore it is very necessary to keep all fish on ice in order to have them fresh and safe for eating.

Apart from the influence of food, there are some poisons that develop in the human body. This is true in diseases like typhus fever, Asiatic cholera, or lockjaw.

Ptomaine poisoning varies very much in its severity and character. Its severity depends upon the virulence of the poison, and one's resistance to disease.

The attack may appear immediately after eating the food, or hours or even days may pass before the ill effects are felt. In the latter case the attack is usually most severe, for all the time poisons are at work in the body.

One of the first symptoms of food poisoning is intense itching or pricking of the skin. It is apt to grow in intensity until it is almost unbearable. Soon there are cramps in the intestines, nausea and vomiting. Fever, headache, dizziness and weak heart action follow.

While waiting for the doctor, the patient should be kept warm in bed. The bowels should be kept open. It is very necessary to eliminate the poisons in the system as soon as possible, and to this end the patient should drink tepid water to which soda has been added. Vomiting may be induced in this way, or by sticking the finger as far back in the throat as possible, the food will be ejected.

Care in the selection and cooking of foods will keep you from disease. Let us not trust to good luck.

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Loves Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Roderick Decides He Doesn't Want to Fight Junior

I was too experienced in the many little ways of children to spoil Roderick's martyrdom too suddenly. His joy and gratitude because of my offer to provide him with the tools for which he longed had enabled him to rise to a real height of self-sacrifice.

"I told you downstairs, Roderick," I said, "that neither you nor Junior was to receive any 'licking' for your fight. So put that out of your mind. I am going to give you both some punishment, as I told you before, because you forgot to be gentlemen and hit each other in a lady's house. But it won't be a very hard punishment, because this is the first time it happened, and I'm sure neither of you will forget again. Now will you sit quietly here while I go on and talk to Junior?"

"Yes, Aunt Margaret." The voice was subdued—and relieved.

"Uncle Richard will come back and keep you company and in a few minutes I shall come and fetch you over to the room where you're going to sleep."

"Is that Junior's room?" The voice held no antagonism, simply childish curiosity.

"Yes, dear." I turned to the door, but halted with my hand on the knob as Roderick spoke again.

"About—fighting it out—with—Junior," he said haltingly. "I don't think we have to, unless you want us to."

"We'll see about that later, Roderick." I told him as I hastily closed the door and fairly ran to my father's room where Dicky awaited me.

"Prithee, fair dame, why so mirthful?" Dicky eyed me curiously as he answered my knock and found me leaning against the lintel spent with laughter which was as much the half hysterical outlet of tautened nerves as it was mirth.

"I haven't time to tell you now," I said, "for—"

"Just for that!" Dicky caught at me, but I eluded his arms, though I longed to go into them, and darted back through the door.

"I never 'pet' during office hours." I murmured demurely. "Will you please go back to Roderick for a few minutes. I'll come and take him away as soon as I've had a little session with Junior. And when both boys are asleep, I'll tell you the whole story, if you'll keep awake till then."

"I'll even try to do that for your sweet sake," he intoned. "No task too arduous."

But I was already down the hall, smiling at his bombast, for I knew as well as he that if he ever closed his eyes before midnight he was ill or inordinately fatigued from some long stretch of work.

Junior was sitting where I had left him, his face screwed up ludicrously in a patent effort at concentration. But at my entrance he jumped up from his chair and rushed toward me, hugging me ecstatically.

"I know," I acknowledged. "I did not think I would be gone so long. But it has given you more time to think things out, hasn't it?"

"Yes." He brought up a sigh apparently from his heels. "I guess I have everything straight now."

There was a gloominess in his voice which I understood. Somewhere in his retrospection and introspection he had discovered that he was not an entirely innocent party to the quarrel between himself and Roderick and he dreaded the confession of his culpability to me. But he did not delay his story.

"It was this way," he began and gave me the same story which Roderick already had related to me up to the time where his cousin had called him a sissy.

"Then I got awful mad, Mother," my small son said shamefacedly, "and I called him a 'nawful' name. It's just a terrible name, worse than any of Roderick's." There was distinct complacence at his superior vocabulary subconsciously mingled with his equally patent sense of guilt.

"What was the name, Junior?" I asked.

"Must I tell?" he answered.

"Yes." I returned inexorably.

"Then put your ear down," he said, and I saw with amazement that his face was fiery red. "I don't want to say it out loud."

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Both Hostess and Guest in The Wrong

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. Is it proper for a hostess to tell an invited guest (at a bridge game) that she is rude just because, when served with food that did not agree with her, the guest said politely, that she could not eat it? The hostess claimed that at a bridge game the guest must eat what is served.

2. When a sorority gives an affair and the girl asks a young man friend to accompany her, who should pay for the ticket.

3. If the young man offers to pay for the ticket, should the young lady let him, or should she say that it is her sorority and that she thinks it is her place to pay, as she invited him? S. B.

1. Both hostess and guest were in the wrong here. The guest should have taken some of the food that was served, even if it was not especially to her liking. We all must learn this lesson early, in our social life, that we must not show our hostess that we do not like what she is serving. There are subtle ways of "toying with food," and these we must acquire if we wish to be a popular guest, and if we do not wish to give offence.

On the other hand, even if the guest does make it conspicuous that she does not enjoy the foods that the hostess serves, the hostess should make no comment on this fact.

In both cases, the least said and the least observed, the better.

2. The girl who is the co-hostess on this occasion should get the tickets.

3. She explains to him, graciously, that she is co-hostess, and that since it is more or less her party, she wishes to have the privilege of being the "complete hostess" and providing the tickets for that hospitality and for her invitation.

The "At Home" Card

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

What does it mean when a bride's cards read "At home after May 15"? Does it mean that she receives on that particular day, or just when? ANNIE

This message on her cards means that the bride invites her friends to come to see her on any day after that date. It does not mean that she will receive her friends on any special date, either the fifteenth of May or any other date.

Reminding One's Guest of The Hour

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. Should a girl tell a young man what time he should go home when he calls on her?

2. Should she tell him when to come again and if it does not suit him, let him object?

MAY.

1. The well-bred young man will know when to go, and he himself will make the suggestion, just as any other visitor would do. We hope that the hostess won't have to remind him of the hour and of its seasonableness for departure! But, if this must be done because he is over-staying, she will do it with the maximum of graciousness—and this necessity certainly takes graciousness!

2. She invites him to come again, if she wishes, and then he may, if he wishes, nominate a time. Or he may take the invitation in a general way, and later telephone or write when he wishes to make a definite engagement.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Thursday, June 26

Most important and eventful is the forecast made from the ruling stellar operations of this day. It may be a day of pronounced extremes with brilliant success and achievement following fast upon a most tenacious obstruction or hopeless situation. With indomitable will and persistency these may be rounted to make way for excellent conditions, with financial increase, attained ambitions, promotion, preferment and favors from those in high places. There is change in store and the personal position will also be advanced.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a most eventful and important year. Although they may be called on to wrestle with tenacious obstacles and difficult situations, by dogged industry and determination all should be overcome and advancement, high position, desired ambitions and financial satisfaction may be attained. There may be beneficial change and social popularity. A child born on this day should be splendidly equipped by native talents, keen mind, high ambitions, sterling qualities and social prestige to reach high goals in life.

never emerge alive. But the spur of vengeance goaded him. He must leave the prison!

He walked unsteadily toward the slab. He removed the dirty old blanket from the corpse. The remains of Carter had been sewed up in a coarse sack. With trembling fingers Morgan managed to undo the string which bound the sack together at the head.

While he worked feverishly he stopped now and then, almost too weak to continue. His breath came in short, quick gasps. Finally, somehow, he got the stiff, cold clay out of its shroud, and with all the strength he could summon he dragged it into the corner, where he concealed it under several other old blankets which he found there.

Then he crawled upon the slab and wriggled into the shroud. He drew the blanket over him. Before he pulled it completely over his head he took one last look at the beam of moonlight that struggled through the bars of the little window. Then he lay down and with his arms and head still out he pulled the blanket over him.

With a yank he jerked it over him, sack and all. Then with numbed fingers, he found the cord inside and tied it. It was stifling in the sack. But a wave of peace and contentment possessed him. For the first time in days he experienced an exhilaration of mind and body.

He stretched out his aching body at full length. Beautiful objects began to float across his vision. . . the face of Anne Marlowe . . . flowers . . . the sunlight . . . Just as the first plaintive notes of taps reverberated through the prison yard he sank into a sweet, peaceful opium-like sleep.

When finger nails break they should be anointed every night with cold cream. Or dipped in warm olive oil for five or 10 minutes.

Dancing is a form of physical culture. The girl who dances beautifully is likely to walk and stand beautifully. When dancing, make the body tall. Give the backbone its full weight. By stretching the body all the internal organs are made strong. Slumping and general awkwardness throw the body out of alignment and in time has a depressing effect upon the nervous system.

It doesn't seem fair to the sisterhood to give away secrets of attifice, but we must pass along the interesting news that hairdressers are selling pin curls to be tucked into the coiffure just in front of the ears. They are decorative and piquant and only the trained eye will suspect that they are counterfeit, false to the last hair of them! After all, false hair is terrible only when you need it.

SPORT COMMENT
by JAMES J. LONG

Belated Boxing Action. • Farrell Moves Again.
Error to Sanction Bout. Another Title Fight.
Max-Phil in Germany. Benton Recovers Grip.

PATRONS PAY FOR 40 ROUNDS; GET 12

ADMITTEDLY, THE BOXING commissioners of Pennsylvania have gone farther than those of some other states to punish a fouling offender by fining George Godfrey $5,000 and suspending him for life, but in some respects the action looks like the well-known belated locking of the fabled stable door. The interests of boxing would have been far better served if Chairman Frank Wiener and his associates on the state athletic commission had refused to sanction the match in the first place.

Frank Wiener.

Practically everybody on the outside viewed the thing with suspicion from the time it was first proposed. From every angle it looked like an affair that would wind up in a questionable manner, with the patrons getting the worst of it, and it had such a suspicious appearance as a bout that Primo Carnera could not afford to lose that the commissioners might well have turned it down as being too dangerous to be risked. Such a course would have saved the game from a lot of damage that cannot be repaired now by the fining and suspending of Godfrey.

NEITHER DOES THE action taken to punish Godfrey, and to make of him an example that the commissioners hope will act as a deterrent and prevent such offenses in future, reimburse the cash customers for what they didn't get. The extent to which the patrons suffer when this fouling stuff is permitted to go on is being too generally overlooked.

This makes three times in a row that the public has been bilked in heavyweight fights. In Miami the fans paid to see 15 rounds or a knockout between Jack Sharkey and Phil Scott; they saw three rounds. In New York they paid to see 15 rounds or a knockout between Sharkey and Max Schmeling; they saw four rounds. In Philadelphia they paid to see 10 rounds or a knockout between Carnera and Godfrey; they saw less than five rounds.

INSTEAD OF 40 rounds of fighting or three knockouts, the customers have been given for more than $1,250,000 less than 12 rounds of milling. On each of the three occasions they were deprived of what was coming to them by a foul or a claim of a foul.

There can be only one end to it, and if the fouling evil isn't stamped out immediately by the issuing of foul checks for a second show and the forcing of the principals to fight over again before a nickel is paid to either of them, boxing very soon will find the public turning away from it permanently as it turned away from professional wrestling, rowing and footracing.

Phil Scott.

AS SOON AS the latest fuss has died down, we'll probably get the official announcement that Jack Dempsey has decided to try a comeback and that he will meet Carnera at Soldiers' Field in Chicago in September. As a matter of fact, this match is said to have been arranged some time ago, and the Godfrey affair was intended only to steam up Carnera. If they decide to go through with it after all that has happened, it will give Schmeling an excuse for declining a return match with Sharkey in September, as two big shows in one month would be overdoing the thing a bit.*

BUT THAT WON'T be Schmeling's only reason for not meeting Sharkey in September, for according to some men who are supposed to be on the inside the German has no intention of giving Sharkey another chance this year unless it is found necessary to change plans already made secretly.

For it is said that an agreement has been reached whereby Schmeling's first opponent for the heavyweight title will be none other than your old friend, Phainting Phil Scott. The rumor says further that if the outlook is not promising for the successful staging of the affair in this country it is to be put on in Germany.

WHETHER ART SHIRES himself has had anything to do with it or not, the fact remains that the Senators have made an improved showing since they obtained the loquacious first sacker from the White Sox.

Eddie Farrell.

Previously, the Senators went through 15 consecutive games without winning two in succession, but they have won the last four following the appearance of the Chicago discard in their lineup.

INFIELDER EDDIE FARRELL has done a lot of shifting around in his less than five seasons in the major leagues. Going to the Giants from the University of Pennsylvania in 1926, he was traded with Kent Greenfield and Hugh McQuillan to the Braves on June 12, 1927, for Larry Benton, Zack Taylor and Herb Thomas. On June 14, 1929, the Giants got him back from Boston in exchange for Jimmy Welsh. Just before the opening of the present season, Eddie was swapped by New York to the Cardinals with George Fisher for Walter Roettger, and now the Cards have sold him to the Cubs over the waiver route. Like Burleigh Grimes he has been with three clubs since 1930 came in.*

CLEVELAND CONTINUES TO slip in the American League race. Only 10 days ago the Indians were in first place after winning seven games in a row. But of their last 10 games they have lost all but one, and now they're in the fourth hole, six and a half games behind the leading A's.

The Yankees have been the most consistent club in the Bernard loop in recent weeks. Only the Robins in the National have compared with them for steadiness. At no time during their last 25 games have the Yanks been defeated twice in succession, and they have won 17 of those contests.

ANOTHER WORLD CHAMPIONSHIP fight is on the bills for tonight. Jimmy Slattery and Maxie Rosenbloom are to meet in

New York May Bar Out Foul Claims

NEW YORK, June 25.—Perhaps the next large gentleman who offers to do a Bonnie Annie Laurie in front of the customers here and "lay him down an' die" may hear the clock strike 10 while he lies there, so pitifully still, so pathetic, so inert. This is cited as a possibility. It will be an actuality if the New York Commission's preliminary tests of a new foul device are sustained under the fire of practical experience. If the new device is definitely adopted here, there will be no foul punches recognized in New York; only knockdowns, knockouts and fadeouts, these being named strictly in the reverse order of their dramatic requirements.

This drastic action will be taken, if and when it proves practicable, as a curb upon the epidemic of million-dollar fouls.

FINLAY, MOLLER ADVANCE AT OAKMONT

BULLETIN.

Samuel M. Parks, Jr. of Pitt, defeated Robert H. Kepler, of Ohio State, 3 and 2, in their first-round match in the National intercollegiate golf tournament at Oakmont today.

By VERN SWARTSFAGER.

Fred Brand, Jr., of Penn State and Knox M. Young, Jr., of Geneva, two of the Pittsburgh hopes in the national intercollegiate golf championships, now in progress at the Oakmont Country Club, advanced to the second round by virtue of their victories today.

Samuel M. Parks, Jr., of Pitt, was well on his way to victory, being 2 up against Robert H. Kepler, of Ohio State, at the turn.

Brand took a one-sided 8-and-6 triumph over Francis Beaupre, of Notre Dame, playing the best golf of the tournament thus far, while Knox M. Young, Jr., took the measure of Vincent Dolp, of Oregon, by a margin of 2 up.

Phillips Finlay, of Harvard, beat J. B. Baldwin, a teammate, 6 and 4. Robert Enck, of Ashland, advanced by tripping D. W. Murray, of North Carolina State, 1 up; J. B. Barfield, of Harvard, knocked off Donald R. Livingston, of Princeton, 4 and 2. Lawrence Moller, of Notre Dame, bumped George McWilliams, Jr., of Princeton, 3 and 2. Marshall W. Forrest, of Yale, set down Harry Pritchett, of Alabama, 2 and 1. William D. Duckwall, of Florida, won from Hugh Clines, of St. Xavier, 1 up, and C. S. Eaton, of Yale, put out Paul Cook, of North Dakota State, 5 and 4.

DUNLAP ADVANCES

George T. Dunlap, Jr., of Princeton, one of the favorites to win, went into the second round by tripping Al Brodbeck, of Penn, 2and 1. Winston Fuller, of South-California, eliminated G. A. Beale, of Union College, 1 up.

Young was 2 up at the turn on Vincent Dolp this morning, and continued to hold the Oregonian through the second nine. Their cards:

WIMBLEDON, England, June 25.—Gregory Mangin, youthful star of Newark, N. J., carried the Stars and Stripes farther to glory in the early third-round matches of the Wimbledon tennis championships here today by defeating the flashy Japanese player, Miki, in straight sets, 6-4, 6-3, 6-2.

George Lott, Jr., of Chicago, continued his brilliant advance by defeating Harry O. Hopman, of Australia, 7-5, 6-3, 6-3, in the third round.

H. W. Austin, one of the British favorites, came through successfully against Pierre Landry, of France, 6-0, 6-3, 6-2.

Mrs. Helen Wills Moody advanced with ease at the expense of Miss Elsie Goldsworth, 6-1, 6-2.

TILDEN TOPS VAN RYN

William T. Tilden, II, advanced one step further today in his gallant bid for new championship honors by defeating John Van Ryn, former Princeton star. Although hard pressed at times by his brilliant young opponent, Tilden thrilled the crowded stands with the brand of tennis which has made his name world famous, taking the match in straight sets, 7-5, 6-4, 6-4.

Helen Jacobs downed Mrs. Mellows, of England, 6-3, 6-1.

Mary Greef, of Kansas City, Mo., won a hard-fought match from Miss L. E. Messurier, of Australia, 6-2, 2-6, 7-5.

H. W. (Bunny) Austin, Britain's hope for the final, eliminated Pierre Landry, of France, 6-0, 6-3, 6-2. P. D. B. Spence defeated the Japanese Abe, 6-1, 6-4, 5-7, 6-3.

Elizabeth Ryan, American resident of England, defeated Miss V. H. Montgomery, England, 6-2, 6-4.

Mrs. Eileen Bennett Whittingstall, English star, was eliminated by Madame Rene Mathieu, of France, in straight sets, decided by scores of 6-4, 6-3.

Betty Nuthall, 19-year-old English girl, disposed of Miss Y. Lyle, 6-2, 6-4.

One of the biggest surprises of the tournament came when J. Crawford, one of the strongest members of the Australian team, was defeated by H. F. David, of England, 6-2, 6-3, 3-6, 6-4.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: SAMUEL J. TILDEN WAS ELECTED PRESIDENT OF THE U. S. IN 1876—In the Presidential election of 1876, Tilden received 4,284,265 votes, while 4,033,295 votes were cast for Rutherford B. Hayes. The electoral vote was 203 for Tilden and 166 for Hayes. In the face of these returns, the Republican party succeeded in invalidating the electoral votes of Oregon, Louisiana, South Carolina and Florida, cast for the Democratic nominee. An electoral commission, created expressly for this occasion, decided by a vote of 8 to 7 in favor of the Republican, Hayes, although there is no doubt now that Tilden was entitled to the Presidency. ## SLATS DEFENDS TITLE TONIGHT

Tonight in the Bison Stadium he fights Jimmy Slattery, Buffalo's pride and joy, with the 175-pound title at stake. A victory on points or by a knockout will give the Harlem Hebrew the title he so long has sought and which has been Slattery's since last winter, when he beat Lou Scozza.

The way the experts figure it, Rosenbloom's pawing, slapping style should wear Slattery down in 15 rounds. Rosey hasn't the punch to knock out Slats, but should box rings around him.

The gate is expected to reach $120,000.

Reds to Play Night Exhibition Game

CINCINNATI, June 25.—(AP.)—The Cincinnati Reds will have the experience of playing night baseball. President Weil will have a lighting system installed at Peoria, Ill., the Reds' farm, and the team will play an exhibition game there the night of July 30.

GENEVA TURNS DOWN W.-J.

By JESS CARVER.

Howard Harpster, who'll coach the footballers at Geneva next fall, refused to O. K. a night game between the Covenanters and Wash-Jeff and thereby very effectively reversed the tables on the Presidents.

It wasn't so very long back that Geneva was petitioning Wash-Jeff for a spot on its grid card. The Covenanter requests were fruitless, however, and then, recently, W. and J. sought a night game with Geneva at Reeves Stadium for next fall. Athletic Director Edgecomb was inclined to do business with the Prexys, but Harpster shook his head, allowing as how a game with Wash-Jeff would make his schedule too tough, so now Geneva has had its turn in freezing out the Jeffers.

Things have not been so good in a schedule way at Little Washington of recent. The Red and Black is off Pitt's schedule this year and next, has lost its Thanksgiving Day date with West Virginia and now has been refused a game by Geneva.

TURNED DOWN DATE

The word is that Wash-Jeff turned down the date offered it by Pitt for 1931, because the Panthers offered it the opening game, which was taken last year and will be taken this by Waynesburg.

The W. and J. authorities are at present dickering with John Carroll, of Cleveland, for a night game in the Ohio city November 1 or 8 this fall. John Carroll is coached by Ralph Vince, a former Wash-Jeff line star, who'd like nothing better than to take on and, if possible, take over his alma mater before a Cleveland crowd.

ASCHMAN APPOINTED

| Finn, 2b. | Bartell, ss. |
| Lopez, c. | Hemsley, c. |
| Dudley, p. | Kremer, p. |

Game starts at 3:30.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

The stumbling Pirates and pace-setting Robins are due to close their series with a single game this afternoon. The two teams were kept idle yesterday by rain, but an attempt will be made to run off today's scrap. Remy Kremer and Clise Dudley are due to swap punches on the mound.

Pirate fans, as well as the team, are anxiously awaiting the announcement of the acquisition of another pitcher, as promised by the management. In the outer circles of the game it is pretty well established that the Buccos slab staff is a bust. On the inside circle, it is not expressed in that manner, but the men of the diamond realize that the staff is far below the average.

NEED PITCHERS

Manager Ens doesn't have one pitcher, barring Brame, who can throw the ball by a batter. Joe McCarthy has four sharpshooters in Malone, Root, Bush and Root who often flip their swifter past a hitter. Uncle Robbie has Dazzy Vance and Jim Elliott to do this little trick and there are other pitchers in the league of this caliber.

Will the pace-setting Robins stand up under the intense strain of July and August?

Given scant recognition by the critics in their pre-season predictions, Uncle Robbie's flag hunters are still finding it hard to make some of the dopesters see them as real pennant contenders.

ROBINS MAY CRACK

Although they have been out in front for many weeks, the Robins find themselves playing second fiddle to the Cubs and Giants where flags are discussed. There is an undercurrent of feeling to the effect that the Brooklyn boys won't be so impressive when the races waxes warm.

Meantime, Uncle Robbie is saying little; unlike many other pilots he does not resent the attitude of the writers who have a tendency to belittle his club. Robbie is at the head of the class in disposition, but if his team should cop the glory he certainly would be entitled to some laughs at the expense of the journalists.

Several things have happened to transform the lowly Flatbush crew into a money team. Here are a few of them:

Glenn Wright's return to form—Glenn's great play at shortstop is a stabilizer for the club, and his punch at the plate has enabled the Robins to crush the southpaws who once worked havoc with the team.

Babe Herman's home-run bat.

Johnny Gilbert's all-around play—Johnny is one of the best centerfielders in the game.

Alfonso Lopez's brilliance behind the bat.

Grogan Defeated By Canzoneri

NEW YORK, June 25.—(AP.)—Tony Canzoneri, of New York, outpointed Tommy Grogan, hard-punching lightweight from Omaha, in a 10-round bout at the Queensboro Stadium last night. Grogan put Canzoneri down for a count of nine in the second round, but could not keep him there.

Nick Altrock Says:

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Think this over. A year ago everybody was pulling for the Athletics to win the pennant because Connie Mack was an old man. This season he is even older, but the public is pulling for the Yankees because Bob Shawkey is a young fellow. You figure it out. I can't. In the National loop, most of the public is pulling for the Brooklyns because Wilbert Robinson is fat, but a large section is rooting for the Cubs because they are so crippled. Maybe some day there will be public sympathy with the Washington team because I am off my nut.

SLUMP WEAKENS INDIANS' PENNANT HOPES

TRIBE SUFFERS THIRD DEFEAT IN ROW

Associated Press.

The Cleveland Indians may or may not finish the pennant race in the money, but already they have had the satisfaction of thrilling their home fans with one of the years most exciting exhibitions of the ups and downs of baseball. And in doing it they have shown the ability to go up again later.

Cleveland off to a bad start, put on a great winning streak during its recent home stand against the American League's eastern clubs and rose to the top of the standing. Then the Indians collided with the New York Yankees before they left home and continued losing when they opened in the East against the Philadelphia Athletics. They dropped seven games before they returned home for a Sunday game and a victory over the Athletics.

LOSE THREE IN ROW

Since that game they have dropped three more in a row to the Washington Senators and retired to fourth place, three and one-half games behind the New York Yankees. After taking a double header Monday Washington needed only five innings yesterday to trounce the Indians, 7 to 0. Bump Hadley allowed Cleveland only five hits while the Senators collected nine effective blows before rain cut the contest short.

New York and Philadelphia also were afflicted by rain yesterday. The Yankees lost a game with St. Louis, and the Athletics failed to play a double header with the Chicago White Sox.

The futile task of pitching for the Boston Red Sox received an exhibition in the remaining American League double header. Hod Lisenbee was barely able to pull out the first game, 5 to 4, although he held the Detroit Tigers to five hits.

The Tigers made but six blows in the second contest, but walks and errors gave them enough counters to gain an 8-to-7 decision after 10 innings.

CARDS, CUBS WIN

The National League produced three good pitchers and they won three games. The Brooklyn-Pittsburgh game was rained out.

Wild Bill Hallahan of St. Louis belied his name by allowing the Boston Braves only one walk as the Cardinals pounded out an 11-to-3 triumph.

Pat Malone performed an even more effective feat as the Chicago Cubs moved to a place only two games behind the idle Brooklyn Robins with a 6-to-1 victory over Philadelphia.

The Tipoff

Dr. H. C. Carlson, Pitt basketball coach, is due here tomorrow from Utah, where he's been conducting a coaching school for the past two weeks. He's coming partly to get cards of the stars in the show, a spot in which you'd hardly ever think of finding an ex.

In a brief communication from Howard Jones, of Southern California, the Trojan mentor asks if Pittsburgh has become accustomed of late. Fish line.

Joshua Wilhelm, Fairfax halfback of Mars, Pa., has deserted the stage for the gridiron and is now guarding it at a local post.

Capt. Eddie Mayo of Pitt and Vince Lewis, Jess Quatro and Jeremiah Tenich, other members of the grid squad, are employed in painting the Stadium seats, part of a summer job at college.

Do you know what makes Shanty Hogan Giant catcher such a hefty? He breaks fasts like this one. One hungry day mauled two bowls of mixed nuts, double order of ham an' and six quarts of toast, irrigated by a couple cups of java.

FIGHT RESULTS

At Indianapolis—Ruby Weirs and Tommy Cello drew, 10 rounds.

Long's Sport Comment

Buffalo for the title in the light-heavyweight class, in which Slattery is recognized as champion by the New York Boxing Commission, while the National Boxing Association lists Rosenbloom as the leader.

Tonight's bout ought to clear up the muddle and give one principal or the other a clear title to the championship, provided, of course, it doesn't run true to 1930 customs and end in a foul. In five previous meetings, Slattery won four times and Rosenbloom once. The fact that Buffalo is to be the scene of the sixth bout may give Slattery an edge, as he has been the most successful home-town fighter in the country.

Larry Benton.

PITCHER LARRY BENTON, such a bust with the Giants since 1928 that John McGraw swapped him and a fat check for Hughey Critz, is beginning to show something for the Reds. In his last two games his club made only six runs behind him, yet he won both times. Last Friday he beat the Robins, with Dazzy Vance up, 2 to 1, and yesterday he toppled his former Giant mates, 4 to 1. That's the best pitching he has done since he led the National League two years ago. But it doesn't follow, by any means, that McGraw was worsted in the deal. Any fan can recall a whale lot more than two games that Critz has saved for the Giants by killing base hits around the midway. And, too, there is no assurance that Benton is going to keep up that gait, though he is likely to get better results with his fastball in Cincinnati than he could get under the curve-ball system of McGraw.

FISTIC CARDS COMPLETED

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

The cards were completed yesterday for both the boxing show at Hickey Park, Millvale, tomorrow night and that at the Meyers Bowl, North Braddock, next Monday night.

Johnny Skorin, of Woods Run was signed to box Georgie Bretsch, of the North Side, in the eight-round second bout at Hickey Park, to round out that program, while Harry Harris, of Bellaire, O., is just about signed to meet Harry Williams, local Negro light-heavyweight, in the semi-final at the Bowl. Harris last Monday night returned to the ring following a long layoff to score a one-round knockout victory in Wheeling.

Andy Andrucci, of the East End, and Ray Collins, of Erie, will box the windup at Hickey Park, and Johnny Smackey, of Canonsburg, and Tug Phillips, of Erie, are in the semi-final 10-rounder. The opening six-round bout will bring together Jerry Kucera, of Brentwood, and Al Becker, of Sheraden.

Johnny Datto, hard-hitting Filipino featherweight, of Cleveland, and Jackie Rodgers, of the North Side, will box the main bout at the Bowl Monday night. Jack DeNeri, of the North Side, and Eddie Speakes, of Louisville, are in the second bout and Tony Marino, of Duquesne, brother of Tommy Ryan, former bantamweight star, turns pro against Young Ketchel, of Steubenville, in the opener.

Herman Perlick boxes Bruce Flowers, Lew Feldman meets Art De Champlain and Ralph Lenny battles Henry Perlick in feature bouts at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, tonight. Gorilla Jones and Vincent Forgione clash again in Cleveland and then there's that Jimmy Slattery-Maxie Rosenbloom bout for the world light-heavyweight title in Buffalo.

Between Rounds

Johnny Belmont's defeat by Allen Beaty in the semi-final at the Meyers Bowl last Monday night has cost him the windup bout with Mickey Brennan at Johnstown Park, Monday night. Brennan, a young Native of Charleroi, having been signed to Matchmaker Ray Eberle to take Belmont's place. Belmont reportedly knocked out Brennan in a bout at the Motor Temple and Motor refused at the chance to redeem himself.

Many blanks are out for the Golden Glove amateur boxing tournament to be held in the Music Box on Thursday and Friday nights, June 26 and 27. Under the sponsorship of Pittsburgh Post No. 99 American Legion.

KEN WOLFE STAR

FRANKLIN, Pa., June 25.—Ken Wolfe is proving one of the pitching aces of the fast going Penn-Ohio league this season and barring some unforeseen slump, leading pitcher of the league's first year. Leon Ames's Oil Citys Cubs Robins was third. Twelve horses ran.

'Foul Checks' To Be Given For Bout

KANSAS CITY, June 25.—(AP)—Apropos the epidemic of unsatisfactory endings in fight circles, "foul checks" will be issued for the heavyweight battle between Babe Hunt, Ponca City, Okla., and Al Friedman, Boston, here July 9.

If a fighter says Gabe Kaufman, promoter, wins on a low blow, intentionaal or otherwise, the cash customers will find solace at the box office.

WOMEN'S NET PAIRINGS SET

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Early morning deluge, supplemented by incidental showers throughout most of the afternoon, wrecked totally yesterday's program in the forty-second annual Western Pennsylvania tennis championships in progress on the courts of the Stanton Heights Golf Club.

For a brief interval before noon there rose in the breasts of eager racqueters real hope that at least the few remaining second third round men's singles tilts might be run off, but hardly had Paul Barber, Sewickley ace, and W. P. Haseltine, tourney darkhorse broke into action upon the least dampened rectangle when the skies poured forth their burden once more.

As a result of the complete Tuesday wash-out, it will be necessary to work the Stanton lot overtime from now till Friday when man-to-man and men's doubles semi-finals, as well as similar fracases in women's singles are slated to be cared for. This means that women's singles, the draw for which was made last evening and is published herewith, will get under way at one o'clock this afternoon, with men's singles tussles following at a little after two and men's doubles and consolation singles filling in at every available moment until dark.

A strong field of 32 net damsels will swing into action for the Honus Wagner trophy, symbolic of the West Penn women's title. Mrs. Martha Guthrie Snowdon, who copped the crown handily a year ago, is expected on hand to defend her laurels, while Dorothy Jarvis, Betty Scott, Mrs. Hilary K. Binns, Mrs. Winifred Eschner, Miriam Sullivan, Helen Carson, and quite a formidable array of others will seek to dethrone the clever champion. The pairings:

First round: Mrs. Fritz B. Snowdon vs. Frances Clyde; Adrienne Demetrio vs. Catharine Cox; Betty Scott vs. Vida M. Hurst; Louis Karns Gilbert vs. Dorothy Miller; Miriam Sullivan vs. Polly Schuster; Dorothy Anderson vs. Rae Montgomery; Mrs. Hilary K. Binns vs. Margaret Wright; Jeanette Miller vs. Mrs. J. Binney Hurt; Dorothy Jarvis vs. Ruth S. Stanger; Marian Kline vs. Elizabeth Kimball Rose; Hilarie vs. Polly Harris; Mrs. Walter Arlinger vs. Mrs. W. W. St. John; Helen Clarke vs. Frances Jones; Betty Worthington vs. Mrs. R. E. Harper; Mrs. Winifred Barker vs. Frances Church; Ruth Keefe vs. Mrs. O. S. Marsh.

Dave Evans Enters Bridgeville Race

Another stellar entry has been received by B. Ward Beam, who is promoting the 100-mile A. A. A. point championship automobile race at the Pittsburgh-Bridgeville board speedway here on Friday, July 4, Independence Day afternoon. He is Dave Evans, well known to lovers of the speed game.

Evans will be at the wheel of a Maley Jones Front Drive Special, one of the two two-men racing cars which were featured at Indianapolis on Memorial Day and at Altoona on Flag Day.

DECISION DELAYED

CHICAGO, June 25.—(INS)—Final decision of the University of Chicago Athletic Council will continue to conduct intramural basketball and track, and build a new athletic field, Coach A. A. Stagg announced today.

ROCK STAR WINS

BRAND, YOUNG VICTORS

California defeated Jack Reese of Yale 1 up. Reese almost evened the match after Moser had him dormie 4, a halved eighteenth hole deciding the contest.

Moller scored one under par in downing McWilliams. He was out in 36 and 2 up. Their cards:

Moller—

BRAND SHATTERS PAR

Brilliant work on the greens enabled Brand to shatter par and overwhelm Beaupre. The Penn State star dropped a long putt on the first hole for a birdie 4 and one-putted on the second green for another birdie, a 3, to win both holes. The third was halved in uneventful par 4s. The Penn State star got a "break" at the fourth when his topped mashie nibble shot rolled through a trap and onto the green. They halved the hole in par 5s. Beaupre found a trap with his second at the fifth and Brand won with a par 4, and increased his lead by sinking a 30-footer for a deuce at the short sixth.

At the seventh Brand had to play his second shot from a bunker, but he recovered nicely to halve in par 4. The Penn State star reached the green from the tee at the eighth, while Beaupre was short. Each got down in two putts, Brand winning with a par 3. Brand was trapped from the tee and Beaupre's second found sand at the ninth, but they both recovered well to halve in par 5.

INCREASES LEAD

Brand copped the tenth to go 6 up when Beaupre picked up after having missed a second time from the Woods alongside the green. The Penn Stater was 7 up when he took a par 4 to Beaupre's 5 on the eleventh, taking two putts to do it, and the match ended on the twelfth when Fred got down a par 5 and Beaupre needed a 6. Brand needed only 17 putts for the 12 holes. The cards:

C. C. EVENT WON BY MISS KUHN

Representatives of the home club carried off most of the honors in the women's invitation golf tournament at the Country Club of Pittsburgh yesterday afternoon.

Miss Mary Kuhn, Country Club, and Mrs. R. W. Kiser, Country Club, placed first and second in the first division with net scores of 74 and 77, respectively, and Miss Virginia Leahy, Country Club, won in the third division with a net 76. Mrs. W. J. Curley won in the second division with a net 70. The scores:

First division: Miss Mary Kuhn, Country Club, 87-15-72—Mrs. R. W. Kiser, Country Club, 90-16-74; Miss Rosemary Casey, Longue Vue, 101-26-75; Mrs. J. C. ## JACOBS GAINS QUARTER-FINAL

HAVERFORD, Pa., June 25.—(AP)—Two favorites advanced yesterday to the quarter-final round in the singles of the national intercollegiate tennis championships as the original field of 103 was cut down to 14 at the Merion Cricket Club.

Julius Seligson, of Lehigh, seeded No. 1 and winner of the college singles title two years ago, set the pace by being the first to enter the quarter-final round.

At the bottom of the lower half of the card, Clifford Sutter, of Tulane University, seeded No. 8, moved into the quarter-finals by disposing of E. B. Ward, of Harvard, 6-3, 6-2.

Eddie Jacobs, of the University of Pittsburgh, gained the fourth round by defeating his teammate, Dave O'Loughlin, 3-6, 6-1, 6-1, and then, paired with his erstwhile freeman, defeated Warren Byrum and Ray Sorensen, of the Western State Teachers' College, 6-1, 6-3, in the first round of the doubles.

W. Va. Conference To Admit Outsiders

CHARLESTON, W. Va., June 25.—(AP)—Schools in states bordering on West Virginia today were eligible for admission to the West Virginia Athletic Conference.

The conference at a meeting yesterday approved a proposal to admit the Moorehead Teachers' College, of Moorehead, Ky., to the conference, and at the same time adopted a new by-law providing that colleges in other states may be admitted to the conference on application.

CADDIE TEST CARDED AT EDGEWOOD

Every entrant in the third annual Western Pennsylvania Junior amateur golf tournament for the William Randolph Hearst trophy, which is to be played at the Schenley Park Municipal links, Monday, July 7, under the auspices of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, will be presented with a book of rules of the United States Golf Association.

In encouraging junior golfers to show their skill at playing the game, the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph also is eager to help them to become thoroughly familiar with the rules. A knowledge of the code and etiquet of golf are just as important as playing the game itself.

RULES IMPORTANT

Ignorance of rules will be no excuse for any entrant in the William Randolph Hearst trophy tournament. It is important that every entrant study these books and get to know them well—for if one doesn't know the rules it may be that he will deprive himself of a victory—or give an undeserved triumph to another player.

Tomorrow, the caddies at the Edgewood Country Club will qualify in a preliminary test under the direction of Caddiemaster Paul E. (Toots) Erath, and Professional Jimmy O'Donnell. On Friday, Professional Ben Loeffler will qualify the caddies at the Valley Heights Country Club. Alcoma, Oakmont and Shannopin already have held their preliminary rounds.

OPEN TO ALL

All amateur golfers 19 years of age and under not attending an institution of learning above preparatory school grades is eligible to play—there is no entry fee, and the only things a boy must provide if he wants to try for the beautiful prizes are his own clubs and balls.

BALL ATTACKS LANDIS RULE

CHICAGO, June 25.—(AP)—After an "iron hand" rule of almost a decade over the rank and file of organized baseball, Kenesaw Mountain Landis is confronted with an open revolt today.

The rebellion came indirectly from the St. Louis Browns and directly from the Milwaukee club of the American Association, which has filed a suit in Federal Court to halt the high commissioner's transfer order of a Milwaukee outfielder, Fred Bennett.

Commissioner Landis had ordered Owner Phil Ball, of the Browns, owner of a big share in the Milwaukee club, either to take Bennett back, waive him around the American League or release him outright. Ball, who sent Bennett to Milwaukee on a two-year option, refused to conform with the order and the Milwaukee club filed the suit to step it yesterday.

The action was taken in direct defiance to the major-minor league agreement with the commissioner not to dispute his decisions in the courts. In the better than nine years that Landis has been high commissioner the Bennett action is the first to go to the courts.

KREADY ADVANCES

SPRINGFIELD, Pa., June 25.—(AP)—Frank Kready, of Lancaster, Pa., doubles pastor intercollegiate tennis champion, advanced to the semi-final round of the Delaware County open championship yesterday, defeating Al Milgram, Lehigh University, 6-1, 6-2, in the quarter-finals.

Three Held for Jury In Death of Boxer

WHEELING, W. Va., June 25.—Ben Bridges, pugilist; John Ritz, manager, and Harold Brown, matchmaker of the Metropolitan Club, are held under $2,000 each to the Ohio County grand jury as the result of the death of Young Bruno Maroskey, who died from injuries received in a bout with Bridges Monday evening.

Young Bruno died from concussion of the brain, alleged to have been received as the result of a blow struck by Bridges. Prosecuting Attorney A. C. Schiffler also held 30 of the fight attendants as witnesses.

CREWS PRIMED FOR POUGHKEEPSIE REGATTA

GOLDEN BEARS SEEK REVENGE ON HUSKIES

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 25.—(AP.)—Pre-battle discussion on the part of oarsmen and coaches in the rowing camps and boathouses scattered along the Hudson made it evident today that the four-mile struggle for varsity championship honors tomorrow will be not one race but half a dozen.

The Golden Bears of California, turned back by Washington more than two months ago by the margin of one-fifth of a second in their duel for Pacific Coast supremacy, are out to beat the crew from Seattle if it is the last thing they ever do.

HUSKIES CONFIDENT

Washington, on the other hand, feels fully capable of taking the measure of California again and will concentrate most of its attention upon the Glendon-coached eights of the Navy and Columbia, which have proved their principal rivals in past Poughkeepsie regattas.

Both camps have been stirred by reports of casualties. The latest was announcement by Coach Ky Ebright, of California, that Bill Dally, No. 5 oarsman and one of three veterans of the intercollegiate and Olympic champion crews of 1928, is handicapped by an infected hand.

As for some of the other crews, Syracuse is drawn in the next lane to the Navy and the Orange eight will be out to give the Middies the battle of their lives.

The ancient rivalry between those up-state neighbors, Syracuse and Cornell, also adds interest to the battle.

CORNELL CRIPPLED

Cornell has qualified as the hard-luck crew of the river, losing its stroke oar and commodore, Hod Shoemaker, of Bridgeton, N. Y., through illness, but the Ithacans have a world of weight and power.

The boom in the stock of Massachusetts Tech has subsided somewhat, partly because the engineers have dropped almost to the 170 mark in average weight. Many feel that this is too light for a four-mile race.

Probably the hottest duel of all between old rivals will be fought far out in the center of the river, where Columbia and Washington, last year's winner and runner-up, are drawn side by side.

SUBS RACE TODAY

Substitute crews representing most of the colleges here will clash today in informal events beginning at 2 p. m., Eastern Standard time.

Cornell, which has established a tradition of winning the combination eight-oared race, will join forces with Wisconsin, the resulting crew being dubbed "The Cornwhisky."

Moller Elected College Golf President

Larry Moller, of Notre Dame, was elected president of the Intercollegiate Golf Association and George Dunlap, Jr., of Princeton, was made secretary at the annual meeting of the association at the Oakmont Country Club last evening.

Moller and Dunlap tied for medal honors in the qualifying round of the annual championship tournament yesterday.

Walter Swope, of Yale, was chosen treasurer.

THE LOWDOWN ON THE BUCS

By THE BENCHWARMER.

Well, folks, it looks as if Uncle Robbie is out to clean up like Napoleon, but I hear all them Robins think about Waterloo when they get on a train for Chicago. You know the Bears bumped off the Brooklyn fellas the last time they hit the bad town.

Robbie musta been readin' some of Napoleon's letters when he put his club together. You know it was Ol' Nap that made that crack about a good offensive bein' the best defense. But Robbie has added a little to it. Your wise Uncle wants a punch and a few big pitchers who can throw that apple by you like Dazzy Vance, Jumbo Elliott and a few other big birds.

BABE SMACKS FOUR

I suppose the Robins will be up around the top all year, and we've done our share to put them up there. Babe Herman has kissed himself right into the home-run race with four in two days off our boys. That last one that Babe parked in the upper deck was the furthest any of the boys ever seen one hit in that section. It was still goin' up like a golf ball when it cracked into one of the seats.

I was watchin' Babe on that and he started to wind up with Chagnon. They used to give Babe a lot of razzin', but he's the one that ought to hand out the wise cracks now.

We haven't seen much of Dazzy this year, and maybe he won't get into this series. When he's right he's generally at his best against them Cubs and I wouldn't be surprised if Robbie would get him primed to throw his buckshot at the Bears.

PITCHERS NEEDED

Jule is in a terrible way for pitchers. He's only got three veterans and Frenchy is about the only one that seems to have his right stuff. A team needs a whole bullpen full of pitchers these days, with all the batters swinging from Borough Hall at that lively ball.

Lloyd took a real workout Monday and was full of pep. I wouldn't be surprised if he gets in there about the Fourth. If we get him and Swetonic and Brame back we ought to start some excitement.

CITY LEAGUE IN CONFAB TONIGHT

By TOM BIRKS

The City Baseball League will hold a special meeting at league headquarters this evening. President Harry Yerx has called the session with plenty of real business ahead.

The eighth member of the loop will be named to take the place of the St. John's nine, which has notified the loop of its withdrawal at the end of the first half.

Gossip says a move will be made on the umpire question, but, with a motion on its books, it is hard to see how this can be done.

Other matters are up for discussion and it is quite possible that a stormy session will materialize, with the possibility of one of the officers quitting.

The Fintex club has been invited to attend the meeting, but other clubs also may be in the running for the open berth. Intimations are that two other teams are going to resign tonight.

Greyhounds Face Big Test Tonight

Racing over the futurity distance, eight of the fastest hounds at the Bridgeville track will compete tonight in the feature race of the program. One of the entries, Jahala, has not been out of the money once in seven starts.

Snapdragon beat Desert Rat and Jerry Ray in the eighth race last night, paying $4.20 to take the feature event.

At New Kensington, Diamond Crown finally raced into the money by winning the seventh race, the Vandergrift handicap. Diamond Crown paid $22.40 to win. In the fourth race, Rambling Eagle won and paid the second longest price of the evening, $13.40.

Sport Vignettes

A few more jolts like the Sharkey-Schmeling and Godfrey-Carnera fights and what happened at the Meyers Bowl last Friday night and the people may even go back to baseball . . . . The Godfrey-Carnera fight was a mistake from the start, was ill-advised as to financial arrangements, was too open to suspicion all along and just simply never should have been foisted on the public . . . . The State Athletic Commission doesn't look any too good in the aftermath of the tangle with its rush to punish the man whom it has held up for months as the "outstanding contender" and the man whom any other contender must defeat before he would be recognized as the world champion in this state . . . . Dropping Godfrey like a hot coal now isn't protecting the public that was bilked by such circus billing for the overrated Black Shadow . . . . Of the censure following in the wake of this bad match and its to-be-expected ending, the commission must come in for its liberal share . . . . Lloyd Yoder, former Carnegie Tech star, who is in town for a visit en route to New York to the main offices of the National Broadcasting Company, for which he is an announcer on the Pacific Coast, with headquarters in San Francisco, says it's great to be back in the old town again . . . . He visited on the Tech campus yesterday . . . . They called Lloyd "Bull" when he played on the Tech team, and Howard Harpster, all-America quarterback of the Tartans, will tell you Bull was the greatest player he ever teamed with . . . . Frank Sutton, local Negro hotelman and sportsman, long-time friend of Jack Johnson and George Godfrey, who witnessed the Godfrey-Carnera fight, says he is satisfied the bout was fought on the level . . . . He says the low punch that ended it was accidental . . . . "I spent a couple of days with George," Sutton says, "and he told me he was going to win. After the fight he said he was following instructions from his corner and fighting to the body because everybody said Primo couldn't stand up under punishment there, and he was going in crouching low and swinging for the body when the finishing blow went home. Carnera, by the way, is a much better fighter than he is generally credited with being, but I think George would have beaten him if he had kept his attack high and not taken any chance of losing on a foul." . . . . Snapper Garrison, the Earle Sande of his time, now a racing steward, rates Gallant Fox, winner of the Preakness, Kentucky Derby and Belmont Stakes, as one of the greatest three-year-olds of all time . . . . He puts the Woodward star right up there with Sysonby, Hindoo and Luke Blackburn, and says he is one of the few thoroughbreds he has known over the years that seemingly could double its speed in the rush down the stretch . . . . Explaining their defeat in the recent Wightman Cup matches in England, certain members of the American team contend the important tournament is played too early in the year and say they believe the result would be reversed in a contest played later, when their game has attained its peak.—HARRY KECK.

Symphonia Wins Circuit Feature

Denver Star Ties Trans-Miss. Record

Johnstown Wins Over Stogies, 3-1

Johnstown came out of its short slump yesterday in the Mid-Atlantic League and scored a 3-to-1 victory over Wheeling at Wheeling in the only game played in the league. Rain washed out the remainder of the card.

A two-run rally in the eighth inning brought the league leaders their triumph. The game was a hurling duel between Thompson and Chismare.

"NEVER mind where I've been, Bill . .

Mr. Parks smiled sheepishly. "Never mind where I've been, Bill. But I'm back at the Amoco pump to stay."

As the attendant proceeded to fill his tank with Amoco-Gas, Mr. Parks volunteered more information.

"I learned my lesson," he continued. "I'd been reading a lot of ads and hearing a lot of talk about gas just as good as Amoco and how I could save money. I bit.

"It didn't seem like the same car but I decided it might be worth it if I saved enough money. Save money? I didn't get the mileage in the first place and after four thousand miles things got so bad I couldn't stand it. I took her into the shop and--well, it cost me $32.50 to get her back in shape."

He paid for ten gallons with a smile and started his motor.

"I can tell you it feels good to get Amoco back in her again. Boy, if I'd heard another knock I'd have gone crazy. No more for me, Bill. I'm back here to stay."

Bill smiled as he gave him his change. He'd heard the same story many times before. Experience had taught him that the most enthusiastic users of Amoco-Gas are those who have tried the "just-as-goods."

MARKET OPENS DOWN, RALLIES THEN DROPS

Bear Faction Seen as Bent On Destroying Resistance Points of Last November

NEW YORK, June 25—(AP)—The bear faction seemed bent on destroying the resistance points of last November in today's stock market, and while some bankers were of the opinion that speculative pessimism was being carried to extremes unjustified by actual conditions bankers interests did not offer any aggressive opposition.

Bears however found the market at least temporarily oversold and during a short lived rally in the early hours of trading a long list of shares moved up 1 to 7 points. Furthermore speculators for the fall had difficulty in bringing out any large volume of selling. Public liquidation seems well completed and such further genuine liquidation as remains to be done appears to be coming from cool-headed sellers. Trading was dull and highly professional.

RECOVERY SEEN

Col. Leonard P. Ayres of the Cleveland Trust Company whose statement that the bull market was committing suicide during the wild upward movement of 1929 created something of a sensation has now expressed the opinion that the bear market's life is drawing to a close. He stated that "an abrupt and consequential upward movement in stock and commodity prices should be well under way by Labor Day."

While a considerable section of the Wall street banking interests agrees with Col. Ayres several large professional market operators remain extremely bearish over the present outlook and some bankers seem to be in tacit agreement with them.

OUTLOOK BETTER

The weekly steel trade reviews were somewhat more favorable than expected. Iron Age said: "An impending general business recovery is sensed by leaders of the steel industry who have passed through many cycles of trade expansion and contraction."

A further survey of business conditions by Standard Statistics expressed the belief that "an early, sustained strengthening in commodity prices is not probable." This survey indicated a seasonal upturn in business activity in the fall, with pronounced recovery in the early months of 1931.

Price movements in the pivotal industrials were narrow. U. S. Steel sagged slightly to a new low for the year under 152 compared to the November low of 150. American Can reached a new low around 109.

RAILS WEAK

The rail shares remained the chief weak spot as the breaking of the price index for this group beneath the November low yesterday brought in considerable nervous liquidation.

Such shares as Union Pacific, Norfolk and Western, Atchison and Delaware and Hudson lost 3 to 5 points. North American, Western Union and International Business Machines also lost a few points.

Credit remained extraordinarily abundant, with call money renewing at 2 per cent for the first time since March. There is even some vague talk of a 2 per cent rediscount rate.

Couzens Rail Bill Amended by House

WASHINGTON, June 25—The House Interstate Commerce Committee has amended the Couzens resolution to suspend authority of the Interstate Commerce Commission until March 4, 1931, in connection with the consolidation of Great Northern and Northern Pacific railroads.

GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, June 25—Wheat values scored early upturns here today, but not until after the market spasmodically had once again broken low price records of many years standing. Comparative firmness of Liverpool wheat quotations today induced considerable buying here, together with reports of heavy damage to wheat crops in Greece and absence of rain in North American spring wheat territory.

Opening at ⅛c off to ⅛c up, Chicago wheat sagged a little more, and then advanced all around. Corn was easier, opening unchanged to ⅛c lower and subsequently keeping near to the initial figures. Oats were firm. Provisions inclined downward.

Enough scattered selling at the outset today brought about downward swings of wheat to below previous bottom levels since 1914. The new setbacks were of only fractional extent. Helping the wheat market to advance at times was attention which in various quarters was given to the circumstances that today was a traditional favorite date to purchase wheat. A fair volume of export business in North American wheat overnight was noted.

STEEL LEADERS SEE UPTURN

NEW YORK, June 25—The Iron Age in its weekly summary of the iron and steel trade tomorrow will say:

Seasonal influences accentuated by current pessimism obscure the outlook in the iron and steel trade. Summer shutdowns of two weeks or more by a number of large steel-consuming plants, notably in the Detroit district, coupled with the customary mid-year suspensions for inventory in virtually all lines of industry, make it clear that temporarily at least iron and steel demand will undergo further reduction.

On the other hand heavy line pipe bookings and mounting requirements in structural steel remain encouraging factors, and an impending general business recovery is sensed by leaders of the steel industry who have passed through many cycles of trade expansion and contraction. They believe that curtailment of buying has been overdone and they see signs of a reaction in the other direction in scattered evidences of more liberal purchases of various products.

Plans of the United States Steel Corporation to bring as much ore down the Lakes as in 1929 are interpreted as indicating its faith in the business prospects for the last half of the year. The scheduled blowing in of two blast furnaces by a large Pittsburgh independent early next month may point to similar confidence, although probably more largely influenced by pressure of line pipe deliveries.

Steel ingot production for the country at large has declined to 64 per cent from the 65 per cent rate of a week ago.

Construction work continues to develop in increasing volume. More structural steel business is in prospect than at any time in the past year.

The country's capacity in line pipe is fully committed for six months.

Railroad demand for steel which has been declining steadily is expected to pick up in a month or two.

The Iron Age composite prices have receded to new low levels. Pig iron has declined 6 cents to $17.42, a gross ton, and finished steel is off 56 cents a net ton to 2.18 cents a pound.

Sugar Market.

NEW YORK, June 25—Raw sugar was steadier in the early trading but the demand was quiet and prices active and the market was unchanged to 2 points higher. Buyers in an attempt refiner for late July shipment at 3.30c delivered.

The withdrawal demand for refined sugar was again of fair proportions, probably stimulated by the warm weather, but there was no new business recorded. Prices were unchanged at 4.60c to 4.70c for fine granulated.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, June 25—The curb market bobbed up and down uncertainly today, but the list was more active on the declines than on the brief rallies and prices showed considerable heaviness under the pressure of further short selling.

Defends New Tariff

HAWLEY OFFERS TARIFF BILL DEFENSE

New Schedule Is Intended To Promote All-American Prosperity, Co-Author Says

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER.

NEW YORK, June 24.—Dr. Albert Shaw, of the Reviews of Reviews, has scored a beat in scouring the land and finding a man who would care to make an elaborate written defense of the new hodge podge tariff law. Enough voted for the new law to pass it, not because they approved it in its entirety but because in the spirit of log-rolling they liked sections which seemed to favor their own constituents.

The man who makes the official apology for the new measure is none other than Representative William C. Hawley, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee and co-author of the bill. His written defense merely means that the parent is proud of its child.

Mr. Hawley contends:

"The new tariff is intended to promote all-American prosperity. Our industrious and enterprising people have not only made the greatest of all nations, but have created the greatest of markets. Our domestic trade is 10 times our foreign trade and approximates $90,000,000,000 annually. Our prosperity measures the extent of our ability to provide for our own people, absorb imports, and sell articles abroad.

"Proper protection to American products and labor greatly increases the prosperity and well-being of our own people, and materially develops foreign trade."

FIAT PROSPERITY

Mr. Hawley represents a school of economic thought which believes in fiat prosperity — prosperity planned and meted out by politicians. It is analogous to the thinking that finds a way to prosperity in fiat currency, backed by nothing but the general credit of a government in possession of printing presses.

As a matter of fact, political arrangements are only minor factors in economic development. Business wants from governments only an assurance of stability and of the prevalence of law and order. Politicians are likely to overemphasize the importance of what they can do.

Though this column repeatedly criticized the proposed tariff bill before it was passed and still believes that the tariff issue will not be settled until it has been settled right, I think that Wall street has enormously exaggerated the adverse effects of the tariff. There has been an attempt in the Street to over-exploit the adverse aspects of the tariff.

TARIFF BARRIERS

Since the war, the ideas of economic nationalism and self-sufficiency have developed until they have run riot. The present sickness of world commerce is caused in no small degree by excessive tariffs, which prove barriers to the free movement of goods. Scientific economists have long attacked excessively high tariffs, but there was a material advantage in the protective principle as long as it was pursued exclusively. But now that the idea has been taken up almost universally among nations the protective tariff has lost its competitive advantage to any one nation. The tariff walls of one nation are merely an offset to those of another. The net effect is merely friction and obstruction.

Pointing out that business recovery requires time, Francis H. Sisson, vice president of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, who has been suggested as a candidate for the presidency of the American Bankers' Association—and what an outstanding president this eminent statesman of finance would make—expresses faith in the longer term business future.

After citing the adverse factors, Mr. Sisson says:

"In spite of these influences, which are at the moment dominant, it would be as inaccurate to allow pessimism to dominate one's viewpoint for the long pull now as it was to submit to unbridled optimism of last year. Balanced judgment seems to indicate a slow but relatively orderly course forward, in which distinct progress may not yet be evident for some time to come."

U S Industrial Alcohol Not Earning Dividend Requirements

Directors of United States Industrial Alcohol Company meet for dividend action June 26. Profits in the first six months have been considerably below dividend requirements for the period and although the company usually earns two-thirds of its annual profit in the last six months of the year from present indications earnings for the full year may not be much over $4 a share and may run below that. However, since the management believes the present situation in industry is due to circumstances that will be remedied by inevitable lower molasses prices in 1931, it is probable the board will decide to continue the current $6 annual dividend rate for the present, leaving final decision until the fall meeting.

With the Dow-Jones Railroad average in new low ground on the major decline, which started last September, the belief of a powerful short interest was strengthened that further liquidation would be seen before the groundwork had been prepared for a sustained upward movement. This group includes a number of large operators who were active on the up-side in the Coolidge bull swing and several strongly financed market leaders who are on the directorates of leading corporations and investment trusts. These people hold that the action of the market indicates that the current bear movement is in an uncompleted state and that stock prices will work lower unless an unforeseen check occurs in declining commodity prices, car loadings and steel production.

Crossing of the swords between the President and Congress at a time when commodity prices are sinking and the Farm Board policies are being sharply criticized is not doing the industrial world any particular service at this time. This is a time for co-operation rather than for selfish log-rolling and in prominent business circles the politicians are being roundly scored for their blindness in relation to perplexing problems which are helping to retard the business recovery. It is being reflected on the stock market.

There is little encouragement either in entering or in remaining with a market which in the short space of an hour surrenders all of the ground gained in a two-days' rally. The bulls run for their lives when somebody says "boo" in the stock market these days, the bears are riding roughshod over the best grade of industrial and utility blue chips and values are apparently still settling downward. Yesterday the standard statistics average sank to new low levels for the year for all groups and the composite average of 50 industrial, 20 utilities an 20 rails. There was a bright spot in the sharp shrinkage in volume of transactions, which suggested to some students of the market that the bulls may have been giving the bears sufficient rope with which to hang themselves.

Radio-Keith-Orpheum seems to have many supporters among usually well informed Wall street interests. Another special survey of the company shows that of the 390,952 shares of stock for which stockholders subscribed to at $35 a share less than a month ago, Radio Corporation took 83,333 shares as its allotment based upon its holdings in Radio Keith. At about the same time two leading banking houses exercised options for 50,000 new shares at an average price of $33, and 50,000 more new shares at the price of $40. It is considered unlikely any of this stock would be sold in the open market while the current unsettlement continues. It is regarded as far more probable this stock will be held permanently or at least until the company has developed its earning power. Minimum earnings for the current year are estimated at $3 per share.

The directors of Anaconda meet tomorrow to vote on a dividend rate for the company's stock, presumably to decide whether to cut the present $7 dividend to either $5 or $4. Trading circles hold to the belief that when official announcement of the change is made, copper stocks should score a technical recovery, on the theory that the bad news is out.

No Change in Trade Activity Here

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

BUSINESS APPEARS to have become resigned to the fact that little change can be expected before the latter part of the present year. The past week has been marked by continued seasonal recession on a mild scale. It would be contrary to normal precedents for any revival of material proportions to take place within the next few months.

Lower prices for stocks and declining commodity quotations are adding to the retarding influences. The break in stocks is not likely to exert such a direct influence on general business as it did last fall, particularly since most stocks are still selling above the low of last November. Commodity prices, however, are proving to be a very definite factor in retarding business improvement.

Manufacturing and merchandising organizations are making a definite effort to maintain retail prices. The sharp declines in such commodities as wheat, cotton and steel have not been accompanied by corresponding reductions in the retail prices of most manufactured products. While the ultimate consumer is not getting the benefits of lower prices for most of the articles he buys the maintenance of stable prices is likely to prove helpful to the general business situation. It will be recalled that the wave of price cutting in 1920 and 1921 did not do the consumer any good.

Activity Declines Here

SO FAR AS PITTSBURGH is concerned, industrial activity is still slowly declining. Steel ingot production is being gradually cut. Pipe mills are busier but other finishing operations are being reduced.

Automobile output has passed its spring peak. Orders for materials from this district indicate that motor car building will be brought down to an exceptionally low level next month. The two largest makers of low priced cars are expected to completely suspend operations for a two-week period within a short time.

Pittsburgh's new automobile producer is steadily increasing its production schedules. American Austin will be kept busy supplying models to dealers during the balance of this year regardless of general conditions in the trade.

Glass Business Dull

MAKERS OF FLAT GLASS, who have been anything but prosperous for the past five years, are now going through a period of more pronounced dullness. This results from reduced activity in building as well as curtailed automobile production. The plate glass makers are suffering from conditions in both industries. The window glass makers from building alone.

The glass industry has not had time to make any accurate estimate of the probable effect of the new tariff. Duties on both types of glass have been increased from the last schedule passed by Congress. A year ago, however, the Tariff Commission ordered increases. The rates in the new tariff are close to those placed into effect by the commission. The principal changes in the condition of foreign competition in this field will arise from alterations in the duties on particular types of glass.

Money Rates Low

THE BRIGHT SIDE of the picture can be found in the fact that the current dullness is not accompanied by many of the conditions of similar periods in the past. Small inventories and good financial conditions of the most leading corporations remove the possibility of a repetition of the hangover following the 1920 crash.

Money is cheaper than at any time in years. While this has not been effective in stimulating business it is greasing the wheels for the next revival of activity.

WALL STREET HEARS

That still another reduction in the New York rediscount rate from 2½ to 2 per cent is expected in some important banking quarters before the rate again turns upward.

That some bears on the wheat market are holding out for 80 cents a bushel, although traders generally are inclined to regard this view as unjustified.

That orders for structural steel and pipe are stabilizing conditions in the steel industry, and while some further curtailment of output is expected in July, a substantial, perhaps sharp, upturn is indicated for August.

That American Tobacco will split its stock 2 for 1 and declare a $4 extra on the present shares. Action is expected this week.

That Anaconda directors meeting tomorrow will reduce the annual dividend rate from $7 to $4, or possibly $3.

Czechoslovakia Bank Cuts Discount Rate

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, June 25.—The National Bank of Czechoslovakia reduced its discount rate from 4½ to 4 per cent.

Trusts For Women

MANY women of Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania have been relieved of responsibility, found the leisure to indulge tastes for travel, maintained their social activities and met their domestic requirements by establishing trusts with The Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh.

U. S. Prices on Ex-Confidence Basis Today

By B. C. FORBES

FEAR never won success. Who can deny that fear is rampant throughout the United States today? Fear is manifest in the excited selling of wheat, cotton and other farm products today. Wall Street is in the grip of fear. Fear has swollen the ranks of unemployed. Fear has restricted normal retail business. Fear has checked home building. Fear has postponed the buying of new automobiles.

In short, fear is at this moment America's worst enemy.

Our actual economic condition is not as bad as our mental condition.

It is time for the ablest leaders in every walk of life to set an example of confidence not by words only, but by deeds.

In my humble opinion there are more bargains available in commodities, in securities, in raw materials, in merchandise than will be available for many a moon. This midyear season may well prove to have witnessed the bottom in prices, employment, general activity.

Things are today selling ex-confidence. A very different chapter will be written when they again sell ex-fear.

DISCONTENT is tremendously widespread, the deluge of letters to this column clearly reveals. Washington is bitterly condemned for its tariff bungling, for the failure of politicians to co-operate more effectively with the men who strive to fill pay envelopes, and for the lack of prompt and aggressive action in launching public works as promised at the Hoover conferences.

T. L. Brunner, Chicago, for example, writes:

"Why don't Mr. Brisbane, yourself and others give publicity to what Mr. Hoover and Cabinet last fall promised about relieving unemployment? So far it has been talk. But no action. Insofar as government building and construction is concerned. Are there no responsible or constructive leaders left in the United States? It is criminal to permit our country to go to the dogs just because we have no leadership. I presume they will start a constructive program when the working element are about ready to launch a revolution."

The railroads are criticized for laying off men at a time when it is impossible for them to find other jobs. Large industrial corporations are accused of having done the same thing.

Then, of course, "Wall street" and "big bankers" are denounced most bitterly by many who are convinced the panicky conditions in the stock market could have been prevented had the "rich fellows" been interested in maintaining prosperity. While you and I may feel that we know differently, the fact remains that the view already mentioned is very widely harbored.

Here are sentences from one communication:

"Why are professional operators allowed to demoralize things at a time like this by selling stocks short? People are losing their money and confidence and their morale is greatly affected. Why not close up the New York Stock Exchange for a few weeks and let people sober up?"

A MIDDLE WESTERN reader, after recommending a vacation for political leaders, bank leaders (and the writer of this column) "to let your fevered brains cool," says, in part:

"Ever since the big bust last fall the big business interests have been telling us prosperity was just around the corner. Said the big bankers in New York, 'Have confidence in us. We are Moses. We will lead you out of the slough of despond. You common people out in the dim distance can't be hurt.' Of course not, they had nothing left. They always get burned.

"Men here are begging for any kind of work so they can feed their families. We are told that money is cheap; but who can get any of it? If you go into a bank with a farm mortgage they sold you a few years ago, assuring you it was the best security in the world, they will tell you they cannot loan a cent on such collateral.

"Farm products are cheaper than in 15 to 20 years, but the same old retail prices are charged laboring men. Why, with wheat under $1, should bread be still retailing at the same price as when wheat was $2? Give the laboring man a chance on bread, meat, butter, eggs and the necessities—to h—l with the luxuries.

"The present administration has done nothing but appoint commissions to report to headquarters. If they have reported anything but bunk and honey to their headmaster the public has not found it out."

THAT the wild excesses of last year would lead to just such conditions as are now being suffered, wasn't hard to foresee. But deflation has gone quite far enough. Fear is being overdone.

Let us forthwith start to register confidence.

HOW'S BUSINESS?

ACTUAL FACTS ON CONDITIONS TODAY

Postal Receipts Show Normal Activity

Postal receipts in fifty of the largest cities of the United States during the first five months of 1930 are compared with the receipts in the identical cities during the corresponding periods since 1921. The figures comprise about 55% of the total postal business. Source: Post Office Department.

Chart by FRELING FOSTER

Postal receipts, a good index of economic activity because they come from every home and every business, help to confirm our contention—that 1930 is the best general business year in this decade, with, of course, the exception of the dizzy and abnormal 1929.

A. P. I. Oil Figures Gain During Week

NEW YORK, July 25.—Domestic crude oil production last week averaged 2,598,850 barrels daily, an increase of 27,350 barrels over the preceding week, but 165,650 barrels below the like week in 1929, the American Petroleum Institute reports.

CAR LOADINGS DECREASE

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Loading of revenue freight for the week ended June 14 totaled 927,794 cars, according to American Railway Association. This was a decrease of 7,893 cars below the preceding week and a reduction of 143,491 cars below the same week in 1929, and also a reduction of 75,059 cars compared with the similar period in 1928.

UTILITY FIRMS IN BIG DEAL

NEW YORK, June 25.—It is reported in financial circles that on August 6 stockholders of the North American Company will approve a plan whereby three Pacific coast utilities will consolidate with North American in a $2,000,000,000 system.

The Pacific companies, with total assets of $1,054,000,000, are the Southern California Edison Company, Ltd.; the Pacific Gas and Electric Company and the Pacific Lighting Company.

Pacific Gas and Electric will be first acquired. The initial step in the planned acquisitions is an increase in North American common no par stock from 10,000,000 to 50,000,000.

DAILY TRUE STORY

For Boys & Girls

P. J. Thompson, the soap manufacturer, was having another run-in with his youngest son, Alfred—better known in the speakeasy belt as "Al."

P. J. Thompson had put his first and second sons into the big business with him. They were prospering mightily.

Alfred wouldn't see it. His brothers had started at the bottom, and the bottom in the soap business is a most odoriferous greasy and unpleasant place.

The brothers had worked up and now held executive positions. They regarded Brother Al as a combination pest and black sheep, and handed him the bill on all occasions.

P. J. was having another talk with Al on the subject of earning his bread and butter to say nothing of night-club banquets by coming into the plant.

"But why should I work?" Al demanded.

Brother Peter and Brother David were in at this family conference.

"We work," Peter said sharply.

"A lot of soap work," Al informed him blandly. "But why should I work?"

Mr. Thompson signaled his two sons to leave the matter to him.

"Team work by the 'Yes' boys," said Al.

His brothers glared at him. He turned to his father.

"I know that one Governor—a man works in order that he may eat and keep strong enough to go to work next day and earn money to buy food to keep him strong enough to go to work the day after—"

"Listen," bellowed his father. Al listened.

Allowance Cut Off

"Here is $100. Take it. Go out and toss it away and come back for more just to see how it feels to go hungry, because there won't be any more."

Al took the money.

"Go home and take what clothes you want. Don't come back unless you have been working steadily for six months."

Al saw that his father meant it. He also saw the satisfied smirks on his brother's faces. Al seldom lost his temper. He was an easy-going, jovial sort of a chap, but this angered him. Instead of making a scene he waved his hand jauntily and went out.

Brothers Peter and David were secretly pleased. This meant that the big Thompson fortune would be ultimately split two ways instead of three.

Al Thompson wasn't quite as good-for-nothing as it would seem. He knew that if he went to work in the plant there would always be his two senior brothers. They would always outrank him in authority and in division of profits. He had never liked them. Nor had they ever liked him. They were smug and grim and grinding while he had been like his mother, happy-go-lucky, jovial and full of endearing personality.

Al had a few hundred from his last allowance, also the parting hundred his misunderstanding father had given him. He stepped into his car and drove over to a "place" near Eighth avenue.

It was a speakeasy and an especial favorite of Al's because it was largely patronized by the colony of fakirs, grifters, pitch men and others who followed circuses, carnivals, street fairs and the like. Al knew a great many of these people. They amused him and he liked them.

Hy Leslie was in there. Hy was an old-timer who had journeyed to the far ends of the earth in his day and now made a comfortable living by preparing medicines, soaps, polishes and the like for the younger generation to peddle in the sticks.

Al bought drinks and told Hy his story—not in a complaining vein, but as a good joke on him.

"What would you do if you were in my place, Hy?" Al asked, "and don't say you'd go back and go to work for the Governor."

"If I had a car and a few hundred and your youth and personality, young feller," Hy said sagely, "I'd see the country, study human nature and be independent."

Becomes a Salesman

"Great. Just as soon as I get the trick of living without eating I'll do—"

"Listen, boy, you gather the almoleons as you flit hither and thither. You carry along a line in your car, and a line of patter in your head. I'll fit you out."

Al was completely fed up around town. The prospect of going hither and thither as he pleased, of talking people into paying real money for phoney articles, appealed to him.

"See you in the morning, Hy—and get full instructions from you—and don't spill a word of it."

Al went home for dinner, for a change.

"I check out in the morning," he said.

His father tried to talk him out of it, but Al convinced the old man by arguing that after he got his lumps and was down and out he'd come back with some sense and go to work. All this he said to appease his father, for he was fond of him. He had no intentions of coming back to let brothers Peter and David gloat over him for the rest of their days.

That night a little hostess at a night club handed him a diamond bracelet he had given her.

Go get a stone put back, it fell out," Al" she said.

It was one of three large stones. Al had a hunch that some gangster sweetie of hers had gouged out the stone. But he took the bracelet.

Next morning he showed up at Hy Leslie's place. The bracelet had been turned into cash. A steamer trunk on his car contained his raiment.

Away out in the sticks where they are kind and neighborly, my boy is where the grift is best. Here's Vita, the great tonic, and Saxon Grande, the empress of toilet soaps, and—"

Soap! That's out—"

Not at all, Al—you strike some family and the old man or old woman will need the tonic but the young daughter of the house will yearn for the pink, sweet scented soap. Take these and the metal polishes and the dollar razors that cost 20 cents and a few other trucks—"

Al listened and that afternoon he was on his way with three cases of the stuff packed in the back of his car and a fine line of selling patter packed in the back of his head.

Cheap Soap

By the time he had reached the Middle West he was doing quite well, but the glamor was wearing off.

Passing through one of the hundreds of towns named Centerville, and well out in the scattered suburbs, he stopped in front of a cozy home with a wide lawn because he saw a well there with a shady arbor, and he was thirsty.

As he was drinking someone said, "You are welcome."

On the other side of the arbor sat a young woman. She wouldn't have won a "Miss America" prize, but for a woman of 25 she was unusually wholesome and attractive.

Al swept off his hat.

"Thank you, Miss—it must be wonderful to be able to sit in such a beautiful spot of your own, and to have your beauty to match the environment."

"What are you selling?" she asked.

"You are as clever as you are beautiful—how did you guess?"

"Your talk, and big cases in your car."

"I'll show you," and Al hopped down to his car for his sample case.

"Here," he said, "it's a wonderful tonic for the old folks, parents or uncles—"

The young woman examined the soap, smelled it, prodded it with her finger, broke a cake open and otherwise abused it.

"That," she said, "is the cheapest kind of yellow laundry soap melted down and coloring matter and scent added."

"You amaze me," Al stammered, because he had no idea how Hy Leslie turned out the stuff that cost him a nickel a cake and sold for 35 cents.

Marries Employer

"If," said the woman, "you could tell me how Heathermist soap is made I would make it worth your while—you know a lot about soap, so much that you shouldn't be selling this fake stuff."

Al Thompson stared at her in amazement. "Heathermist" was one of the best selling brands that his father turned out.

"Why do you want to know how Heathermist is made?"

"Because my uncle has left me a soap factory and we make mostly laundry soaps. I want to branch out, make fancy soaps—"

"You?"

"Certainly—I'm going to run the plant. I've had a hundred offers to sell and it must be a mint, if so many sharps are after it. You are pretty much like other fakirs, only you are a trifle different and you sure know soaps. If you will find out how Heathermist is——"

"I'm ahead of you, Miss. I'll get the man here who knows if you pay him enough. I'll go back and stop at the hotel, and when he gets here we'll fix you up."

"How much do you want?"

"Whatever the man wants is all right. There's a reason why I don't want any money—tell you later."

Al sent a letter to Nichola, who was an expert in his father's plant when he was sober.

When Nichola went back, sworn to secrecy, the young woman, who was a Miss Jeanette Gimble, had engaged Al to remain and work in the plant.

A few weeks later, when Al advised her to name the new toilet soap "Dawn," she was delighted and asked him why he had stopped off there and helped her.

"Because you are the only girl I ever saw that I wanted to marry," Al told her.

"I hope," Jeanette answered, "that you are the sort of a man who always gets what he wants."

P. J. Thompson came on for the wedding.

"Son," he said, "I misjudged you."

"About my going to work?"

"Hell, no. You'll never do enough work to keep you warm. I mean about your good judgment—that's a wonderful girl you married—I would have married a girl like that if she didn't have a cake of soap to her name."

It hardly seems right that we should longer refrain from appealing for funds to help the One Armed Stonecutters of America. These unfortunates are forced to hold chisels with their teeth and hit themselves over the head with mallets. They receive no more compensation than two armed stonecutters, except that they feel better when they stop work. A prominent Arab woman (above) has kindly asked us to appeal to the public to buy tickets to the benefit punching bag exhibition she will give to help this cause. Every cent of the money thus raised will go to the families and friends of one armed stonecutters.

Sidelights on Local News

Briefly Written—For Hot Weather Reading.

Safety of children on July 4 is involved in the scandal of permitting ward chairmen to control fireworks permits. Council will fail in its duty if it does not make a thorough investigation.

Mayor Kline leaves Friday for a seven weeks' tour of Europe. May he have a pleasant trip, pick up abroad some ideas for the betterment of Pittsburgh, and come back thoroughly refreshed.

It is an unfavorable commentary on the vigilance of the police that the existence of those South Side slot machines was not officially known until eight boys had been arrested for stealing them. Why not employ the boys as detectives?

*Ordination of nine Lutheran ministers in Pitts-*burgh bears testimony to the strength of religion's appeal. It is to be feared that a number of other professions no longer merit the name "profession" in its original meaning, under which one professed to have received a call to serve mankind. The opportunity to make money rather than an urge to serve humanity is the compelling motive nowadays in many so-called professions. But no one can doubt the sincerity of the altruism that calls young men to the ministry.

The chairman of the Garden Club's committee on wild flower preservation observes that "not so many automobiles laden with dogwood branches traversed the roads this spring." She believes the decrease in spoliation of the woods and meadows has been accomplished through a campaign of education. This is gratifying because it will help to take the wind out of the sails of those who advocate the addition of another "verboten" to the already long list in our law books. It will be more effective in saving our rare wild flowers from extermination to teach children in the schools they ought not to be plucked indiscriminately than to forbid it by law, for this would be just another form of prohibition that could not be enforced.

A former United States district attorney is to give an address on lawlessness before a state convention of insurance men. It is a subject in which all businessmen should be interested, because lawlessness takes heavy financial toll from business. Businessmen could help to stop lawlessness by taking a more active interest in the election of public officials who would give efficient, honest police service.

Walter J. Lyster and Harold F. Watts, the former coal and iron policemen, can congratulate themselves on the lightness of the sentences imposed for killing John Borkowski, one of the most shocking crimes of recent years. Lyster is to serve a year and Watts 10 months. The two men, convicted of manslaughter, may consider themselves lucky in not having been found guilty of a graver crime.

That was an apt rejoinder that Representative Dunbar, of Indiana, made to Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of Army Engineers, when, in answer to the general's remark that it would take $95,000,000 worth of dams in the upper Allegheny and Monongahela rivers to give Pittsburgh $60,000,000 worth of flood protection, he suggested there were humanitarian benefits not to be measured in terms of money. However, even if the humanitarian phase is eliminated from consideration, Pittsburgh need not prepare to surrender to the General. It is too soon to accept his figures as final. He himself recommended that judgment be withheld until studies now under way are completed.

*Comforting news for Pittsburgh's liquor racket-*eers: Erie is favored as the site for the new federal penitentiary. How much easier it will be to keep in touch with the business and receive visits from friends at Erie than at Atlanta!

Taxpayers cannot be blamed if they pull wry faces over the steadily mounting expense of making thoroughfares fit for automobile traffic. The latest example is the Better Traffic Committee's proposal that 72 street intersections be widened and square corners rounded, at a cost of $36,000. It is bitter medicine, to be sure, but there can be no doubt of its remedial value.

*The architect's picture of the proposed Pitts-*burgh postoffice and federal office building is not unattractive. Let us hope it is not, as a wag suggested, a record-breaking advance showing of the structure. We have waited for the postoffice for 25 years, already.

In girding for an attack on stream pollution the Chamber of Commerce has undertaken a battle worthy of its mettle. Contamination of the rivers by industrial drainage has done far more damage than merely to ruin the fishing. It causes the people of Pittsburgh alone millions of dollars of loss annually through corrosion of metal, destruction of the cellulose fibers in linen and cotton fabrics, and necessity for excessive use of soap.

Meritorious Appointment

Politics Was Ignored in Naming Traffic Engineer.

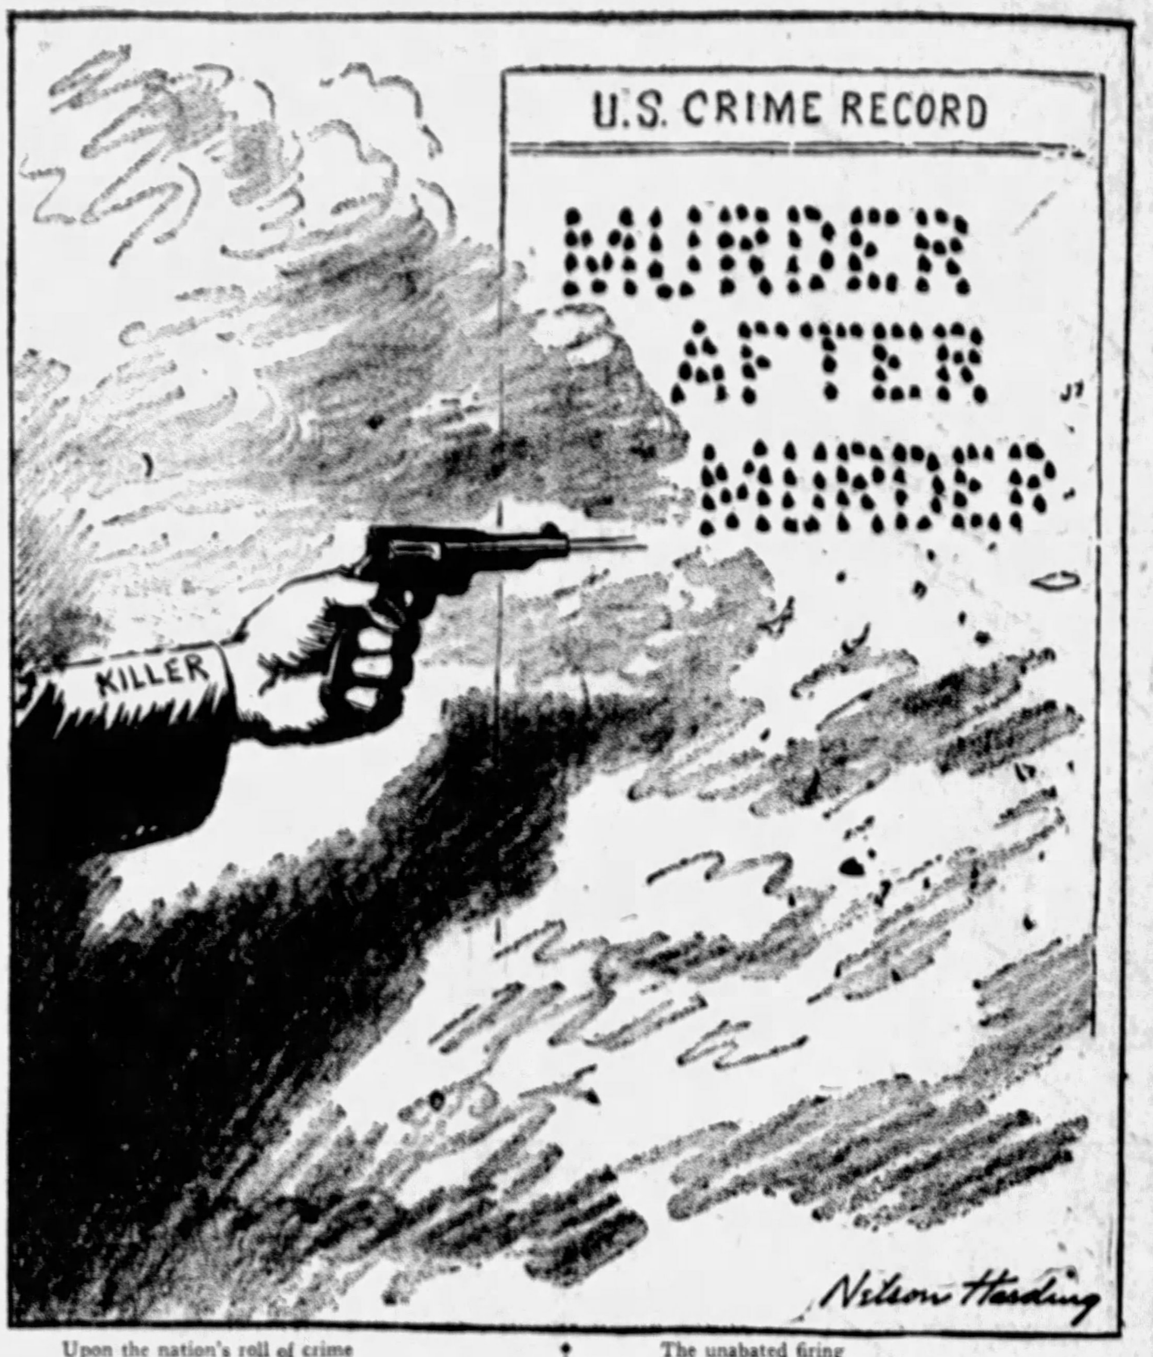
Always happy when opportunity arises to praise the city administration, the Sun-Telegraph takes pleasure in commending Mayor Charles H. Kline's appointment of Prof. Lewis W. McIntyre, of the University of Pittsburgh, as traffic engineer.

Here was an appointment in which, so far as can be learned, political considerations were wholly disregarded, and the appointee chosen for merit alone. It is true there is a city ordinance requiring that the traffic engineer shall have certain technical qualifications; but if there had been a desire to use the place as a patronage "plum," a deserving vote-getter no doubt would have been found who, so far as the letter of the law was concerned, was qualified for it. Other places calling for technical qualifications have been treated as the "spoils" of political victory and filled with men whose only claim to consideration was that they had the indorsement of their ward chairmen.

The position of traffic engineer might have been thought of as a particularly juicy plum, since it pays $7,500 a year. But, to the credit of the Mayor, it was not so regarded. Not ward chairmen, but the Better Traffic Committee were consulted in making the appointment. Not selfish interest, but the public welfare was considered in choosing the engineer.

Mr. McIntyre has the necessary training and experience and is well thought of by the authorities on traffic matters and city planning. He seems an ideal man for the place.

The Trigger Finger Writes -:- Drawn by Nelson Harding



Upon the nation's roll of crime
The killers' well aimed bullets spell
A murder record as the shots
Their fast increasing victims fell.

The unabated firing
Disturbs the peace both near and far;
The endless lists of killed and maimed
Resemble those in time of war.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

King Every Other D[ay]

Crown Prince Michael, nee K[ing] is back in the Rumanian scho[ol]

Why didn't Wilhelm think that?

"Bugs" Baer

And the second day teacher did make apple sauce. You can't work that racket on a crown prince.

Mike is now in the prime of nine years. And he isn't doing bad for a veteran of the kindergartens. He grabs himself a yearly salary of $42,000. And all the marbles he wins.

He can spell cat with a capital K and make the teacher nod yes like a proud horse.

When teacher asks him the answer to two and two he can refer the matter to the minister of finance.

He can lowbridge the professor with a spitball and the school committee will hand him first prize for the best work of the year.

Being a king is not all a blanket of pansies. But when a king makes faces at the teacher you know that's the kind of expressions that everybody is going to wear that year.

Who's going to have the nerve to keep Mike after school when he can call out the militia or sell the shack to Henry Ford?

Will anybody tell Mike to write Constantinople a thousand times on the back of a postage stamp with a hoe handle? Will they command him to do his home work in red ink if he likes green?

Don't forget that the teacher remembers that Mike was once a king, and he who has once worn the royal ermine ain't going to be fooled with rabbit fur.

Figuring the whole thing out with the aid of television and a mimeograph, we would say that the professors will treat Mike with plenty of extract of dignity.

He is only nine, which is a tender age to have such responsibility placed upon your arches. We know that Carol is back home in the kinging business. But Carol has a way of switching his office hours across the frontier.

Any minute now Mike is liable to be king again. Then Carol comes back and Mike resumes the interrupted geography lessons.

We hope that Carol stays long enough for Mike to get an education. And we also know that Mike will get so tired of sliding from the throne to a school desk that he will pray that Carol makes up his mind.

A straight line in such [redacted]y is described, somewhat [redacted]riorly, as the shortest [redacted]between two points. [redacted]k of all three of these [redacted]s as referring to fig- [redacted]plane or flat surface. [redacted] such a surface a Euclid- [redacted]; and since it has no [redacted] we say that its curva- [redacted]re.

[redacted]n-Euclidean geometries [redacted]rom Euclid's scheme, [redacted] conforming to the par- [redacted]m. Through a point [redacted] a given "straight line." In some of these non-Euclidean geometries, either no parallel or several parallels may be drawn to a given line.

Analogs to these non-Euclidean geometries are found in certain surfaces which may be drawn in our space, which is, for all practical purposes and for limited regions, Euclidean space of three dimensions.

For instance, consider a sphere or ordinary geographical globe. A "straight" line on a sphere, defined as the shortest distance between two points on the surface of the globe, is the arc of a great circle passing through the two points. Since all great circles on the sphere intersect each other, the geometry on the surface of the sphere is analogous to non-Euclidean, since it does not satisfy the parallel axiom. The sum of the angles of a triangle, formed by "straight" lines, adds up to more than two right angles.

A surface such as the stem of a wine glass is another illustration, by analogy, of a non-Euclidean geometry. Through a point outside of a line, several parallels to the line can be drawn. The sum of the angles of a triangle on this surface add up to less than two right angles.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Once I knew a woman. She was an Italian woman and she lived in a camp on the Mother Lode.

When I knew her she was already old, but one did not think of her age any more than one thinks of the age of a mountain or a river or the wind and sun.

She was taller than a man and had the strength of three. Great thighs, wide feet that seemed a part of the earth they gripped, a deep bosom that had known much service and a face seamed like a rock, still as deep water.

She was very poor as the world reckons. She lived in a rough, two-roomed cabin. She had never been on a railroad train and she could read a few words. But I believe that hers was the richest life I have ever known.

She did not live life—she was life. Human soil. Life flowed through her. She bore many children. She helped to bring other mothers' children into the world.

When death came, whether it was by day or night, hoofs clattered to her door and she went out to dress the dead that often she had bathed at birth. Always on any of these occasions she moved quietly, with an abundant calm. There was a peace within her, as deep and vigorous as the firm flesh upon her bones. There was substance to her peace.

She never talked much, though her brown, ringed ears were cordial to gossip. She did not need words. There was a mellow comprehension about her that drove deep beneath the froth of words.

You can be sure she never quarreled with her ego, digging at it to watch its palpitations, as is our modern feminine wont. Moods or emotions—outside the simple necessities of love and hate and grief—seemed trifling affairs to her. She believed that folks would get along all right if you gave them plenty of good food and well-ripened vino.

Food—it is impossible to write about her without thinking of food. Her great platters of polenta—the heaped yellow mounds of boiled meal dripping with savory mushroom gravy. The big, black pot of menestrone that simmered on the back of her stove, sending its thick, rich fragrance through the ruddy shadows of the room. Her round, crusty loaves of bread, slightly sour. The deep flasks of oil, pressed from the gnarled gray trees that grew behind her house. Food—she moved through a fat drama of feeding—

And indeed, she was a sort of food herself, as rich in the nourishment she gave as her creamy pastes—her bracing, rough wine—her golden oils.

For 60 years she lived in the one place until she was the place. Nothing passed there that had not known the service of her hands—that was not, in part, the product of her deep, sustaining strength. One day, shortly after her sixty-sixth birthday, she was grubbing in her soil, planting chili peppers. Three days later she was part of that same soil.

It seemed a very natural mingling. Always they had been so close to each other, those two.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

This Is the Love

This is the love which men have prized always,
A splendid vision that illumes their days;
Not love like that by Helen of Troy inspired,
Not love which is but loveliness desired;
Not spells like Cleopatra of the Nile
Cast with her glamour for a little while,
This is the love for which all men have sought
In moments of their clearer, truer thought,
And none dare deal unjustly in its name;
It is a thing of light, but not of flame.
If it be dream, the dream has never died,
And still its seekers go, unsatisfied
By warmth and tenderness and clasping hands,
They leave all these . . . for what? None understands.
This is the love which, through the dimming clay,
Shows more triumphantly its changeless ray;
Unheeding Time, who takes his ruthless toll,
This is the love eternal of the soul.

Behold, I stand at the door and knock; if any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me.—Revelations, III: 20.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS

Sec. 4. Genes and Their Effect

The inner ears of mice or the colors of garden flowers may seem trivial in themselves, but they illustrate clearly a mode of inheritance of the greatest and most general importance.

The chromosomes are an aggregation of an enormous number of genes, each playing its own little part in the production of the individual organism, each obeying Mendel's laws. Of this gene-army our germplasm consists.

H. G. Wells

We cannot catalogue here all the various actions that have been traced to these genes. Let us consider a single species, the Fruit-fly, which, as we have remarked already, is particularly well suited for genetic experiments and has been extensively and intensively studied.

In this insect it has been shown that one gene reduces the wings of vestiges, another cuts them off square, others slightly alter their vein pattern; still others alter the shape and color of the eye, others the color of the body; one makes the feet grow double; one remarkable recessive gene not only turns the grey body tan-color but abolishes the fly's normal instinct to go towards the light; others influence fertility and others again the length of life. There is not a corner of the Fruit-fly's anatomy, not an aspect of his activities that has not been shown to be controlled in some way by these all-important genes.

To take a few examples from other organisms. Single genes exist which convert horned into hornless cattle, bearded into beardless wheat, normal snapdragon flowers into flowers with five-rayed symmetry.

All the color varieties of domestic animals depend on genes. So do the plumage-varieties of poultry, and here also there are genes influencing the shape of the comb, the size of the body, and even the egg-laying capacity.

We shall discover many other interesting effects of genes in later sections.

Among the most curious genes known are the so-called "Lethal Genes," which kill their possessors.

For example, there is a gene in the mouse which, when present in one only of the chromosome sets, produces a yellow animal, perfectly healthy, though with a tendency to fat; but when it is present in double dose the animals die in the uterus at an early stage in embryonic development.

Thus a yellow mouse which breeds true cannot exist. There is a similar case in the Fruit-fly, a gene which in single dose produces a scalloping of the margins of the wings and in double dose kills the developing embryos.

Again, another gene in the fruit-fly causes fatal tumors to grow in the young grubs. In many plants there are genes which kill the seedlings by preventing the formation of the vital green pigment, chlorophyll.

So far we have treated of the genes as completely independent entities. But their effects may interfere; they may modify, counteract and reinforce each other. There is, for example, the phenomena of Multiple Genes, when a troop of genes combines for the production of a single effect, each contributing a little push in the right direction.

Such gene-troops are responsible for the inheritance of characters such as size in animals, or skin-color in man, which show whole series of graded degrees of difference. We will illustrate the Geneticist's conception of these Multiple Genes more fully in the following section.

In our own species, plenty of Mendelizing characters have been made out. The difference between ears with free lobes and ears with attached lobes depends, it would seem, on a single gene-difference.

So it is alleged does the difference between blue and brown eyes, blue being recessive to brown.

Two brown-eyed parents can have blue-eyed children, but two blue-eyed parents should not, in the present phase of genetic science at least, have a brown-eyed child.

Albinism—pink or scarcely-colored eyes and white or almost white hair—which affects about one person in every ten thousand, is much more certainly a simple recessive to normal pigmentation.

So we may expect to find albinos cropping up as the result of a marriage between two quite normal people who happen to be carriers of the albino gene.

But if two albinos marry, all their children will certainly be albinos. On the other hand, the malformation known as brachydactyly or "short-fingeredness" when the fingers have one joint too few, appears to be a Mendelian dominant.

Thus, if two brachydactylous people marry, the children must all be brachydactylous; if two normal people marry, the children cannot possibly be brachydactylous; if a brachydactyl marries a normal, the children will either be all brachydactylous, or half of them brachydactylous and half normal, according to whether the malformed parent was pure-bred or hybrid for the malformation-producing gene.

ON THE ATLANTIC

By O. O. McIntyre

ON THE ATLANTIC, June 25.—Sitting at the captain's table is as much of an ordeal for the average traveler as it doubtless is to the captain himself. Those so honored must be at every meal precisely on time and depart only when the captain has finished and arisen from his chair.

Experienced voyagers decline such invitations even at the risk of a slight. The favored group usually includes an obese and doubtful Duchess, a couple of dressmakers from New York and the mayor of Apple Gap, Ia. People who enjoy the privilege are the sort who demand a box at the New York Theater.

This barque has hit upon a novel method of handling the problem. Fifteen different guests are invited to dine nightly with the captain. And—surprise! surprise!—a flashlight photograph is taken of each group by the ship's staff photographer. Great stuff—for the photographer.

The photographer on this liner, incidentally, enjoys a bigger income than the poorly paid captain. His revenue from photography is considerable and he is also maestro of the Punch and Judy show, the collection for which at the end of the trip is a sizeable amount.

In addition he operates the moving picture machine in the afternoon and is the electrician at the cabaret performances at night. He is a harried little man—as well he should be—with a set and perpetual smile. And there is Mireille, a manicure girl. I must tell you about her.

She is a brunette with soft laughing eyes from Bologne and is a passionately devoted admirer of Conrad Nagel. When I told her that the hand she was refurbishing had several times clasped the hand of Mr. Nagel she lightly touched it to her lips with an ecstatic gurgle. And I turned red to the ears.

Mireille—the spelling is guess work—haunts Roxy's between voyages in New York to hear the organs and hope for the sight of her dream lover. And so the floating palace plunges on with graceful dips through a slightly rising and falling sea. As I write we are about in the middle of the ocean.

Being a rather meticulous person my pearl gray hat was carefully wrapped in a towel before casting off in New York. My wife reminded me just now, and I thought a shade sarcastically, the ocean was rarely if ever dusty.

Capt. Rostron, of the Aquitania, once told me he had noticed that if the first two days of sailing were smooth there was little seasickness. People acquired sea legs. For three days the sea has been like the proverbial mill-pond and for the first time in six years I have not had the faintest touch of mal de mer.

Twice deck walking today I thought the lady-whose-name-I-won't-mention was trying to speak to me from her chair. It may have been fancy or egotism but I hope she doesn't. I am such a soft-hearted ninny I'd have to do a lot of rewriting and stick in her name. As though such a highly publicized person cared!

Bong-bong-bong goes the dinner gong. Caviar, duck cooked in orange, crepe Suzette, and salad as only the French can mix it. A sailor's life is the life for me. Yo ho!

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

An idea strikes you, immediately you act without giving special thought or a careful planning.

Often you have come to know that the mistakes you have made were just this sort and you resolved to have better control of your nervous make-up.

But you repeat your rash actions.

You have to feel the efforts you make physically or you think you are not doing much.

You cannot appreciate the sort of mind that works quietly directing and you wonder how certain executives hold their jobs.

You think they just sit around, fume or look pleasant as they imagine the case requires and you think you are the one over-worked and entitled to an increase in wages.

The man who apparently does nothing but think, you would be willing to wager as having a pull in some way to get the salary he is said to draw.
